Labor Chief Says U.S. In Depression

By The Associated Press

George Meany said that dreaded word "depression" again Monday, and there were hints of progress toward compromise on energy and tax-cut plans.

AFL-CIO President Meany — who warned the country was headed for a depression last year, while the Ford administration still hadn't accepted recession to describe the nation's economic troubles — said in Washington that the economy had caught up with his prediction.

"Yes, America is in a depression," Meany told the National Housing Conference, Inc. "When the unemployment rate is 8.2 per cent, representing nearly 7.5 million people without jobs, it is time that the administration stopped kidding itself and trying to kid the people."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, also speaking Monday, gave a contrasting picture of the economy, saying he saw "patches of blue in a gray, wintry sky."

Investors seemed to agree with Simon's view, as the stock market continued its upward climb, riding on the Federal Reserve Board's move Friday to lower interest rates to member banks in an effort to stimulate the sluggish economy.

The Dow-Jones Industrial aveage closed up 6.03 at 776.13.

And several more banks, including such giants as Chase Manhattan and Manufacturers Hanover Trust, lowered prime interest rates to 8% to encourage business borrowing. The industry low is 7¾%, compared with a 12% prime as recently as last July.

Meany, in his speech, proposed a tax cut of $30 billion to stimulate the economy, nearly $10 billion more than the House-passed cut being considered by the Senate and almost double the cut President Ford has proposed.

He also urged more public service jobs and, arguing against President Ford's energy program, urged Congress to come up with a fair alternative.

The speech touched on the economic subjects now most under debate: Is the country in a depression? How much of a tax cut is needed to lift the economy from its present mire without refueling inflation? What is the best way to halt the energy price spiral?

As Meany and Simon spoke, there were signs of compromise on both the energy and tax-cut fronts.

On taxes, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., the leader of a Senate fight to repeal the oil depletion allowance, agreed to exempt small petroleum producers from such a repeal.

This could speed the House-passed $21.3 billion tax cut bill through the Senate, but there was no clear reaction from those who want the oil depletion issue completely divorced from the tax cut bill.

On energy, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb and Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., of the House Ways and Means Committee have met to discuss a possible compromise.

Zarb said White House and congressional staffs are studying a compromise. But he told the House Budget Committee the administration maintains its support for a tax on imported crude oil, rather than only on gasoline as key Democrats propose.

He added, though, "We have got to try to see that gasoline carries its share."

Zarb and Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, who also appeared before the committee, defended Ford's proposal to take $30 billion in energy taxes out of the economy but put it back through tax cuts and increased federal aid.

The current unemployment statistics of 8.2% and 7.5 million unemployed compare to a 25% unemployment rate, with about 13 million people out of work, during the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Paul Samuelson, the nation's first Nobel prize-winning economist, has said he will consider it a depression when joblessness reaches 10 per cent.

Capital City May Lose 1976 Fairgrounds Races

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Will the 1976 Lincoln horse race meeting be held as scheduled in Lincoln? Or will the meet be switched for one year only to either Fonner Park in Grand Island or Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha?

Those questions surfaced after State Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt sought and received permission Monday from the Nebraska State Racing Commission to hold the 1976 meet at another Nebraska track.

Brandt appeared at the commission's Omaha meeting and explained that the 1976 Lincoln meeting revolves on whether the new grandstand can be completed on schedule for next year.

'Not Sure'

"I'm not sure we can get it done by next year," Brandt said. "We first have to demolish the present one and start building the new one. We can't start work until the fair ends in September and that may not be enough time to get the project done."

"You can build a shack overnight ... that's not the problem," he said. "But we want a facility that the race fans, the horsemen, the city of Lincoln and State Fair can be proud of," he continued. "I'm meeting with my board Thursday and Friday and we'll go over this again. We want to do what's best for everyone."

Alternatives

The following are alternatives that Brandt will consider:

—transfer the Lincoln races to Fonner Park in July and August, the usual time slot for the Capital City meeting.

—transfer the Lincoln races to Ak-Sar-Ben during July and August, immediately following the conclusion of the Ak meeting.

—hold the Lincoln races earlier in the year, such as May or June.

—hold part of the Lincoln season in both Grand Island and Omaha if those two tracks were unable to accommodate the entire Lincoln meeting.

Meeting Slated

Commission Chairman Harry Farnham of Omaha said a special date-setting meeting has been scheduled in Omaha on May 20 to resolve the Lincoln question. The commission had set its regular date meeting in November, but Farnham said the special May session will hopefully resolve the problem.

"That will give Brandt time to talk to the other tracks and decide what's best for Lincoln," Farnham said. "I think it would be a neighborly thing to do for either Ak or Fonner to take the Lincoln meet). It's a logical solution and it would only be for one year.

"Sure, it would present problems, but I can't foresee any problems that couldn't be solved," he added.

Up To Ak Board

"I haven't talked to Henry about this at all," noted Becker, who spent much of Monday meeting with Ak's Board of Governors. "It would be up to our governors. I really haven't thought much about it. There'd be a lot of things we'd have to look into before we could have the Lincoln races up here."

"I just talked briefly to Henry about it last week," Swihart said. "I haven't talked to my board (Hall County Board of Agriculture) and there'd be a lot of items to be taken care of before it could be done. There's a lot of unanswered questions."

Brandt said the costs (between $50,000 and $100,000) of holding the meet between construction periods would be prohibitive.

Would Be Best

"Sure, the best thing would be for us to race next year in Lincoln," Brandt said. "That's what we all would like to do, but it may not be possible."

He added that the renovation of the main track and the new barns would be ready before this summer's July 15 opening of the 26-day Lincoln season.

But it's the next summer that presents the problems.

Kissinger, Israelis Cover Sinai Pact

©The New York Times

Ankara, Turkey — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger covered all aspects of a possible new Egyptian-Israeli agreement on Sinai in meetings Monday morning with wary Israeli leaders. He then flew to Ankara to urge Turkey to take steps to reopen the Cyprus negotiations.

The sessions with Israeli leaders were described by Israelis and Americans as very intense, serious and tough, with the Israelis expressing deep concern over their need to receive significant political concessions from Egypt if they are to give up the strategic mountain passes of Gidi and Mitla and economically important oilfields of Sinai in the next accord.

While he devoted himself in the next 24 hours to meeting with Premier Sadi Irmak and other Turkish leaders on the Cyprus situation, Kissinger expected the Israeli government to come up with some fresh views for him to present to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. Kissinger returns to Jerusalem Tuesday night and plans to fly to Aswan on Wednesday as his latest efforts at "shuttle diplomacy" pick up momentum.

Israeli leaders expressed particular alarm to Kissinger about the sudden reconciliation between Iran and Iraq that has been followed by what has been described as Iranian acquiescence in an all-out Iraqi military campaign to destroy the Kurdish movement in northern Iraq.

Under the preliminary planning for this next Sinai agreement, Iran was to supply Israel with virtually all its oil if it gave up the Abu Rudeis oilfields to Egypt. Those fields, captured in the 1967 war, supply Israel with more than half its oil. Iran supplies the rest.

When Kissinger met with the shah of Iran in Zurich last month, the shah promised Israel at a news conference that he would sell Israel all the oil she needed with the understanding that the United States would supply Israel with the means to afford the additional $200 to $300 million needed.

But the apparent Iranian decision to drop support for the Kurds and make up with one of the leading radical Arab states led Premier Yitzhak Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon and Defense Minister Shimon Peres to ask Kissinger again whether Israel should feel secure with a pledge from Iran, particularly with Iran making major efforts to improve its ties in the Arab world, Israeli sources said.

GUNN ... explores beginnings of sci fi.

Science Fiction Roots Traced To Tennyson

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Horsepower — the real thing, not the mechanical variation — was still the primary means of transport when Alfred Lord Tennyson described a vision in which "the heavens (were) filled with commerce."

Though he probably couldn't have known it, Tennyson's 19th century peek at the future "made possible the beginning of science fiction" as a literary genre, according to James Gunn.

Tennyson, and a few of his contemporaries, provided readers with a "different vision" of the future, Gunn told an audience at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Monday.

No Looking Ahead

Prior to the Industrial Revolution, man "had almost no conception of his relationship with the future," said Gunn, professor of English and journalism at the University of Kansas, and author of numerous sci fi stories and books.

People at that time were preoccupied with "Golden Ages" of the past, Gunn said. Their view of the future was limited to whether or not they would "have enough food to last through the winter."

The technological revolution that occurred during the 17th century changed all that, Gunn said. And the resulting fascination with machines and progress had its impact on literature.

Gunn said he considers Jules Verne to be the "first real science fiction writer," even though authors like Mary Shelley and Edgar Allen Poe were "writing something like science fiction."

Verne's works were "simplistic" science fiction, Gunn said. However, his "optimism," his "delight in technology ... did much for the development of science fiction."

H.G. Wells was the first writer to convey the feeling that sci fi "could be a serious literary" art, Gunn said.

And he also introduced a "conception of a future in which man will degenerate," leaving the world to giant crabs and creatures of their ilk.

It was not until the late 1920's that science fiction became a popularly identified genre, Gunn said.

Since that time, "The field has become much more diverse than it once was.

"Science fiction, because it emphasizes man in his environment ... his place in a broader environment ... can provide us with a perspective on ourselves that we don't find anywhere else," Gunn said.

"We learn something about" our own "insignificance" in the universe, he continued. Science fiction writers show us that "the universe will go on long after we're forgotten."

The visitor-from-Mars syndrome, evident in a great deal of sci fi, "allows us to look at man from the viewpoint of an alien," Gunn said.

Science fiction also provides a change of pace from the "narrowing experience" of life, Gunn said.

"More and more, life is a process of telling us what we can't do," he continued.

Science fiction, which offers many possibilities, many alternatives, is "one of the few things" that deals with man's infinite potential.

"People are searching for alternatives" — another way of thinking, another way of doing things, Gunn said.

That's "one of the reasons I think science fiction has become popular."

State Tax Hike Moves Nearer

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Legislative and executive revenue staff directors moved toward agreement Monday on the need for a retroactive state income tax increase this year.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters and Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldin Ehrlich presented their views to members of the Legislature's Revenue Committee.

Peters repeated Gov. J. James Exon's conclusion that sagging state treasury balances require a boost in the personal income tax rate from 10% to 13%, retroactive to last Jan. 1.

Without a tax increase, Peters said, the state could experience a $27.6 million general fund deficit by next January.

Ehrlich Agrees

Under questioning from Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, Ehrlich agreed that a tax hike appears to be needed — but he would not suggest a figure.

"I don't know that 13% is a magic figure," he said.

If there are fewer 1975-76 appropriations than those projected by the Department of Revenue in reaching its conclusions, he noted, the figure could "perhaps be 11% or 12%."

Ehrlich said it is "quite obvious that we will run into a cash shortage problem in the very near future."

Would 13% be "a safer figure in order to get money in the bank?" Mahoney asked.

Deficit Projected

The Department of Revenue has projected a general fund deficit beginning next December if tax rates are not raised.

But the projected $3.6 million December deficit is "manageable" by administrative actions, Peters said. "The problems would come in January."

Legislature stories on Pages 17, 18

The comparable 1974-75 figure is $305 million.

$5.2 Million Surplus

If a 13% income tax rate were instituted, the projected $27.6 million deficit for next January would turn into a $5.2 million surplus.

Even with a 13% rate, the treasury would experience a slight paper deficit of less than $1 million next March and April.

But that could be "handled administratively," Peters said.

Without a tax hike, the April deficit would reach $49 million, he estimated.

Inform Legislature

Several Revenue Committee members asked Speaker Jules Burbach of Crofton to keep the Legislature informed on a daily basis as to spending patterns so senators can gauge their actions to the possible effect on tax rates.

"We've got to make the Legislature aware," Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus said.

Mahoney suggested that lawmakers may need to consider repealing the property tax reduction which it recently instituted for farm and business inventories and equipment in order to acquire sufficient revenue.

The state uses sales and income tax revenue to replace the resulting property tax losses for local government.

Voluntary Grain Cutbacks Reach 2.8 Million Bushels

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Grand Island — A five-week-old grassroots group of farmers seeking a voluntary 20% cutback in farm production throughout the Corn Belt claims to have secured support totaling 2.8 million bushels of feed grain cutbacks in the first three days' response to a direct mail appeal to all Nebraska farmers.

Harold Bunger of Hildreth, one of the main Nebraska instigators in the 11-state effort, said after a public information meeting here Monday 22% of 58,000 Nebraska farmers have pledged support of the group's purposes in response to an appeal sent to them last week.

Bunger said the mail response would be evaluated in time for a meeting of leaders from all 11 states in Des Moines March 20.

'Unite, Not Organize'

Bunger said the unnamed, contribution-funded group seeks to "unite rather than organize" farmers to join forces in influencing farm prices. The group wants reduced production of corn, sorghum, oats, wheat, soybeans, pork and beef.

The group opposes federal support prices. The appeal sent to farmers calls for target prices of $3.10 a bushel for corn, $2.95 for sorghum, $2.65 for oats, $3.75 for wheat and $6.20 for soybeans. Loan prices, the appeal said, should be $2.25 for corn, $2.15 for sorghum, $1.90 for oats, $3.00 for wheat, and $4.50 for soybeans.

Those recommended prices were intentionally set high, Bunger said, because "we know we'll never get them ... Nothing will be done unless we do it ourselves," he declared.

The group also favors curtailment of all beef imports, cancelation by farmers of new machinery orders and reduction of fertilizer useage.

Many Meetings

An estimated 200 people attended the Grand Island meeting. A similar gathering was held Monday evening in Hastings, and Bunger said at least four others were held simultaneously in other parts of the state.

Oil Men Give $350,000 To 4 Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight members of the Senate Finance Committee, which is considering whether to repeal a major tax break for the oil industry, have received more than $350,000 in recent campaign contributions from persons affiliated with the industry, Common Cause reported Monday.

Ninety-five per cent of that amount went to four senators from oil-producing states: Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, with $52,795; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., $134,954; Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, $73,004, and Robert Dole, R-Kan., $80,773.

Lesser amounts went to Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., $9,500; Bob Packwood, R-Ore., $1,580; Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., $900, and Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., $900.

Common Cause, a self-styled citizens' lobby, searched through federal reports of campaign contributions since Sept. 1, 1973.

The survey was confined to the seven Finance Committee members who were re-elected last year and to Bentsen, an announced candidate for president. Except for Bentsen, committee members who were not up for re-election last year were not included.

The Finance Committee, which has exclusive Senate jurisdiction over tax legislation, is considering a House-passed tax-cut bill that includes an amendment to repeal the oil depletion allowance, which is worth an estimated $2.5 billion a year to the oil industry.

In an effort to avoid delay in passage of the antirecession tax-cut bill, the committee has agreed tentatively to delete the provision repealing the depletion allowance.

Common Cause said that more than half the money that went to Gravel was donated after the November election last year. Included was $28,000 from a fund-raising event for Gravel in Dallas last December.

The organization said its figures included contributions only from persons clearly identifiable as having an affiliation with the oil industry.

Labor Chief Says U.S. In Depression

By The Associated Press

George Meany said that dreaded word "depression" again Monday, and there were hints of progress toward compromise on energy and tax-cut plans.

AFL-CIO President Meany — who warned the country was headed for a depression last year, while the Ford administration still hadn't accepted recession to describe the nation's economic troubles — said in Washington that the economy had caught up with his prediction.

"Yes, America is in a depression," Meany told the National Housing Conference, Inc. "When the unemployment rate is 8.2 per cent, representing nearly 7.5 million people without jobs, it is time that the administration stopped kidding itself and trying to kid the people."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, also speaking Monday, gave a contrasting picture of the economy, saying he saw "patches of blue in a gray, wintry sky."

Investors seemed to agree with Simon's view, as the stock market continued its upward climb, riding on the Federal Reserve Board's move Friday to lower interest rates to member banks in an effort to stimulate the sluggish economy.

The Dow-Jones Industrial aveage closed up 6.03 at 776.13.

And several more banks, including such giants as Chase Manhattan and Manufacturers Hanover Trust, lowered prime interest rates to 8% to encourage business borrowing. The industry low is 7¾%, compared with a 12% prime as recently as last July.

Meany, in his speech, proposed a tax cut of $30 billion to stimulate the economy, nearly $10 billion more than the House-passed cut being considered by the Senate and almost double the cut President Ford has proposed.

He also urged more public service jobs and, arguing against President Ford's energy program, urged Congress to come up with a fair alternative.

The speech touched on the economic subjects now most under debate: Is the country in a depression? How much of a tax cut is needed to lift the economy from its present mire without refueling inflation? What is the best way to halt the energy price spiral?

As Meany and Simon spoke, there were signs of compromise on both the energy and tax-cut fronts.

On taxes, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., the leader of a Senate fight to repeal the oil depletion allowance, agreed to exempt small petroleum producers from such a repeal.

This could speed the House-passed $21.3 billion tax cut bill through the Senate, but there was no clear reaction from those who want the oil depletion issue completely divorced from the tax cut bill.

On energy, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb and Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., of the House Ways and Means Committee have met to discuss a possible compromise.

Zarb said White House and congressional staffs are studying a compromise. But he told the House Budget Committee the administration maintains its support for a tax on imported crude oil, rather than only on gasoline as key Democrats propose.

He added, though, "We have got to try to see that gasoline carries its share."

Zarb and Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, who also appeared before the committee, defended Ford's proposal to take $30 billion in energy taxes out of the economy but put it back through tax cuts and increased federal aid.

The current unemployment statistics of 8.2% and 7.5 million unemployed compare to a 25% unemployment rate, with about 13 million people out of work, during the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Paul Samuelson, the nation's first Nobel prize-winning economist, has said he will consider it a depression when joblessness reaches 10 per cent.

Capital City May Lose 1976 Fairgrounds Races

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Will the 1976 Lincoln horse race meeting be held as scheduled in Lincoln? Or will the meet be switched for one year only to either Fonner Park in Grand Island or Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha?

Those questions surfaced after State Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt sought and received permission Monday from the Nebraska State Racing Commission to hold the 1976 meet at another Nebraska track.

Brandt appeared at the commission's Omaha meeting and explained that the 1976 Lincoln meeting revolves on whether the new grandstand can be completed on schedule for next year.

'Not Sure'

"I'm not sure we can get it done by next year," Brandt said. "We first have to demolish the present one and start building the new one. We can't start work until the fair ends in September and that may not be enough time to get the project done."

"I'm meeting with my board Thursday and Friday and we'll go over this again. We want to do what's best for everyone."

Alternatives

The following are alternatives that Brandt will consider:

—transfer the Lincoln races to Fonner Park in July and August, the usual time slot for the Capital City meeting.

—transfer the Lincoln races to Ak-Sar-Ben during July and August, immediately following the conclusion of the Ak meeting.

—hold the Lincoln races earlier in the year, such as May or June.

—hold part of the Lincoln season in both Grand Island and Omaha if those two tracks were unable to accommodate the entire Lincoln meeting.

Meeting Slated

Commission Chairman Harry Farnham of Omaha said a special date-setting meeting has been scheduled in Omaha on May 20 to resolve the Lincoln question. The commission had set its regular date meeting in November, but Farnham said the special May session will hopefully resolve the problem.

"That will give Brandt time to talk to the other tracks and decide what's best for Lincoln," Farnham said. "I think it would be a neighborly thing to do for (either Ak or Fonner to take the Lincoln meet). It's a logical solution and it would only be for one year.

"Sure, it would present problems, but I can't foresee any problems that couldn't be solved," he added.

Up To Ak Board

"I haven't talked to Henry about this at all," noted Becker, who spent much of Monday meeting with Ak's Board of Governors. "It would be up to our governors. I really haven't thought much about it. There'd be a lot of things we'd have to look into before we could have the Lincoln races up here."

"I just talked briefly to Henry about it last week," Swihart said. "I haven't talked to my board (Hall County Board of Agriculture) and there'd be a lot of items to be taken care of before it could be done. There's a lot of unanswered questions."

Brandt said the costs (between $50,000 and $100,000) of holding the meet between construction periods would be prohibitive.

Would Be Best

"Sure, the best thing would be for us to race next year in Lincoln," Brandt said. "That's what we all would like to do, but it may not be possible."

He added that the renovation of the main track and the new barns would be ready before this summer's July 15 opening of the 26-day Lincoln season.

But it's the next summer that presents the problems.

Kissinger, Israelis Cover Sinai Pact

State Tax Hike Moves Nearer

State Tax Commissioner William Peters and Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldin Ehrlich presented their views to members of the Legislature's Revenue Committee.

Peters repeated Gov. J. James Exon's conclusion that sagging state treasury balances require a boost in the personal income tax rate from 10% to 13%, retroactive to last Jan. 1.

"Yes, sir," Ehrlich replied.

Deficit Projected

The Department of Revenue has projected a general fund deficit beginning next December if tax rates are not raised.

But the projected $3.6 million December deficit is "manageable" by administrative actions, Peters said. "The problems would come in January."

The department's projections assume a $340 million general fund budget level for fiscal 1975-76.

The comparable 1974-75 figure is $305 million.

$5.2 Million Surplus

If a 13% income tax rate were instituted, the projected $27.6 million deficit for next January would turn into a $5.2 million surplus.

Even with a 13% rate, the treasury would experience a slight paper deficit of less than $1 million next March and April.

But that could be "handled administratively," Peters said.

Without a tax hike, the April deficit would reach $49 million, he estimated.

Inform Legislature

Several Revenue Committee members asked Speaker Jules Burbach of Crofton to keep the Legislature informed on a daily basis as to spending patterns so senators can gauge their actions to the possible effect on tax rates.

"We've got to make the Legislature aware," Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus said.

Mahoney suggested that lawmakers may need to consider repealing the property tax reduction which it recently instituted for farm and business inventories and equipment in order to acquire sufficient revenue.

The state uses sales and income tax revenue to replace the resulting property tax losses for local government.

Voluntary Grain Cutbacks Reach 2.8 Million Bushels

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Grand Island — A five-week-old grassroots group of farmers seeking a voluntary 20% cutback in farm production throughout the Corn Belt claims to have secured support totaling 2.8 million bushels of feed grain cutbacks in the first three days' response to a direct mail appeal to all Nebraska farmers.

Harold Bunger of Hildreth, one of the main Nebraska instigators in the 11-state effort, said after a public information meeting here Monday 22% of 58,000 Nebraska farmers have pledged support of the group's purposes in response to an appeal sent to them last week.

Bunger said the mail response would be evaluated in time for a meeting of leaders from all 11 states in Des Moines March 20.

'Unite, Not Organize'

Bunger said the unnamed, contribution-funded group seeks to "unite rather than organize" farmers to join forces in influencing farm prices. The group wants reduced production of corn, sorghum, oats, wheat, soybeans, pork and beef.

The group opposes federal support prices. The appeal sent to farmers calls for target prices of $3.10 a bushel for corn, $2.95 for sorghum, $2.65 for oats, $3.75 for wheat and $6.20 for soybeans. Loan prices, the appeal said, should be $2.25 for corn, $2.15 for sorghum, $1.90 for oats, $3.00 for wheat, and $4.50 for soybeans.

Those recommended prices were intentionally set high, Bunger said, because "we know we'll never get them . . . Nothing will be done unless we do it ourselves," he declared.

The group also favors curtailment of all beef imports, cancelation by farmers of new machinery orders and reduction of fertilizer useage.

Many Meetings

An estimated 200 people attended the Grand Island meeting. A similar gathering was held Monday evening in Hastings, and Bunger said at least four others were held simultaneously in other parts of the state.

Oil Men Give $350,000 To 4 Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight members of the Senate Finance Committee, which is considering whether to repeal a major tax break for the oil industry, have received more than $350,000 in recent campaign contributions from persons affiliated with the industry, Common Cause reported Monday.

Ninety-five per cent of that amount went to four senators from oil-producing states: Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, with $52,795; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., $134,954; Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, $73,004, and Robert Dole, R-Kan., $80,773.

Lesser amounts went to Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., $9,500; Bob Packwood, R-Ore., $1,580; Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., $900, and Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., $900.

Common Cause, a self-styled citizens' lobby, searched through federal reports of campaign contributions since Sept. 1, 1973.

The survey was confined to the seven Finance Committee members who were re-elected last year and to Bentsen, an announced candidate for president. Except for Bentsen, committee members who were not up for re-election last year were not included.

The Finance Committee, which has exclusive Senate jurisdiction over tax legislation, is considering a House-passed tax-cut bill that includes an amendment to repeal the oil depletion allowance, which is worth an estimated $2.5 billion a year to the oil industry.

In an effort to avoid delay in passage of the antirecession tax-cut bill, the committee has agreed tentatively to delete the provision repealing the depletion allowance.

Common Cause said that more than half the money that went to Gravel was donated after the November election last year. Included was $28,000 from a fund-raising event for Gravel in Dallas last December.

The organization said its figures included contributions only from persons clearly identifiable as having an affiliation with the oil industry.

AID Man, 8 Missionaries Trapped In Highlands City

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Battles raged Tuesday in and around the central highlands capital of Ban Me Thuot, trapping a U.S. Embassy official and eight American missionaries inside the city.

The Saigon command reported its defenders were holding but said six South Vietnamese helicopters and a light observation plane were destroyed at an airstrip just east of the city. It also said a dozen North Vietnamese tanks were put out of action — five at the airstrip and seven in front of City Hall.

It was the heaviest fighting since Communist-led forces captured the provincial capital of Phuoc Binh City, 75 miles north of Saigon, in early January.

In Cambodia, rebel gunners launched their heaviest shelling of Phnom Penh airport in a week, firing 56 rockets and artillery rounds that damaged two domestic airliners, killed five persons and wounded 22. The U.S.-financed emergency airlift continued flying, bringing in 708 tons of rice, the biggest amount since the operation was curtailed last Wednesday, officials said. Thirteen rockets fell in Phnom Penh, killing three persons and wounding seven.

In South Vietnam, North Vietnamese troops and tanks threatened to seize the district town of Tri Tam in the Michelin rubber plantation just 40 miles north of Saigon. "They penetrated the district headquarters from the east," a Saigon command spokesman reported.

He said Viet Cong and North Vietnamese gunners also fired rockets into the large air bases at Da Nang, Pleiku and Bien Hoa, wounding at least eight persons and damaging three aircraft.

Sharp fighting was reported along Route 19, the winding central highlands highway that links Pleiku with the port of Qui Nhon. The command claimed 118 North Vietnamese were killed but did not give figures for government losses.

Thirty miles southwest of Ban Me Thuot, North Vietnamese forces overran the district town of Duc Lap after blasting it and three outposts with 10,000 shells.

The U.S. official at Ban Me Thuot was identified as Paul Struharik, who is with the U.S. Agency for International Development and had been in charge of the refugee and resettlement program in the city.

The eight missionaries are with the Christian and Missionary Alliance and ran the Summer Linguistics Institute in Ban Me Thuot, 155 miles northeast of Saigon. They were engaged in translating parts of the Bible in the language of the Montagnard tribesmen who make up about half of Ban Me Thuot's 160,000 population.

In Nyack, N.Y., headquarters of the alliance, seven of the missionaries were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Richard Phillips of Bloomington, Minn., Mr. and Mrs. Norman Johnson of Hamilton, Ont., Mrs. Archie Mitchell of Bly, Ore., and Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of Houghton, N.Y.

Caucus To Vote On Cambodia Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A policy vote that could determine whether emergency military aid for Cambodia will be approved by the House was scheduled by Democrats Monday for Wednesday morning.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Cambodia has a "reasonable chance" of surviving until the spring rainy season if Congress approves military aid.

Nessen also told newsmen the U.S. government feels the Cambodians must decide for themselves whether to keep President Lon Nol in office.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott had said earlier that America should immediately exert whatever pressure is needed to secure a change in Cambodian government leadership.

The House Democrats are to vote at a special caucus called for Wednesday morning on a resolution opposing any further U.S. military aid to either Cambodia or South Vietnam.

A heavy Democratic policy vote against the military aid would end any hope of House approval of it. A close vote would give the aid a chance for House approval.

Ex-CIA Man Claims Oswald Truthfully Denied Killing JFK

Washington (UPI) — A former CIA official said Monday he had determined with a new lie detector device that Lee Harvey Oswald told the truth when he denied killing President John F. Kennedy.

George O'Toole, author of a new book on the subject, said his conclusions are based on a electronic analysis of voice recordings of Oswald and other figures in the case. The study, he said, shows that perhaps a dozen persons not accused of the crime lied about various aspects of it.

O'Toole, who charged that Oswald was "framed," told a news conference he will have more developments backing up his conspiracy theory "very shortly." At the moment, though, he said he does not know who did kill Kennedy.

But he said he reached the "inescapable" conclusion "that at least some of the people who framed Lee Harvey Oswald were members of the Dallas police."

He said the Warren Commission had no choice but to find Oswald guilty.

"This was a very, very dangerous time in our history," he said. "If the Warren Commission had come in with an open verdict, how many people would have said that Lyndon Johnson did it?"

"President Kennedy was killed by a conspiracy," said O'Toole, former chief of the CIA Problem Analysis Branch. "The man who paid with his life for that crime in the basement of the Dallas City Hall was innocent."

The psychological stress evaluator used by O'Toole in putting together his theory indicates when stress is present in the human voice, and stress, he said, is an indication the speaker is lying.

There was no stress in Oswald's voice, O'Toole said, when Oswald answered "no" to the important question — did he shoot anyone.

"The absence of stress is a sufficient condition of truthfulness . . . Oswald denied shooting anybody — the president, the policeman (J.D. Tippitt), anybody. The psychological stress evaluator said he was telling the truth."

Excerpts from O'Toole's book "The Assassination Tapes," were also published in the April issue of Penthouse magazine.

Ball Thrown To Congress On CIA Foreign Involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegations that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in plots to assassinate foreign leaders should be investigated by a congressional committee, not the Rockefeller commission, presidential Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday.

Nessen said President Ford feels such accusations are outside the scope of the Rockefeller panel, which he has asked to probe charges that the CIA spied on Americans in the United States.

The press secretary made his remarks following reports from two former aides to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy that Kennedy had once blocked a CIA plan to use the Mafia to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

The two former aides, Adam Walinsky and Peter Edelman, issued statements concerning the incident in which they said Kennedy told them he had stopped the CIA plot on Castro.

In 1967, they said, a newspaper column reported that former President John F. Kennedy might have been slain by Cubans in retaliation for the alleged plot against Castro which, the story said, was approved by Robert Kennedy. Thus, the column implied Robert Kennedy might have been indirectly responsible for his brother's death.

"Sen. (Robert) Kennedy was outraged by this column. He revealed to members of his staff that far from approving any plot to assassinate Premier Castro, he had in fact stopped such a plot when he discovered it," Walinsky said.

"I recall that Sen. Kennedy also said something like 'I found out that some people were going to try an attempt on Castro's life and I turned it off,'" added Edelman.

While Nessen said probing such charges would be beyond the scope of the Rockefeller Commission, he added: "It certainly would be appropriate for the Church investigation."

And later he added that Ford "anticipates the Church investigation will get into some of these areas."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, is chairman of the Senate committee investigating the CIA.

In Santo Domingo, Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras, one of the conspirators who assassinated Dominican Republic dictator Rafael L. Trujillo in 1961, said Monday the CIA had no role in the plot.

Imbert Barreras was responding to a statement by former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres, who had declared in an television interview aired in Mexico that he helped the CIA in the effort.

"The CIA did not participate in the action," Imbert Barreras said. "This was a patriotic action on the part of the Dominican people."

Meanwhile, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved the nominations of Nathaniel Davis as assistant secretary of state for African affairs and Harry W. Schlaudeman as ambassador to Venezuela.

There had been opposition to the appointments because of their alleged involvement in covert CIA activities in Chile while both were assigned there prior to the fall of the Salvador Allende government.

New York Times News Summary

Morale Is A Problem

Phnom Penh — The Cambodian government sought to keep the morale of its army and people from deteriorating further as insurgent forces again shelled Phnom Penh, the capital, and its airport, and continued their ground attacks elsewhere. Phnom Penh meanwhile, was flooded with rumors that a government shake-up might be under way in preparation for negotiating a turnover of power to the Communist-led insurgents.

Contact Proposal Said Nixed

Ankara — The State Department was reported to have turned down a proposal by the U.S. Embassy in Phnom Penh to initiate diplomatic contacts with local Communists last spring because they might have interfered with a secret attempt to start negotiations with Prince Sihanouk, the Cambodian leader, who is living in Peking. Sihanouk said Kissinger had made no attempt to get in touch with him during Kissinger's seven visits to Peking. The details of Kissinger's position were given during the secretary of state's visit to Turkey for talks on the Cyprus situation.

House Rejects Ford Cut

Washington — While angry Republican leaders predicted that the projected $52 billion budget deficit would swell to $80 billion, the House rejected President Ford's request for a cut of an additional $1.2 billion from federal programs. A vote of 371 to 17 approved a cutback of only $16.5 million in health education, conservation and job programs. Reps. Robert H. Michel of Illinois, the minority whip, and Elford A. Cederberg of Michigan, the ranking Republican on the appropriations committee pleaded for "fiscal responsibility," but their appeals fell on mostly deaf ears.

Kurds Said Pushed Back

Teheran, Iran — Iraqi armor an infantry units have reportedly pushed Kurdish rebels out of several militarily important mountain areas in the north since the government offensive began there last Friday.

Progress Steady, Uneven

Washington — Cities around the country are making steady but uneven progress in implementing the $1 billion public-service employment program that became law last Dec. 31. Estimates by the Labor Department indicate that nearly 200,000 people have been hired under the program which is intended to provide work for persons laid off in the recession.

N.Y. Gas Utilities Eye Gulf

New York — Three gas utilities in the New York metropolitan area are seeking permission from the state Public Service Commission to invest in a search for new gas supplies in the Gulf of Mexico with $23 million that will be provided by a proposed rate increase.

Reports Downgrade Vitamin C As Cold Remedy

©The New York Times

Washington — Two reports published Monday in the Journal of the American Medical Association conclude that Vitamin C shows little merit in treatment of the common cold.

One report covered a nine-month experiment at the National Institutes of Health in which healthy volunteers took pills daily.

In the other report, a review of many previous studies from 1938 to the present, the authors concluded that use of the vitamin for the common cold "cannot be advocated on the basis of the evidence currently available."

The study done at the NIH Clinical Center showed that the effects of the vitamin on the number of colds "seem to be nil."

This study involved 311 volunteers at the outset of the experiment, about half of whom took three grams of Vitamin C daily while the other half took inert pills. The dose was doubled whenever the volunteer thought a cold infection was getting started. Three grams of the vitamin is roughly as much as one would get from eating 100 oranges.

The intention was to compare the two groups to see whether or not the vitamin had any effect on the number of colds, the duration of those colds that did occur or the severity of the cold symptoms. Analysis of the data, the report said, showed that Vitamin C had "at best only a minor influence on the duration and severity of colds."

Strachan Charges Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica on Monday dismissed Watergate cover-up charges brought more than a year ago against former White House aide Gordon C. Strachan.

Sirica acted at the request of Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth who cited Strachan's "limited role" in the cover-up and "substantial" legal issues in urging that Strachan not be forced to stand trial.

Strachan had been scheduled to stand trial along with John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman and Robert C. Mardian, who were all convicted New Year's Day for their parts in the cover-up.

But a few weeks before the trial began Oct. 1, Sirica agreed that Strachan should be tried separately because of claims by his defense lawyer that earlier promises of immunity from prosecution had been broken.

Means Accused In Murder

Rapid City, S.D. (AP) — American Indian Movement (AIM) leader Russell Means was charged here Monday with murder in the shooting death of a Kyle, S.D., man.

Means, 35, and Richard Marshall, 24, both were charged with murder in the death of Martin Montileaux, 28.

Means' bond was set at $30,000 by Circuit Court Judge Marshall Young. Marshall is being held by Pennington County authorities on $20,000 bond.

Means and Marshall had been held for a week on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, but Montileaux died Friday of a bullet wound suffered March 1 in an incident at a bar in Scenic, S.D.

Young said preliminary hearings will be held for the two men May 1.

Meanwhile, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved the nominations of Nathaniel Davis as assistant secretary of state for African affairs and Harry W. Schlaudeman as ambassador to Venezuela.

There had been opposition to the appointments because of their alleged involvement in covert CIA activities in Chile while both were assigned there prior to the fall of the Salvador Allende government.

New York Times News Summary

Morale Is A Problem

Phnom Penh — The Cambodian government sought to keep the morale of its army and people from deteriorating further as insurgent forces again shelled Phnom Penh, the capital, and its airport, and continued their ground attacks elsewhere. Phnom Penh, meanwhile, was flooded with rumors that a government shake-up might be under way in preparation for negotiating a turnover of power to the Communist-led insurgents.

Contact Proposal Said Nixed

Ankara — The State Department was reported to have turned down a proposal by the U.S. Embassy in Phnom Penh to initiate diplomatic contacts with local Communists last spring because they might have interfered with a secret attempt to start negotiations with Prince Sihanouk, the Cambodian leader, who is living in Peking. Sihanouk said Kissinger had made no attempt to get in touch with him during Kissinger's seven visits to Peking. The details of Kissinger's position were given during the secretary of state's visit to Turkey for talks on the Cyprus situation.

House Rejects Ford Cut

Washington — While angry Republican leaders predicted that the projected $52 billion budget dificit would swell to $80 billion, the House rejected President Ford's request for a cut of an additional $1.2 billion from federal programs. A vote of 371 to 17 approved a cutback of only $16.5 million in health, education, conservation and job programs. Reps. Robert H. Michel of Illinois, the minority whip, and Elford A. Cederberg of Michigan, the ranking Republican on the appropriations committee, pleaded for "fiscal responsibility," but their appeals fell on mostly deaf ears.

Kurds Said Pushed Back

Teheran, Iran — Iraqi armor an infantry units have reportedly pushed Kurdish rebels out of several militarily important mountain areas in the north since the government offensive began there last Friday.

Progress Steady, Uneven

Washington — Cities around the country are making steady but uneven progress in implementing the $1 billion public-service employment program that became law last Dec. 31. Estimates by the Labor Department indicate that nearly 200,000 people have been hired under the program which is intended to provide work for persons laid off in the recession.

Reports Downgrade Vitamin C As Cold Remedy

©The New York Times

Washington — Two reports published Monday in the Journal of the American Medical Association conclude that Vitamin C shows little merit in treatment of the common cold.

One report covered a nine-month experiment at the National Institutes of Health in which healthy volunteers took pills daily.

In the other report, a review of many previous studies from 1938 to the present, the authors concluded that use of the vitamin for the common cold "cannot be advocated on the basis of the evidence currently available."

The study done at the NIH Clinical Center showed that the effects of the vitamin on the number of colds "seem to be nil."

This study involved 311 volunteers at the outset of the experiment, about half of whom took three grams of Citamin C daily while the other half took inert pills. The dose was doubled whenever the volunteer thought a cold infection was getting started. Three grams of the vitamin is roughly as much as one would get from eating 100 oranges.

The intention was to compare the two groups to see whether or not the vitamin had any effect on the number of colds, the duration of those colds that did occur or the severity of the cold symptoms. Analysis of the data, the report said, showed that Vitamin C had "at best only a minor influence on the duration and severity of colds."

Strachan Charges Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica on Monday dismissed Watergate cover-up charges brought more than a year ago against former White House aide Gordon C. Strachan.

Sirica acted at the request of Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth who cited Strachan's "limited role" in the cover-up and "substantial" legal issues in urging that Strachan not be forced to stand trial.

Strachan had been scheduled to stand trial along with John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman and Robert C. Mardian, who were all convicted New Year's Day for their parts in the cover-up.

But a few weeks before the trial began Oct. 1, Sirica agreed that Strachan should be tried separately because of claims by his defense lawyer that earlier promises of immunity from prosecution had been broken.

Means Accused In Murder

Rapid City, S.D. (AP) — American Indian Movement (AIM) leader Russell Means was charged here Monday with murder in the shooting death of a Kyle, S.D., man.

Means, 35, and Richard Marshall, 24, both were charged with murder in the death of Martin Montileaux, 28.

Means' bond was set at $30,000 by Circuit Court Judge Marshall Young. Marshall is being held by Pennington County authorities on $20,000 bond.

Means and Marshall had been held for a week on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, but Montileaux died Friday of a bullet wound suffered March 1 in an incident at a bar in Scenic, S.D.

Young said preliminary hearings will be held for the two men May 1.

Council OKs Agreements With Cable TV Firm

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council approved a trio of agreements Monday with the new owners of Lincoln's cable television system despite several pleas to delay action.

The council hammered out the agreements in another lengthy discussion which resulted in transfer of the community antenna television (CATV) franchise and transfer of capital stock of TV Transmission, Inc., to Cable Vision Investors of Denver Inc Another agreement deals with creating a public access channel and renegotiation provisions.

The council also approved a rate hike which eventually could increase a single subscriber's monthly bill from $4.95 to $6.50.

Deadline Set

The Denver-based firm has signed an agreement with Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. to purchase TV Transmission Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of LT&T. The two firms set a Saturday deadline to complete the transfer. To meet that deadline the council had to take action on the agreements Monday

Members of a group called the Media Access Project (MAP) urged the council to delay action until the council takes a closer look at the entire financial package involved in the transfer.

MAP members Ron Kurtenbach's and John Pokorny's repeated accusations that the Denver company would be using the cable system as a tax shelter and would be milking money from Lincoln citizens prompted a sharp response from Councilman Steve Cook.

Said Cook, "All you're saying is this is a dirty corporation which is only in there for profit. And I'm getting a little sick of hearing this."

Censorship Feared

Kurtenbach also voiced fears that a CATV advisory board created to set up rules on the use of the public and government access channels would turn into a censorship board.

Councilman John Robinson pointed out that the role and membership of the committee will be spelled out at a later date

The new owners of the system have pledged they will work with interested groups on programming and make available the type of programs which will appeal to the community

Cable Vision President John Saeman said, "We either have to be responsive to the entire community or we re not going to make it."

In Third Of Homes

Saeman noted that the cable system currently is being bought by a third of the potential market in Lincoln Out of 56,000 dwellings in the city, there are 18,000 subscribers.

The council and respresentatives of Cable Vision reached agreement on several other matters, including a provision setting up franchise renegotiation sessions every three years The council agreed that either the city or the company may bring up topics to be discussed

Renegotiation topics will include the rate structure, free or discounted services, programming offered, services provided, customer complaints, privacy and human rights and amendments to the ordinance itself

Other topics may be added to the discussion list if 50 or more people who are qualified electors of the city sign petitions making such a request.

City's Lawmakers Like Plans To Channel Neighborhood Aid

Lincoln city lawmakers said Monday they liked the way a task force is proposing to disperse some $486,000 in federal dollars to clean up Lincoln neighborhoods.

The City Council approved without changes an application for community development money and a one-year program aimed at renovating older areas of town

The initial funding package is part of an estimated $8.9 million gift in federal dollars which may be poured into Lincoln over the next five years.

Most For Clinton

The proposed one-year community redevelopment program proposes to channel the lion's share of that $486,000 into the Clinton neighborhood.

That program is aimed at eliminating slums by encouraging various programs available for home repairs, making street and sidewalk improvements and hiring several staff people, such as an environmental health officer.

The program, which was compiled by a 22-member Community Development Task Force, will be forwarded to the Department of Housing and Urban Development

Community Development Director Leo Scherer pointed out that some $107,000 will go into projects in other neighborhoods to finance attitude surveys and to use as "seed money" to finance improvements.

Initially some task force members had criticized the city administration's plan to divert most of the first year money into Clinton.

Test Neighborhood

However, Jack Kerry, a consultant hired by the city to help prepare the application, said Clinton will be the guinea pig for various programs Based on Clinton's track record, Kerry said the programs will be adapted to other Lincoln neighborhoods.

A member of the 22-member advisory panel, Jacqui Herman, suggested that the council required periodic progress reports from Scherer to insure that the programs are being carried out

She also said that the committee was hampered by outdated housing figures in preparing the application and suggested that more current date be gathered

In a related matter, the council unanimously created the city's first neighborhood improvement district to pave the streets in the Clinton area.

The council approved a 75% city subsidy of all costs for putting in the paving. Property owners usually are assessed the full cost for such improvements.

The paving program is part of the city's Phase I plans to rejuvenate that north Lincoln neighborhood.

'Successful Aging' Topic For Classes At Madonna

A series of classes aimed at "Successful Aging" is being sponsored by Madonna Professional Care Center

The two-hour classes will be held on four successive Wednesdays at 7 30 p.m. in the center's auditorium at 2200 S. 52nd.

Wednesday, the staff of Lincoln Information Services for the Elderly (LIFE) will present an overview of services available to older individuals and their families.

Dr Eugene R Schwenke will present his perspective on physical aging and discuss common physical disorders and diseases March 19.

April 2, Kaye Schaefer, registered occupational therapist at Madonna, will discuss activities of daily living, reality orientation and sensory stimulation.

The final session on April 9 will feature Sheryl Schrepf, who will discuss the feelings and positions of the older person's family members in today's society

Action Delayed On Amendment Requiring City Adoption Of Plan

The City delayed action Monday on placing a charter amendment on the May city ballot requiring council adoption of the Comprehensive Plan.

The lawmakers postponed action until the Legislature makes a decision on LB111, which would require the council and County Board to adopt the plan.

Currently, approval power is vested in the advisory City-County Planning Commission, a nine-member body which is updating the Comprehensive Plan.

Amendment Sought

The council and mayor are seeking an amendment to the bill to clarify what would happen should either the City Council or County Board fail to approve the plan. In such a case, city officials want the plan as approved by the planning commission to take effect Another suggestion is to set a deadline for the governmental bodies to take action

The council was urged to place the issue on the spring ballot by Karl Dickinson, chairman of the advisory Charter Revision Commission The commission believes the elected officials should be responsible for the plan, Dickinson said.

The commission also endorsed a proposal requiring the council to reconfirm the plan every two years However, the group is recommending that the council enact such a requirement by ordinance, instead of placing that language change in the amendment itself

Councilman Max Denney, who has led the fight for council adoption of the Comprehensive Plan, was out of town Monday.

Benefits Opposed

In other business, the council joined Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf in opposing a proposed legislation increasing retirement benefits for Lincoln police officers and firefighters.

City Finance Director James Mallon said LB189 could cost the city as much as $1 8 million per year above current police and fire pension bills

The measure, proposed by Lincoln Sen Wally Barnett, would allow policeman and firemen to be eligible for retirement at 50 instead of 55, as is the case now

The bill also provides increased benefits to policemen and firemen who chose to continue working beyond 50 years of age.

The council and mayor also supported one section of Sen. Steve Fowler s LB175, guaranteeing police and fire pensioners a minimum monthly benefit of $200

Mallon reported that it would cost the city $63 000 if the $200 minimum were set

The officials will seek amendments to that bill in an attempt to eliminate the section linking police and fire retirement benefits to the annual cost of living index

Mallon said it could cost the city as much as an additional $1 million each year if those benefits were tied to a 6 - cost of living increase

O St. Beautifying Said Extravagant

City Council members saw red Monday over a proposal that the city foot 80'- of the $1 9 million bill for beautifying downtown O St

The council will hold a special meeting next Monday to discuss ways to economize on the street beautification plan

Councilman Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta called the plan for O St extravagant — unless downtown property owners want to pay more of the cost

The issue arose when Public Works Director Bob Obering reported that the O St Task Force recommended downtowners be charged $130 a front foot for the project That s $70 less a foot than what Obering recommended

$200 Said Too High

The property owners on the committee contend that the $200 price tag is too high because they already are paying bills for street lights and will have to foot extra costs in the O St project

Specifically, the businessmen say the city should pay for relocating $255 000 worth of utilities in O St from 9th to 16th Obering proposed to charge the businessmen for the relocation of traffic signal cabels water mains and natural gas lines uprooted by rows of trees which would be planted along the street

And the size of those trees became an issue The task force and its parent Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC) want larger, eight-inch diameter trees planted in double rows along O St to give a park-like affect.

Cost Much More

Council members pointed out that larger trees cost a lot more money and are harder to keep alive when transplanted

Cook who is one of two council representatives on DAC took pot shots at the O St plan which was designed by architect Deon Bahr for $5 000 The Lincoln Center Development Association a businessmen's group, paid for the design work

Cook, an architect himself, said he could see ways to cut down on the proposed $1 5 city bill by cutting down the size of the trees and using cheaper materials in constructing 'fancy' sidewalks

Councilwoman Sue Bailey the other DAC member was astounded by Cook s comments

"Why didn t you raise any of these questions before" she asked Cook said he did, but received no answers

Sikyta s comment that he didn t think the community wanted such a grandiose plan downtown prompted Councilwoman Bailey to inquire if he was content with a bunch of flower pots on O St"

Council Must Pay

If the city really is committed to downtown revitalization she said then the council is going to have to pay the price

It s going to cost money" she said noting that the city already has p id $84 000 for a downtown study of which O St beautification is one part

Cook countered that he believed economies in the plan can be made without sacrificing the beautification effort on O St

Councilman Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta called the plan for O St. extravagant — unless downtown property owners want to pay more of the cost.

The issue arose when Public Works Director Bob Obering reported that the O St. Task Force recommended downtowners be charged $130 a front foot for the project. That's $70 less a foot than what Obering recommended.

$200 Said Too High

The property owners on the committee contend that the $200 price tag is too high because they already are paying bills for street lights and will have to foot extra costs in the O St. project.

Specifically, the businessmen say the city should pay for relocating $255,000 worth of utilities in O St. from 9th to 16th. Obering proposed to charge the businessmen for the relocation of traffic signal cabels, water mains and natural gas lines uprooted by rows of trees which would be planted along the street.

And the size of those trees became an issue. The task force and its parent Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC) want larger, eight-inch diameter trees planted in double rows along O St. to give a park-like affect.

Cost Much More

Council members pointed out that larger trees cost a lot more money and are harder to keep alive when transplanted.

Cook, who is one of two council representatives on DAC, took pot shots at the O St. plan, which was designed by architect Deon Bahr for $5,000. The Lincoln Center Development Association, a businessmen's group, paid for the design work.

Cook, an architect himself, said he could see ways to cut down on the proposed $1.5 city bill by cutting down the size of the trees and using cheaper materials in constructing "fancy" sidewalks.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey, the other DAC member, was astounded by Cook's comments.

"Why didn't you raise any of these questions before," she asked. Cook said he did, but received no answers.

Sikyta's comment that he didn't think the community wanted such a grandiose plan downtown, prompted Councilwoman Bailey to inquire if he was "content with a bunch of flower pots on O St.?"

Council Must Pay

If the city really is committed to downtown revitalization, she said, then the council is going to have to pay the price.

"It's going to cost money," she said, noting that the city already has paid $84,000 for a downtown study, of which O St. beautification is one part.

Cook countered that he believed economies in the plan can be made without sacrificing the beautification effort on O St.

Steel Production Rises In Week, Lags For Year

New York (AP) — Domestic steel production last week was higher than the previous week, but total production so far this year lags sharply behind a year ago, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported.

Total production last week was 2.78 million net tons, an increase of 2.3% over 2.72 million tons the week before.

The weekly index of production, with 100 equal to the 1967 weekly average, was 114.2, compared with 111.6 the prior week.

Season Fast Approaching

The Monday Star's Home-Family feature on gardening couldn't have come at a better time — with hopes of spring momentarily dashed by a new 2-4 inch snowfall.

The stories about planning the garden and buying seed for the upcoming growing season, the how-tos, wheres and don'ts of gardening and canning and an encouraging story about the possibility of an open market for produce propel one's thought above and beyond the abundant piles of snow, the slushy streets and the gray skies of this latest spiteful counterattack by retreating winter.

More Americans, more Nebraskans than ever before, it is estimated, will try their hands at gardening this year. Many because they have always loved to grow their own produce — it's a way of life for them — others because they figure it will save them money (it might) and some because gardening has become a socially-acceptable leisure time endeavor — sort of an "in" thing.

We hope those who are getting into it for the first time will find gardening enjoyable. It's an excellent family activity but it's just as good for people who live alone. It is a productive and enjoyable way to spend time.

When it seems like you're losing ground to an encroaching army of weeds, however, and when the hot August winds boil the juices out of your pathetic little vegetables, when you overcompensate by overwatering your vine crops and the vines start to rot, when it's so hot the sweet corn won't pollinate and there are no kernels on the ears, when the cucumbers are warped, stunted and yellow, if drought stalks Nebraska this summer and turns your plot into the Sahara, when the Lincoln water bills arrive — then you may have second thoughts, and you'll know what the farmer goes through and you can agonize with him, except your investment won't be nearly as great.

But a harvest, any harvest, makes it worthwhile — except for those misguided souls who thought the vegetables pictured on the seed packages would jump from the garden into the kitchen without any effort on their part. The results may not be picture-perfect; the produce may not be as deeply-colored or as crisp or as firm or as full-bodied as you had hoped and there will be more work involved than you imagined. But if time and effort put something on the table you can claim as your own, it's cause for thanksgiving nevertheless.

The Lancaster County Extension Office has scheduled a March 27th meeting to launch its youth gardening program and the City Parks and Recreation Department is offering a six-weeks course in spring and summer gardening beginning April 1. Beginners should check out these programs.

An especially interesting development is the extension office's plans for developing an open market for people to sell surplus produce and for non-gardeners to buy fresh vegetables. The open market idea apparently has worked well in other cities and could add another dimension to the gardening scene in Lincoln.

And the season is upon us. Although there is still an ample snow cover and today's forecast calls for a chance of more snow, it is really only a matter of days until the seeds for the early crops can be put in the ground — the ground willing.

. . . And The Deadline, Too

Interest has started to pick up in the spring city elections. The primary is April 8 and the general election a month later.

There will be a mayoral election, with incumbent Sam Schwartzkopf bidding for a third term and challenged thus far by Jo Bragg and City Council President Helen Boosalis.

Four seats on the City Council are open, with only two incumbents thus far declaring their intentions to run for re-election. There are three vacancies on the Lincoln Board of Education and at this point only one incumbent is asking for another term.

We say that interest is picking up because of several announcements of intentions and a few trial balloons having been floated over the past few days.

But there hasn't exactly been a stampede to the filing counter.

Running a serious campaign, with victory in mind, requires a little time, especially if a candidate hasn't had his or her name on the ballot before. And time is getting short.

The filing deadline is March 19 — just a little over a week away.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

Your Legislature is remarkably open.

We've begun to take it for granted by now, but the fact remains that your Legislature operates in a fish bowl, where you can watch it function — either in person or through the eyes of the press, radio and television.

And the 49 state senators should be commended for keeping the process out in the open for all to see. They could close great portions of their operation by simple amendment of their rules, and they could sharply limit media coverage by the same simple process.

Morning sessions of the Legislature are wide open to public view. You can watch it from the balconies. You can see televised highlights on ETV that evening. You can view the process through the eyes of the press, whose representatives have almost unrestricted (except on final reading) contact with the senators on the floor.

Afternoon committee meetings are open to the public. You can watch and listen. You can come and testify.

And even the executive sessions which follow public hearings are open to full coverage by the press. No senatorial conversation leading up to a committee decision is off-the-record. Every senator's vote is recorded, and available for publication.

Not too long ago, the executive session discussion and individual senatorial votes were off-the-record. Newsmen could listen, but they could report only committee action and the cumulative vote totals.

At least once, that produced a memorable motion from one senator to advance a bill to the floor "on a 5-3 vote." That motion was adopted unanimously.

Now each senator must vote his convictions — or at least be prepared to defend his position since it is a matter of public record.

There were some senatorial concerns when the executive session discussions were opened to press coverage.

Sometimes a senator may let his language stray or allow his remarks to become a little too personal in that informal atmosphere. There were some fears that the press might consider those incidents to be newsworthy. But that has not happened.

Now the on-the-record character of executive sessions has become so accepted that no senator even suggested that the rules be altered in that regard this year.

Not only are this Legislature's processes open on a day-to-day basis, but the record of its transactions is preserved for future study. In this Legislature, a senator's words can live to haunt him.

Floor deliberations are taped and transcribed. Committee hearings are taped and transcribed.

Don't mislead yourself into believing that's the case in all the other states.

Dave Tews, perhaps the most thorough, effective and successful lobbyist in Nebraska, can tell you about his efforts to track down legislative deliberations in other states. More often than not, the record is incomplete or does not exist, or it has become the private property of some retired committee chairman.

The crucial decisions cannot be traced at all — for they took place behind the locked doors of a two-house conference committee.

It was the powerful, secret conference committees which turned George Norris off on a two-house legislative session, leading him to champion the unicameral system for Nebraska.

How about the checks and balances of the two-house system? Norris was asked. "As a matter of practice, it has developed frequently that, through the conference committee, the politicians have the checks and the special interests the balances," he replied.

The unicameral system itself makes for an open Legislature.

Instead of a couple hundred senators and assemblymen to keep track of, the public has 49 senators to hold accountable in Nebraska. With that few legislators, it is easy to see what each does and judge his talents. Nobody is lost in the pile.

Is it easier for a lobbyist to deal with 49 senators than with a couple of hundred in two houses?

No. And there's a good reason.

The other state legislatures are partisan bodies, guided by majority and minority leaders, by whips and floor leaders and all that jazz.

If you convince a couple of majority party leaders that your bill is worthy, you may automatically pick up enough votes to see it enacted.

Or if you can convince the majority of the members of a conference committee (perhaps three legislators) to write or rewrite a bill to your liking, you've got it made.

In Nebraska, you need 25 senators. You must convince a majority of the 49 independent-minded legislators to get your way.

"You have to contact each senator, and discuss the issue as it pertains to his or her district," Tews points out.

"Your presentation must be based on facts, rather than political implications. I think that is as it should be."

It's a great system we have — a non-partisan one-house legislature, wide open to viewing by the public and the press.

Now if we only began to pay the senators other than subsistence wages.

ANTHONY LEWIS

A Test Of The December Decision

WASHINGTON — For the last dozen years, through assassinations and endless wars and Watergate, some of us have been telling the skeptics that there is an American system worth preserving. In the end, we said, democracy will work. The men of violence, the totalitarians, the anarchists are all wrong. Reject their evil counsel: have faith.

It will be extremely hard to maintain that faith if Congress gives way to the Ford administration's campaign of pressure for extra arms aid to Cambodia. For there has probably never been a weaker case — a more empty one — for continued American intervention in a foreign civil war. If Congress does not have the courage to say no this time, when will the system work?

Last December, just three months ago, Congress made an extraordinarily explicit decision about the U.S. role in Cambodia. It put a ceiling on all aid, for the stated purpose of limiting American involvement. Absolutely nothing has happened since then that the Pentagon had not anticipated and fully argued, including the annual dry-season offensive by the Khmer Rouge. So Congress is effectively being asked to say that its December decision was frivolous.

Nor is there any rational ground of policy or law or security to send more American arms to the failing Lon Nol government in Phnom Penh. That conclusion is plain if one studies not only the words of the critics but the admirably honest testimony of that tough old Indochina hand who is assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs, Philip Habib. These points emerge:

(1) There is no legal U.S. commitment to Lon Nol: no treaty, no agreement, no congressional resolution. Indeed, Congress, in voting aid previously, wrote into law that it did not constitute a commitment.

(2) We have no illusions about Lon Nol; as Habib wryly put it, his is not the most effective government extant.

(3) Even those who still believe in the domino theory cannot claim that Lon Nol's fall would have such effects; Habib said it would not, for example, "make much difference" to the fighting in South Vietnam.

(4) Cambodia is not crucial to American security.

(5) There is no assurance that additional American aid would affect the eventual outcome of the war, which the Cambodians opposed to Lon Nol have virtually won.

(6) Nor is there any assurance that delaying the military end would lead to a negotiated settlement. There are no negotiations at hand, nor any stated reason to expect them.

In light of those facts, more American military aid — if it has any effect — can only prolong the agony of Cambodia. It is an agony that the United States brought on the Cambodians in the first place, five years ago, dragging them cruelly and unnecessarily into the Indochina war.

American officials in Phnom Penh have advised Washington that the military situation has deteriorated past the point of return. The only practical question remaining, they say, is whether power can be transferred from Lon Nol in a relatively non-violent and orderly way.

President Ford, in arguing for more military aid at his news conference the other night, spoke of "humanitarian" concerns. His argument would have delighted George Orwell. For it was Newspeak right out of "1984."

Ford talked of food and medicine. But not a penny of the $222 million in extra funds he sought for Cambodia is for food or medicine. All of it is for arms and ammunition.

We do have one legitimate humanitarian concern in Cambodia now and Congress can rightfully want to express it. That is to get out of the country those leaders, including Lon Nol, who have relied on us and cannot properly be abandoned to the Khmer Rouge.

That concern moved Rep. Paul McCloskey, after his trip to Indochina, to suggest that we continue aid until June — to let our friends get out — and then definitely end the American role. The trouble with the McCloskey idea, as he really knows, is that the administration will only be back for more in June. If we want to evacuate people, as Sen. Mike Mansfield has asked, why not do it now?

The seriousness of Congress' claim to an equal voice in government is bound to be judged by the Cambodian decision. There can be no excuse of political obligation. The people who elected this Congress were not for more aid to Cambodia. The spotlight will be on the courage of such key individuals as Hubert Humphrey, chairman of the Senate Foreign Aid Subcommittee.

Humphrey and other pivotal figures in Congress recognize the realities in Cambodia now — their comments at the hearings make that clear. Their unfettered choice would surely be to vote aid only for genuine humanitarian needs — food and medicine — and to help in the orderly transfer of power.

But there is a political worry on Capitol Hill: that the Ford administration will blame Congress for "losing Cambodia." And so, in the end, the question in these next two weeks of decision will be Congress' courage and will — which is to say, a question of faith in the system.

TOM WICKER

An 'Inappropriate' Policy

NEW YORK — At his news conference, President Ford said it would be "inappropriate" for him to comment on almost everything he was asked about, except the necessity for the Democrats in Congress to send more military aid to the Lon Nol regime in Cambodia. Just why it was "inappropriate" for the man who pardoned Richard Nixon to say whether Nixon could again become a Republican Party leader was among many things Ford left unclear.

What was most "inappropriate" about his remarks, however, was one thing he did state clearly — that if Congress will only provide $222 million in military aid to Lon Nol, his government can survive, a negotiated settlement can be had, and a "bloodbath" can be avoided in Cambodia. None of those things is likely to happen, even if Congress provides the money right away.

Reports by Sydney Schanberg to the New York Times make it clear that high American embassy officials in Phnom Penh do not believe $222 million will enable Lon Nol's inept and corrupt regime to survive; it controls little now except the capital city, and even there the insurgents are shelling the airport at will. Nor do these officials have much hope that a negotiated settlement can be had between an adversary so nearly victorious and a "government" without even a supply line.

These views are shared, moreover, by high officials in the Ford administration, including Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger. But official judgments here and on the ground in Southeast Asia have been wrong before, and these could be too. It may be argued, therefore, that Congress ought to provide aid on the solid moral ground that if there is any chance at all to avoid the "bloodbath" Ford predicted, that chance ought to be seized.

The trouble with that is the bloodbath now going on. It may be that the collapse of the Lon Nol regime would lead to the calculated slaughter of many Cambodians, although bloodbath theories have been advanced so often to justify disastrous policies in Southeast Asia that some skepticism is in order. But it is certain that $222 million in military aid to Lon Nol would prolong the vicious fighting, the shelling, burning, pillaging, the starvation and wandering, the ruination of the Cambodian countryside and the destruction of its once placid society. As between the possibility of one kind of bloodbath and the terrible presence of another, there is not much moral choice.

Ford also suggested there was some kind of commitment of national honor to "our friends in Indochina" that the United States could not violate without shaming itself. That may have some validity as regards the Thieu regime in South Vietnam, which appears to have been arm-twisted into reluctant acceptance of Henry Kissinger's Paris agreements by assurances of American military support — for how long and to what extent, the American people and the Nobel Peace Prize committee have not been told.

But what national commitments, even in secret, have been made to Lon Nol? What popular or political backing does he have that the United States is honor-bound to sustain? At least, in South Vietnam, a vigorous sentiment exists that does not want and actively resists a government dominated by Hanoi; in Cambodia, according to the most reliable reports, a basically apolitical people primarily wants an end to the war.

Ford also put forward the political argument that if the United States did not send further aid to Lon Nol, "the aggressor" would believe that "it can win its objectives on the battlefield" and "we will be saying to all the world that war pays." The point is made less melodramatically by other high officials — and it appears to be the real rationale for the Ford administration's fixation on more aid to Cambodia — that the collapse of Lon Nol matters less than that it be seen to have resulted from his own ineptitude, rather than that it appear to be the result of American abandonment.

This Cambodian version of the old Vietnamese war thesis — that the United States has to prove and keep on proving that it will stand up against communist aggression — may be hard-nosed geopolitics, but it is also a statement that the war must go on in Cambodia for American purposes. It is an argument that, having mistakenly identified our interests with those of a corrupt and rootless regime, and having brought open warfare to Cambodia with the misbegotten "incursion" of 1970, we must prolong a war that destroys another country rather than conceding these errors or ameliorating their consequences.

"We seek to stop the bloodshed and end the horror and the tragedy that we see on television as rockets are fired wantonly into Phnom Penh," Gerald Ford told the American people. The way to do that is to end the war. A policy of more American aid to keep it going is only one more way of trying to save American face, project a tough American image to the world, and maintain the American myth that the United States can make its will prevail wherever it tries.

Jes' Keep Those Rolls A-Rollin'

NEW YORK — The thing to remember about depressions is that you just can't trust 'em, and this one's no different. Bad as things are most everywhere, hard times have yet to hit Easy Street.

Uptown, things are strictly one-way: booming. Folks who peddle the luxury goodies report they are having a bang-up year. And the higher the price tags, the higher the curve on the sales charts.

Limousines . . . yachts . . . million-dollar apartments . . . jewels . . . round-the-world cruises — the little niceties that make life pleasant for the super-rich — are being snapped up like scarves on a bargain-basement table.

It's crazy, and the boys with the business graphs can't explain it. But there it is.

So many of us common folks have stopped buying automobiles, Detroit is in a near-panic. But in the past two months, 26,965 customers have plunked out almost $10,000, give or take a few dollars, for a new Cadillac.

And it's smiles all around the Rolls-Royce headquarters. Those lengendary beauties, in case you haven't bothered to inquire lately, run anywhere from $30,000 to $50,000. (That's each.)

Nationally, Rolls sales are 17% ahead of last year. Which wasn't bad either; one eastern agency alone sold 28 new models. R-R is so keyed up it's bringing out an "expensive" model: for $70,200. And 220 buyers have already signed up.

Then, of course, there's the lady from California who dropped into a used Rolls-Royce dealer's in London and ordered up seven. Plus two new Bentleys. And when the goggle-eyed dealer added up her tab, she nonchalantly handed over $92,000. In cash.

Yachts are a hot item, too. Fancy 60-footers are still going for $300,000 and old salts with fat bank accounts are still going for them. Younger scions have latched on to private planes. The up line on the charts is already higher than last year. Salesmen don't have time to figure out why; they're too busy scribbling orders.

And in a new super-luxurious highrise in Manhattan, an American executive paid $400,000 for a tiny, bedroom apartment . . . a foreign banker took two, for more than $1 million . . . and the $600,000 duplexes are going fast.

Don't believe everything you hear about Americans canceling trips to Europe, either. That's your average if-it's-Tuesday-it-must-be-Belgium tourist. The folks who go first-class are already getting their shots.

A recent round-the-world cruise sold out early, and the $100,000 suites were the easiest to sell. Bookings for chartered yachts in Greece are ahead of last year — expecially the ones where you can play Aristotle Onassis, at $3,000 a day.

Ditto for the jewelry business, profits this year are brighter than an eight-carat sparkler, and some of the fancier shops are still breathing hard over a "fabulous" Christmas.

Tiffany's, where an everyday $325,000 emerald gets no big display (they save that for the million-dollar baubles), says business so far is 20% ahead of last year and they are happy to note that the really, truly rich have not lost faith in the economy.

On the other hand, one of the world's richest has just gotten bailed out of the red. Queen Elizabeth had to ask parliament for a cost-of-living raise to pay all her butlers, footmen, coachmen, grooms and assorted retainers. She even offered to pay with $358,000 of her own money to keep the palaces running.

Well, the good lads did the gentlemanly thing; they came across with a little something extra in Her Highness' pay envelope: another $648,000 a year. That puts her back with the rest of the super-rich, who have problems, but money isn't one of them.

Floor deliberations are taped and transcribed. Committee hearings are taped and transcribed.

Don't mislead yourself into believing that's the case in all the other states.

Dave Tews, perhaps the most thorough, effective and successful lobbyist in Nebraska, can tell you about his efforts to track down legislative deliberations in other states. More often than not, the record is incomplete or does not exist, or it has become the private property of some retired committee chairman.

The crucial decisions cannot be traced at all — for they took place behind the locked doors of a two-house conference committee.

It was the powerful, secret conference committees which turned George Norris off on a two-house legislative session, leading him to champion the unicameral system for Nebraska.

How about the checks and balances of the two-house system? Norris was asked. "As a matter of practice, it has developed frequently that, through the conference committee, the politicians have the checks and the special interests the balances," he replied.

The unicameral system itself makes for an open Legislature.

Instead of a couple hundred senators and assemblymen to keep track of, the public has 49 senators to hold accountable in Nebraska. With that few legislators, it is easy to see what each does and judge his talents. Nobody is lost in the pile.

Is it easier for a lobbyist to deal with 49 senators than with a couple of hundred in two houses?

No. And there's a good reason.

The other state legislatures are partisan bodies, guided by majority and minority leaders, by whips and floor leaders and all that jazz.

If you convince a couple of majority party leaders that your bill is worthy, you may automatically pick up enough votes to see it enacted.

Or if you can convince the majority of the members of a conference committee (perhaps three legislators) to write or rewrite a bill to your liking, you've got it made.

In Nebraska, you need 25 senators. You must convince a majority of the 49 independent-minded legislators to get your way.

"You have to contact each senator, and discuss the issue as it pertains to his or her district," Tews points out.

"Your presentation must be based on facts, rather than political implications. I think that is as it should be."

It's a great system we have — a non-partisan one-house legislature, wide open to viewing by the public and the press.

Now if we only began to pay the senators other than subsistence wages.

ANTHONY LEWIS

A Test Of The December Decision

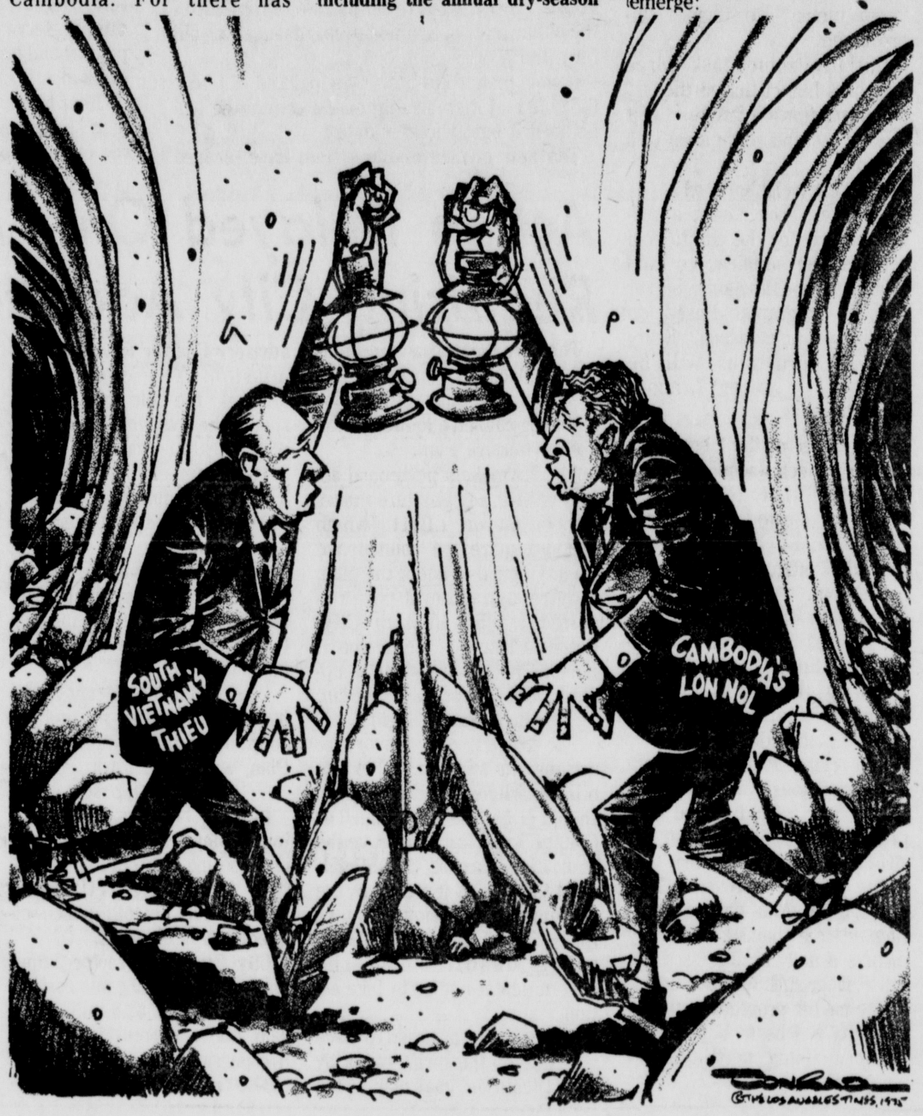

WASHINGTON — For the last dozen years, through assassinations and endless wars and Watergate, some of us have been telling the skeptics that there is an American system worth preserving. In the end, we said, democracy will work. The men of violence, the totalitarians, the anarchists are all wrong. Reject their evil counsel; have faith.

It will be extremely hard to maintain that faith if Congress gives way to the Ford administration's campaign of pressure for extra arms aid to Cambodia. For there has probably never been a weaker case — a more empty one — for continued American intervention in a foreign civil war. If Congress does not have the courage to say no this time, when will the system work?

Last December, just three months ago, Congress made an extraordinarily explicit decision about the U.S. role in Cambodia. It put a ceiling on all aid, for the stated purpose of limiting American involvement. Absolutely nothing has happened since then that the Pentagon had not anticipated and fully argued, including the annual dry-season offensive by the Khmer Rouge. So Congress is effectively being asked to say that its December decision was frivolous.

Nor is there any rational ground of policy or law or security to send more American arms to the failing Lon Nol government in Phnom Penh. That conclusion is plain if one studies not only the words of the critics but the admirably honest testimony of that tough old Indochina hand who is assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs, Philip Habib. These points emerge:

(1) There is no legal U.S. commitment to Lon Nol: no treaty, no agreement, no congressional resolution. Indeed, Congress, in voting aid previously, wrote into law that it did not constitute a commitment.

(2) We have no illusions about Lon Nol; as Habib wryly put it, his is not the most effective government extant.

(3) Even those who still believe in the domino theory cannot claim that Lon Nol's fall would have such effects; Habib said it would not, for example, "make much difference" to the fighting in South Vietnam.

(4) Cambodia is not crucial to American security.

(5) There is no assurance that additional American aid would affect the eventual outcome of the war, which the Cambodians opposed to Lon Nol have virtually won.

(6) Nor is there any assurance that delaying the military end would lead to a negotiated settlement. There are no negotiations at hand, nor any stated reason to expect them.

In light of those facts, more American military aid — if it has any effect — can only prolong the agony of Cambodia. It is an agony that the United States brought on the Cambodians in the first place, five years ago, dragging them cruelly and unnecessarily into the Indochina war.

American officials in Phnom Penh have advised Washington that the military situation has deteriorated past the point of return. The only practical question remaining, they say, is whether power can be transferred from Lon Nol in a relatively non-violent and orderly way.

President Ford, in arguing for more military aid at his news conference the other night, spoke of "humanitarian" concerns. His argument would have delighted George Orwell. For it was Newspeak right out of "1984."

Ford talked of food and medicine. But not a penny of the $222 million in extra funds he sought for Cambodia is for food or medicine. All of it is for arms and ammunition.

We do have one legitimate humanitarian concern in Cambodia now and Congress can rightfully want to express it. That is to get out of the country those leaders, including Lon Nol, who have relied on us and cannot properly be abandoned to the Khmer Rouge.

That concern moved Rep. Paul McCloskey, after his trip to Indochina, to suggest that we continue aid until June — to let our friends get out — and then definitely end the American role. The trouble with the McCloskey idea, as he really knows, is that the administration will only be back for more in June. If we want to evacuate people, as Sen. Mike Mansfield has asked, why not do it now?

The seriousness of Congress' claim to an equal voice in government is bound to be judged by the Cambodian decision. There can be no excuse of political obligation. The people who elected this Congress were not for more aid to Cambodia. The spotlight will be on the courage of such key individuals as Hubert Humphrey, chairman of the Senate Foreign Aid Subcommittee.

Humphrey and other pivotal figures in Congress recognize the realities in Cambodia now — their comments at the hearings make that clear. Their unfettered choice would surely be to vote aid only for genuine humanitarian needs — food and medicine — and to help in the orderly transfer of power.

But there is a political worry on Capitol Hill: that the Ford administration will blame Congress for "losing Cambodia." And so, in the end, the question in these next two weeks of decision will be Congress' courage and will — which is to say, a question of faith in the system.

TOM WICKER

An 'Inappropriate' Policy

NEW YORK — At his news conference, President Ford said it would be "inappropriate" for him to comment on almost everything he was asked about, except the necessity for the Democrats in Congress to send more military aid to the Lon Nol regime in Cambodia. Just why it was "inappropriate" for the man who pardoned Richard Nixon to say whether Nixon could again become a Republican Party leader was among many things Ford left unclear.

What was most "inappropriate" about his remarks, however, was one thing he did state clearly — that if Congress will only provide $222 million in military aid to Lon Nol, his government can survive, a negotiated settlement can be had, and a "bloodbath" can be avoided in Cambodia. None of those things is likely to happen, even if Congress provides the money right away.

Reports by Sydney Schanberg to the New York Times make it clear that high American embassy officials in Phnom Penh do not believe $222 million will enable Lon Nol's inept and corrupt regime to survive; it controls little now except the capital city, and even there the insurgents are shelling the airport at will. Nor do these officials have much hope that a negotiated settlement can be had between an adversary so nearly victorious and a "government" without even a supply line.

These views are shared, moreover, by high officials in the Ford administration, including Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger. But official judgments here and on the ground in Southeast Asia have been wrong before, and these could be too. It may be argued, therefore, that Congress ought to provide aid on the solid moral ground that if there is any chance at all to avoid the "bloodbath" Ford predicted, that chance ought to be seized.

The trouble with that is the bloodbath now going on. It may be that the collapse of the Lon Nol regime would lead to the calculated slaughter of many Cambodians, although bloodbath theories have been advanced so often to justify disastrous policies in Southeast Asia that some skepticism is in order. But it is certain that $222 million in military aid to Lon Nol would prolong the vicious fighting, the shelling, burning, pillaging, the starvation and wandering, the ruination of the Cambodian countryside and the destruction of its once placid society. As between the possibility of one kind of bloodbath and the terrible presence of another, there is not much moral choice.

Ford also suggested there was some kind of commitment of national honor to "our friends in Indochina" that the United States could not violate without shaming itself. That may have some validity as regards the Thieu regime in South Vietnam, which appears to have been arm-twisted into reluctant acceptance of Henry Kissinger's Paris agreements by assurances of American military support — for how long and to what extent, the American people and the Nobel Peace Prize committee have not been told.

But what national commitments, even in secret, have been made to Lon Nol? What popular or political backing does he have that the United States is honor-bound to sustain? At least, in South Vietnam, a vigorous sentiment exists that does not want and actively resists a government dominated by Hanoi; in Cambodia, according to the most reliable reports, a basically apolitical people primarily wants an end to the war.

Ford also put forward the political argument that if the United States did not send further aid to Lon Nol, "the aggressor" would believe that "it can win its objectives on the battlefield" and "we will be saying to all the world that war pays." The point is made less melodramatically by other high officials — and it appears to be the real rationale for the Ford administration's fixation on more aid to Cambodia — that the collapse of Lon Nol matters less than that it be seen to have resulted from his own ineptitude, rather than that it appear to be the result of American abandonment.

This Cambodian version of the old Vietnamese war thesis — that the United States has to prove and keep on proving that it will stand up against communist aggression — may be hard-nosed geopolitics, but it is also a statement that the war must go on in Cambodia for American purposes. It is an argument that, having mistakenly identified our interests with those of a corrupt and rootless regime, and having brought open warfare to Cambodia with the misbegotten "incursion" of 1970, we must prolong a war that destroys another country rather than conceding these errors or ameliorating their consequences.

"We seek to stop the bloodshed and end the horror and the tragedy that we see on television as rockets are fired wantonly into Phnom Penh," Gerald Ford told the American people. The way to do that is to end the war. A policy of more American aid to keep it going is only one more way of trying to save American face, project a tough American image to the world, and maintain the American myth that the United States can make its will prevail wherever it tries.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Jes' Keep Those Rolls A-Rollin'

NEW YORK — The thing to remember about depressions is that you just can't trust 'em, and this one's no different. Bad as things are most everywhere, hard times have yet to hit Easy Street.

Uptown, things are strictly one-way: booming. Folks who peddle the luxury goodies report they are having a bang-up year. And the higher the price tags, the higher the curve on the sales charts.

Limousines . . . yachts . . . million-dollar apartments . . . jewels . . . round-the-world cruises — the little niceties that make life pleasant for the super-rich — are being snapped up like scarves on a bargain-basement table.

It's crazy, and the boys with the business graphs can't explain it. But there it is.

So many of us common folks have stopped buying automobiles, Detroit is in a near-panic. But in the past two months, 26,965 customers have plunked out almost $10,000, give or take a few dollars, for a new Cadillac.

And it's smiles all around the Rolls-Royce headquarters. Those lengendary beauties, in case you haven't bothered to inquire lately, run anywhere from $30,000 to $50,000. (That's each.)

Nationally, Rolls sales are 17% ahead of last year. Which wasn't bad either; one eastern agency alone sold 28 new models. R-R is so keyed up it's bringing out an "expensive" model: for $70,200. And 220 buyers have already signed up.

Then, of course, there's the lady from California who dropped into a used Rolls-Royce dealer's in London and ordered up seven. Plus two new Bentleys. And when the goggle-eyed dealer added up her tab, she nonchalantly handed over $92,000. In cash.

Yachts are a hot item, too. Fancy 60-footers are still going for $300,000 and old salts with fat bank accounts are still going for them. Younger scions have latched on to private planes. The up line on the charts is already higher than last year. Salesmen don't have time to figure out why; they're too busy scribbling orders.

And in a new super-luxurious highrise in Manhattan, an American executive paid $400,000 for a tiny, bedroom apartment . . . a foreign banker took two, for more than $1 million . . . and the $600,000 duplexes are going fast.

Don't believe everything you hear about Americans canceling trips to Europe, either. That's your average if-it's-Tuesday-it-must-be-Belgium tourist. The folks who go first-class are already getting their shots.

A recent round-the-world cruise sold out early, and the $100,000 suites were the easiest to sell. Bookings for chartered yachts in Greece are ahead of last year — expecially the ones where you can play Aristotle Onassis, at $3,000 a day.

Ditto for the jewelry business. profits this year are brighter than an eight-carat sparkler, and some of the fancier shops are still breathing hard over a "fabulous" Christmas.

Tiffany's, where an everyday $325,000 emerald gets no big display (they save that for the million-dollar baubles), says business so far is 20% ahead of last year and they are happy to note that the really, truly rich have not lost faith in the economy.

On the other hand, one of the world's richest has just gotten bailed out of the red. Queen Elizabeth had to ask parliament for a cost-of-living raise to pay all her butlers, footmen, coachmen, grooms and assorted retainers. She even offered to part with $358,000 of her own money to keep the palaces running.

Well, the good lads did the gentlemanly thing; they came across with a little something extra in Her Highness' pay envelope: another $648,000 a year. That puts her back with the rest of the super-rich, who have problems, but money isn't one of them.

Rancher: Beefalo To Be Salvation

Scottsbluff (AP) – A new breed of beef cattle — Beefalo — has drawn the interest of cattlemen in these parts.

"It will be a salvation to cattlemen," according to Dave Mueller of Atkinson, "because they can produce the animal a year sooner and cut their production costs. The other way, we'll all keep going broke."

The Beefalo is three-eighths Charolais, three-eighths buffalo and one-quarter Hereford.

Mueller displayed the animals to a group of cattlemen from western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming and spelled out some of the advantages of the breed.

He said the calves are small at birth, weighing from 40 to 65 pounds, wean at about 180 days at between 500 and 600 pounds and can be slaughtered at 10 to 14 months of age at 1,050 pounds or more.

Their extremely heavy hair, he said, enables the animals to withstand extreme weather better than conventional breeds and the Beefalos adapt easily to most climatic conditions.

But the major advantage, Mueller said, is that they don't require grain that domestic beef breeds do.

"In fact," he said, "they thrive on grass and roughage."

Mueller described the meat as being fine-grained and juicy, and taking one-third less time to cook than beef. He said also that more of the juices are retained

Lawmaker Arrested In Lions Club Raid

Omaha (AP) — Deputy Douglas County Attorney Daniel Ryberg said seven men were charged Monday in connection with a weekend raid on the Lions Club in Valley.

Gambling charges were filed against Ken Merriweather, 21, of Waterloo, Kenneth Fintel, 35, a Valley city councilman, and Allan Everett, 69, of Valley.

Charged with maintaining a nuisance were Kenneth Landgren, 52, Delbert Teneyck, 38, and Leonard Teneyck, 46, all of Valley.

Dennis C. Rowe, 20, of Valley was charged with being drunk.

Ryberg said he was waiting for further reports to determine whether to charge a 25-year-old Valley man who sheriff's deputies arrested on suspicion of interfering with an officer.

Deputies said they went to the club after receiving a complaint and found about 100 persons drinking and playing games of chance.

They said gambling equipment and about $280 in cash were confiscated.

Those charged, free on $200 bond each, are to appear in County Court April 2.

USDA Said Counting On Baiting Farmers

marketing firm, and Farmers Grain and Livestock Hedging Corp. (FGL), a subscription market consulting company, both of Des Moines.

Basing estimates on 1975 government crop projections, J.A. Roach Jr., FGL grain marketing consultant, said a 5% cutback from the government-projected corn crop would boost corn prices from $1.75 to $2. A 20% cutback would drive prices up to $3.50, he predicted.

A similar 20% cutback would raise bean prices from $4 to $7 and wheat prices from $3.50 to $5, according to Roach's estimates.

Smother' Prices

FGL livestock marketing consultant Carl R. Stewart said $4 corn could not be sustained by demands from livestock feeders. But neither do feeders want $1.75 corn, he said, because the low price would attract enough new producers to the market to "smother" livestock prices.

"We are all one family," Stewart said. "I think at $2.75 to $3.25 corn we can all live."

Oliver B. Eckles of Dickinson & Co. urged farmers to avoid taking the "bait" or price supports. They would stimulate production and be counter to farmers' interests in the long run, he said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a statutory mandate to assure the consumer of an "ample supply reasonable priced," Eckles said. The USDA, he said, is counting on "the dumb farmer" to settle for price supports rather than actively influencing prices.

'Over A Cliff'

"If you ever gave a farmer a chance, he'll just take that bait and you can lead him over a cliff with it," Eckles said.

"Next year's an election year," Eckles said. "We'll get a support price just about high enough to get us in debt right up to here." And, he added, it might even be lowered as soon as elections are over.

Eliminating planting altogether is more effective than holding back production, he said, because "once produced, the trade knows it's out here."

If the farmer misses his chance to cut back planting this year, "he will have lost his chance for years and years, and maybe forever," Eckles said.

McCook Area Reservoirs Below Capacity

Norton Appointed To AF Academy

Elgin — Bradley G. Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene R. Norton of rural Elgin, has been notified of his appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado for the class starting in July. Making the announcement was U.S. Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., who had earlier nominated Bradley as an alternate candidate. The youth, a senior in Elgin High School, had also received a second alternate nomination to the academy from former Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb.

PSC Refuses Forcing Bell Favors List

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Four Nebraska Public Service Commission (PSC) members Monday refused to force Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. to itemize how much it has spent since 1971 on favors for commissioners and staff.

The action came after several weeks of debate on the issue and after commission counsel James Paine offered a number of suggested orders which were turned down.

There was no debate on the motion to deny Omaha Legal Aid attorneys the lobbying information on the grounds that it is irrelevant and immaterial to Northwestern Bell's request for a $16 million rate increase.

Omaha Legal Aid attorneys had sought the information since the funds are part of the rate base used to judge how great a rate increase is needed.

Voting to deny Legal Aid the information were Commissioners Robert T. Marland of Lincoln, James Munnelly of Omaha, Duane Gay of Columbus and Jack Romans of Ord.

Rasmussen Dissents

Commission chairman Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont dissented.

Asked later why he dissented, Rasmussen said, "In my opinion everything was applicable to the rate case."

As to why he didn't argue against the motion, Rasmussen said, "They knew how I felt on the matter."

Rasmussen said alternate orders had been drawn up for earlier meetings which would have forced Northwestern Bell to supply Omaha Legal Aid with the dollar totals spent by the firm on commissioners and staff.

Rasmussen said he favored giving Legal Aid attorneys the dollar figures but was against supplying them with any names of commissioners and staff members who may have been given favors.

Conflict Of Interest

Discussion at earlier meetings indicated other commissioners felt Legal Aid attorneys were interested in the favors from the standpoint of possible conflict of interest, rather the rate case.

Asked to comment on the commission action, Vince Valentino, a Legal Aid attorney, said, "Until I see the order in writing, I can't comment on the commission's action."

Valentino said he considers the information he requested relevant and material to Bell's request for a $16 million rate hike.

Legal Aid protested Bell's rate request when it was filed several months ago. When the news media reported some commissioners have gone on trips to phone company expense, Legal Aid filed the motion asking Bell to disclose all favors.

The Legislature's Conflict of Interest Committee is presently looking into complaints filed against commissioners for accepting the favors.

256 Abortions In County

Of the 461 Lancaster County women who had abortions during 1974, nearly 44.5% of those went outside the county, for the procedure.

Abortions performed on Lancaster County women represented 14.9% of the state's total of 3,094, according to State Health Department statistics.

Medical facilities in the county performed 256 abortions, nearly 8.3% of the state's total. Almost half (110) were performed at Lincoln General Hospital, 74 by an unidentified physician's office, 54 at Bryan Memorial Hospital, and 18 at Bethesda (formerly Providence) Hospital.

Here's a new answer to the rising cost of college

Over 800 colleges and universities and the United States Army have developed a bold, new concept in cooperative education. Project Ahead. It lets you enlist in the Army and start college at the same time.

Project Ahead involves three basic elements. Education. Work. And over $10,000 of financial assistance to attend college.

First of all, it is a unique individualized education plan. One that allows you to choose your "alma mater" before you enlist.

Education

While you're serving your country, you'll start to earn college credits. Through courses right on your Army post or at nearby schools, correspondence courses from your home college, special examination programs, and Army training you receive.

All the while, your chosen college helps you plan your academic program and maintains your credit records. So you get the most college out of your 2 or 3 years in the Army.

Then, after your enlistment, you'll return to your home campus full time.

Work

Project Ahead is by no means a free ride. For the first few years, you'll be a soldier full time, a student part time. You'll train hard. You'll work hard. You'll learn a job which you choose before you enlist. And you'll earn $344 a month to start, plus free room and board.

While you're in, the Army will pay up to 75% of the tuition for courses you take. Afterwards, you get the education benefits of the G.I. Bill ($270 per month paid directly to you while you attend college full time, for 36 to 45 school months). That's, at the least, a $9720 college scholarship.

$

Project Ahead isn't the easiest way to earn a college education. But you may find it the most rewarding. For more information, contact your local Army recruiter.

Rancher: Beefalo To Be Salvation

Scottsbluff (AP) — A new breed of beef cattle — Beefalo — has drawn the interest of cattlemen in these parts.

"It will be a salvation to cattlemen," according to Dave Mueller of Atkinson, "because they can produce the animal a year sooner and cut their production costs. The other way, we'll all keep going broke."

The Beefalo is three-eighths Charolais, three-eighths buffalo and one-quarter Hereford.

Mueller displayed the animals to a group of cattlemen from western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming and spelled out some of the advantages of the breed.

He said the calves are small at birth, weighing from 40 to 65 pounds, wean at about 180 days at between 500 and 600 pounds and can be slaughtered at 10 to 14 months of age at 1,050 pounds or more.

Their extremely heavy hair, he said, enables the animals to withstand extreme weather better than conventional breeds and the Beefalos adapt easily to most climatic conditions.

But the major advantage, Mueller said, is that they don't require grain that domestic beef breeds do.

"In fact," he said, "they thrive on grass and roughage."

Mueller described the meat as being fine-grained and juicy, and taking one-third less time to cook than beef. He said also that more of the juices are retained

Lawmaker Arrested In Lions Club Raid

Omaha (AP) — Deputy Douglas County Attorney Daniel Ryberg said seven men were charged Monday in connection with a weekend raid on the Lions Club in Valley.

Gambling charges were filed against Ken Merriweather, 21, of Waterloo, Kenneth Fintel, 35, a Valley city councilman, and Allan Everett, 69, of Valley.

Charged with maintaining a nuisance were Kenneth Landgren, 52, Delbert Teneyck, 38, and Leonard Teneyck, 46, all of Valley.

Dennis C. Rowe, 20, of Valley was charged with being drunk.

Ryberg said he was waiting for further reports to determine whether to charge a 25-year-old Valley man who sheriff's deputies arrested on suspicion of interfering with an officer.

Deputies said they went to the club after receiving a complaint and found about 100 persons drinking and playing games of chance.

They said gambling equipment and about $280 in cash were confiscated.

Those charged, free on $200 bond each, are to appear in County Court April 2.

USDA Said Counting On Baiting Farmers

marketing firm, and Farmers Grain and Livestock Hedging Corp. (FGL), a subscription market consulting company, both of Des Moines.

Basing estimates on 1975 government crop projections, J.A. Roach Jr., FGL grain marketing consultant, said a 5% cutback from the government-projected corn crop would boost corn prices from $1.75 to $2. A 20% cutback would drive prices up to $3.50, he predicted.

A similar 20% cutback would raise bean prices from $4 to $7 and wheat prices from $3.50 to $5, according to Roach's estimates.

Smother' Prices

FGL livestock marketing consultant Carl R. Stewart said $4 corn could not be sustained by demands from livestock feeders. But neither do feeders want $1.75 corn, he said, because the low price would attract enough new producers to the market to "smother" livestock prices.

"We are all one family," Stewart said. "I think at $2.75 to $3.25 corn we can all live."

Oliver B. Eckles of Dickinson & Co. urged farmers to avoid taking the "bait" or price supports. They would stimulate production and be counter to farmers' interests in the long run, he said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a statutory mandate to assure the consumer of an "ample supply reasonable priced," Eckles said. The USDA, he said, is counting on "the dumb farmer" to settle for price supports rather than actively influencing prices.

'Over A Cliff'

"If you ever gave a farmer a chance, he'll just take that bait and you can lead him over a cliff with it," Eckles said.

"Next year's an election year," Eckles said. "We'll get a support price just about high enough to get us in debt right up to here." And, he added, it might even be lowered as soon as elections are over.

Eliminating planting altogether is more effective than holding back production, he said, because "once produced, the trade knows it's out here."

If the farmer misses his chance to cut back planting this year, "he will have lost his chance for years and years, and maybe forever," Eckles said.

Across Nebraska

McCook Area Reservoirs Below Capacity

McCook — An end of February report shows all McCook area reservoirs are below the full mark, according to the Bureau of Reclamation, reflecting last summer's drought. Swanson Lake is 8.7 feet below capacity, while Enders Lake stands at 9.39 feet below. Hugh Butler Lake is 3.67 feet below the top; Harry Strunk Lake, 4.88 feet down, and Harlan County Reservoir, 5.01 feet below. All six reservoirs are lagging behind the normal amount of moisture, figures show.

Norton Appointed To AF Academy

Elgin — Bradley G. Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene R. Norton of rural Elgin, has been notified of his appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado for the class starting in July. Making the announcement was U.S. Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., who had earlier nominated Bradley as an alternate candidate. The youth, a senior in Elgin High School, had also received a second alternate nomination to the academy from former Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb.

Midwest Breeders To Meet

Seward — The annual district meeting of Midwest Breeders Cooperative will be held Wednesday at the Civic Center at Seward. The session is slated to start at 11:45 a.m.

Building To House Old Farm Antiques

Harrisburg — A frame building is going up here to be used to house old farm machinery and other antiques. Old tractors and machinery used in the horse-powered days will be stored there, according to officials of the Banner County Historical Society. A part of the society's display facilities, the building is near the Banner County Museum and an old restored school house built of logs. Future plans call for the addition of a windmill and possibly a church.

Mrs. Beedy Reappointed To Old Post

Gering — Former Scotts Bluff County Superintendent of Schools, Mrs. Cleone M. Beedy has been renamed to her old post by the Scotts Bluff County commissioners. She was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the death of Mrs. Monica Walker, who died last month in an auto accident near Taylor. Mrs. Beedy retired from the position Jan. 8, and was succeeded by Mrs. Walker.

Rev. Clarke Assumes Beatrice Duties

Beatrice — The Rev. James E. Clarke has been installed as pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church here, succeeding the Rev. Dean Waychoff who left Beatrice last June. The 37-year-old Rev. Mr. Clarke came here from South Sioux City where he was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church for four years. Earlier he served as an assistant pastor in Scottsbluff.

PSC Refuses Forcing Bell Favors List

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Four Nebraska Public Service Commission (PSC) members Monday refused to force Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. to itemize how much it has spent since 1971 on favors for commissioners and staff.

The action came after several weeks of debate on the issue and after commission counsel James Paine offered a number of suggested orders which were turned down.

There was no debate on the motion to deny Omaha Legal Aid attorneys the lobbying information on the grounds that it is irrelevant and immaterial to Northwestern Bell's request for a $16 million rate increase.

Omaha Legal Aid attorneys had sought the information, since the funds are part of the rate base used to judge how great a rate increase is needed.

Voting to dery Legal Aid the information were Commissioners Robert T. Marland of Lincoln, James Munnelly of Omaha, Duane Gay of Columbus and Jack Romans of Ord.

Rasmussen Dissents

Commission chairman Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont dissented.

Asked later why he dissented, Rasmussen said, "In my opinion everything was applicable to the rate case."

As to why he didn't argue against the motion, Rasmussen said, "They knew how I felt on the matter."

Rasmussen said alternate orders had been drawn up for earlier meetings which would have forced Northwestern Bell to supply Omaha Legal Aid with the dollar totals spent by the firm on commissioners and staff.

Rasmussen said he favored giving Legal Aid attorneys the dollar figures but was against supplying them with any names of commissioners and staff members who may have been given favors.

Conflict Of Interest

Discussion at earlier meetings indicated other commissioners felt Legal Aid attorneys were interested in the favors from the standpoint of possible conflict of interest, rather the rate case.

Asked to comment on the commission action, Vince Valentino, a Legal Aid attorney, said, "Until I see the order in writing, I can't comment on the commission's action."

Valentino said he considers the information he requested relevant and material to Bell's request for a $16 million rate hike.

Legal Aid protested Bell's rate request when it was filed several months ago. When the news media reported some commissioners have gone on trips to phone company expense, Legal Aid filed the motion asking Bell to disclose all favors.

Nebraska Drought Loss Is Calculated At $1 Billion

The 1974 drought caused a one billion dollar loss in the value of corn, sorghum soybeans, wheat and hay produced in Nebraska, estimates state crop statistician Doug Murfield

Murfield used yield level trends from past years to figure what "normal" yields would have been in 1974 had the drought not occurred He then compared the total value of these hypothetical normal yields to the estimated 1974 yields The results were reported at the Nebraska Water Conference here Monday

The following season average prices were used in Murfield's calculations corn — $3 45 per bushel, sorghum — $3 14/bu , soybeans — $7 60/bu wheat — $1 10/bu and hay — $43 50/ton

For example, if 1974 had been a normal year corn grain yields would have been about 116 bushels per acre irrigated, 74 bushels, non-irrigated and 13 tons per acre corn silage The value of these corn crops would have totaled $2 158 billion

Instead, Murfield related irrigated corn produced 103 bushels per acre non-irrigated produced only 26 bushels per acre, and silage yields were 7 5 tons per acre Their value totaled $1 647 billion, down about one-third from what would have been normal

Analyzing each crop separately, Murfield said the value of corn production was down one-third, sorghum production value was down nearly one-half, and soybeans, wheat and alfalfa hay were down about one-tenth

"In summary, the value of corn sorghum, soybeans, wheat and hay was reduced 28% by the 1974 drought, and value-wise the dollar loss was approximately one billion dollars

"Without irrigation, crop values would have been down another third, and the economic impact much worse than it actually was," he added

R. Erle Campbell

Campbell Receives Irrigation Award

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the Nebraska Water Conference Committee Monday night presented the Pioneer Irrigation Award to R Erle Campbell 87 of Lincoln and the Progress Award to the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District of Holdrege

Dr James Zumberge chancellor at UNL, presented the awards at a banquet held in conjunction with the fourth annual Nebraska Water Conference in session through Tuesday afternoon .

The award to Campbell recognized his valuable contribution to irrigation in Nebraska and the United States through his dedicated service to the development and beneficial use of Nebraska s water resources by means of his leadership as president and longtime supporter of the Nebraska Water Resources Association and his continued far sighted support of irrigation in Nebraska

The progress award presented to R D Dirmeyer general manager and A C Hove Sr , president of the board cited the district for its outstanding service to its water users electric customers and the people of the state of Nebraska in providing irrigation water for 125 000 acres of land in Lincoln Dawson Gosper Phelps and Kearney Counties and the generation of electric power and its continued efforts to improve both its facilities and its services to its customers since it was founded July 24 1933 and began providing irrigation water in 1941

Campbell has contributed much in the field of retail merchandising through his work as president and currently chairman of the board in the Miller and Paine Department Store in Lincoln Noted Zumberge His professional training was invaluable in conceiving and developing changes in the thinking and management of a large and successful retail department store

Zumberge said ' He (Campbell) has been generous in giving of his time and talent to the cause of conservation and beneficial use of our natural resources He is a charter member of the Nebraska Reclamation Association which is now the Nebraska Water Resources Association and served as its president in 1949

Varner Suggests Holding Water Back

To continue to allow excess flows of surface water to leave the state virtually unused, such as has occurred in the Platte River each spring for the last four years, does not make good sense to D B Varner, president of the University of Nebraska Varner said these same flows could be used to help recharge groundwater supplies

He spoke out on the water problems at the opening session Monday of the two-day Nebraska Water Conference in Lincoln

In my opinion,' he said, "the investment of tax money by the state of Nebraska in research and pilot studies to develop methods of recharge which are feasible from engineering, economic and social viewpoints would be an investment in the future economic and social well-being of the people of Nebraska that would pay huge dividends for countless years to come "

Theme Praised

The NU president praised the theme of the conference — "Land and Water Use Planning — A Case Study" — since it focuses attention on the need to direct efforts toward the critical issues that Nebraska is facing

Those critical issues, he said include competition between surface water users and groundwater users allocation of water between different classes of users and within classes of users in areas where water supplies are limited; withdrawals of surface water for irrigation from rivers and streams versus recreation and wildlife habitat needs, and diversion of water from one basin to another

He also stressed the amount of irrigation development and its location in Nebraska, publicly supported irrigation development based on surface water versus privately financed irrigation based on groundwater supplies, and public rights versus private rights as they relate to groundwater

Disagreements or conflicts on these issues are normal and inevitable said Varner, but "what is important is not so much the fact that conflicting interests are involved and which one has the most clout but rather how are these conflicts resolved and the methods used in resolving them so as to arrive hopefully at some type of compromise solution "

Other Developments

Varner also touched on some other encouraging developments of significance for both agriculture and water resource interests in Nebraska

—During the past two years, the world has recognized the vital role of agriculture and its production in helping to meet the growing demands for food in the world

—The climate for water resource projects is much better than it has been for years due to the disappearance of surpluses of agricultural commodities

—LB975 passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor which created the Nebraska Resources Development Fund under the administration of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission is a big step forward in committing state funds for resource development

—Considerable progress has been made in achieving widespread recognition by the many diverse interests in water across the state that some new legislative guidelines are needed to protect and conserve groundwater supplies in the areas where consistent declines in groundwater levels have occurred

—During the past year with the widespread drought which severely damaged non-irrigated crops it has become obvious that the total economy of the state of Nebraska would have been much worse today were it not for the estimated five million acres of irrigated land in 1974

Federal Land Use Legislation Described As 'Alive, Kicking'

Federal land use legislation is alive and kicking a U S Department of Interior attorney told those attending the Nebraska Water Conference here Monday

David Deal staff counsel for regulations in the Interior Department s Office of Land Use and Water Planning said two bills have already been introduced one in the Senate and one in the House of Representatives while the department is readying a version which may become a Ford Administration backed bill

Deal emphasized that the federal government is not usurping state or local prerogatives in land use planning ' We (the federal government) are not going to be stuffing goals down your throat he declared and insisted that land use planning is your ballgame

-The attorney who also is vice chairman of the American Bar Association s Public Lands and Land Use Committee stressed similarities in the thrust and intent of the two introduced bills and one possible piece of legislation which carry different price tags

Federal entry into the land use legislation field would make dollars and technical assistance available to resource-short states Deal explained While as many as 90 of land use planning decisions are of only local concern the remaining 10 e are crucial in terms of the interest to an entire state he said

Deal suggested that states have delegated away much of their power in land use planning to communities and regions One of the thrusts of the federal legislation he reported would be to nudge states into a larger role in land use management decision making

Features of federal land use legislation now on deck or waiting in the wings include development of land use policies which include economic social and environmental concerns a commitment of not just planning but also action a framework which is reflective of state, regional and local goals provision for intergovernmental coordination both horizontally and vertically, consistency between federal and state land use planning concepts with the federal government bowing to state policy on non federally owned lands in a state and meaningful public participation or the open planning process involving citizen input in the planning process

Deal said the Udall bill in the House of Representatives carries a $500 million price tag over the next six years The Jackson bill in the Senate calls for $800 million expended over eight years while the Interior bill now in proposal form, is 'the economy model, with $450 million to be spent over eight years he said

Deal denied the assertion of some observers that the strategic time to enact federal land use legislation has come and gone He rejected the argument that because the U S has passed through the environmental euphoria and is now saddled with runaway inflation and economic woes there is a lessened need for land use planning and a weakened resolve to spend money on such a program

The 1974 drought caused a one billion dollar loss in the value of corn, sorghum, soybeans, wheat and hay produced in Nebraska, estimates state crop statistician Doug Murfield.

Murfield used yield level trends from past years to figure what "normal" yields would have been in 1974 had the drought not occurred. He then compared the total value of these hypothetical normal yields to the estimated 1974 yields. The results were reported at the Nebraska Water Conference here Monday.

The following season average prices were used in Murfield's calculations: corn — $3.45 per bushel; sorghum — $3.14/bu.; soybeans — $7.60/bu.; wheat — $1.10/bu., and hay — $43.50/ton.

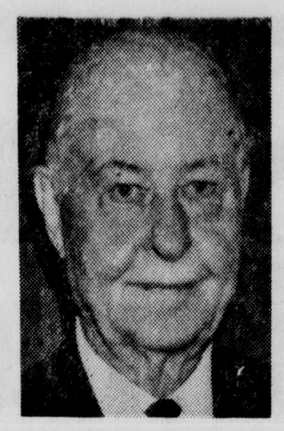

For example, if 1974 had been a normal year, corn grain yields would have been about 116 bushels per acre, irrigated; 74 bushels, non-irrigated; and 13 tons per acre corn silage. The value of these corn crops would have totaled $2.158 billion.

Instead, Murfield related, irrigated corn produced 103 bushels per acre, non-irrigated produced only 26 bushels per acre, and silage yields were 7.5 tons per acre. Their value totaled $1.647 billion, down about one-third from what would have been normal.

Analyzing each crop separately, Murfield said the value of corn production was down one-third; sorghum production value was down nearly one-half, and soybeans, wheat and alfalfa hay were down about one-tenth.

"In summary, the value of corn, sorghum, soybeans, wheat and hay was reduced 28% by the 1974 drought, and value-wise the dollar loss was approximately one billion dollars.

"Without irrigation, crop values would have been down another third, and the economic impact much worse than it actually was," he added.

R. Erle Campbell

Campbell Receives Irrigation Award

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the Nebraska Water Conference Committee Monday night presented the Pioneer Irrigation Award to R. Erle Campbell, 87, of Lincoln and the Progress Award to the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District of Holdrege.

Dr. James Zumberge, chancellor at UNL, presented the awards at a banquet held in conjunction with the fourth annual Nebraska Water Conference, in session through Tuesday afternoon. .

The award to Campbell recognized "his valuable contribution to irrigation in Nebraska and the United States through his dedicated service to the development and beneficial use of Nebraska's water resources by means of his leadership as president and long-time supporter of the Nebraska Water Resources Association and his continued far-sighted support of irrigation in Nebraska."

The progress award, presented to R. D. Dirmeyer, general manager, and A. C. Hove Sr., president of the board, cited the district for "its outstanding service to its water users, electric customers and the people of the state of Nebraska in providing irrigation water for 125,000 acres of land in Lincoln, Dawson, Gosper, Phelps and Kearney Counties, and the generation of electric power and its continued efforts to improve both its facilities and its services to its customers since it was founded July 24, 1933, and began providing irrigation water in 1941."

Campbell has contributed much in the field of retail merchandising through his work as president and currently chairman of the board in the Miller and Paine Department Store in Lincoln. Noted Zumberge, "His professional training was invaluable in conceiving and developing changes in the thinking and management of a large and successful retail department store."

Zumberge said, "He (Campbell) has been generous in giving of his time and talent to the cause of conservation and beneficial use of our natural resources. He is a charter member of the Nebraska Reclamation Association which is now the Nebraska Water Resources Association and served as its president in 1949."

Varner Suggests Holding Water Back

To continue to allow excess flows of surface water to leave the state virtually unused, such as has occurred in the Platte River each spring for the last four years, does not make good sense to D. B. Varner, president of the University of Nebraska. Varner said these same flows could be used to help recharge groundwater supplies.

He spoke out on the water problems at the opening session Monday of the two-day Nebraska Water Conference in Lincoln.

"In my opinion," he said, "the investment of tax money by the state of Nebraska in research and pilot studies to develop methods of recharge which are feasible from engineering, economic and social viewpoints would be an investment in the future economic and social well-being of the people of Nebraska that would pay huge dividends for countless years to come."

He also stressed the amount of irrigation development and its location in Nebraska; publicly supported irrigation development based on surface water versus privately financed irrigation based on groundwater supplies; and public rights versus private rights as they relate to groundwater.

Disagreements or conflicts on these issues are normal and inevitable, said Varner, but "what is important is not so much the fact that conflicting interests are involved and which one has the most clout, but rather how are these conflicts resolved and the methods used in resolving them so as to arrive hopefully at some type of compromise solution."

Varner also touched on some other encouraging developments of significance for both agriculture and water resource interests in Nebraska:

—During the past two years, the world has recognized the vital role of agriculture and its production in helping to meet the growing demands for food in the world.

—The climate for water resource projects is much better than it has been for years due to the disappearance of surpluses of agricultural commodities.

—LB975 passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor which created the Nebraska Resources Development Fund under the administration of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission is a big step forward in committing state funds for resource development.

—Considerable progress has been made in achieving widespread recognition by the many diverse interests in water across the state that some new legislative guidelines are needed to protect and conserve groundwater supplies in the areas where consistent declines in groundwater levels have occurred.

—During the past year with the widespread drought which severely damaged non-irrigated crops, it has become obvious that the total economy of the state of Nebraska would have been much worse today were it not for the estimated five million acres of irrigated land in 1974.

Federal Land Use Legislation Described As 'Alive, Kicking'

Federal land use legislation is "alive and kicking," a U.S. Department of Interior attorney told those attending the Nebraska Water Conference here Monday.

David Deal, staff counsel for regulations in the Interior Department's Office of Land Use and Water Planning, said two bills have already been introduced, one in the Senate and one in the House of Representatives, while the department is readying a version which may become a Ford Administration-backed bill.

Deal emphasized that the federal government is not usurping state or local prerogatives in land use planning. "We (the federal government) are not going to be stuffing goals down your throat," he declared, and insisted that land use planning "is your ballgame."

The attorney, who also is vice chairman of the American Bar Association's Public Lands and Land Use Committee, stressed similarities in the thrust and intent of the two introduced bills and one possible piece of legislation, which carry different price tags.

Federal entry into the land use legislation field would make dollars and technical assistance available to resource-short states, Deal explained. While as many as 90% of land use planning decisions are of only local concern, the remaining 10% are crucial in terms of the interest to an entire state, he said.

Deal suggested that states have delegated away much of their power in land use planning to communities and regions. One of the thrusts of the federal legislation, he reported, would be to nudge states into a larger role in land use management decision-making.

Features of federal land use legislation now on deck or waiting in the wings include development of land use policies which include economic, social and environmental concerns; a commitment of not just planning but also action; a framework which is reflective of state, regional and local goals; provision for intergovernmental coordination, both horizontally and vertically; consistency between federal and state land use planning concepts, with the federal government bowing to state policy on non-federally owned lands in a state; and meaningful public participation or the "open planning process," involving citizen input in the planning process.

Deal said the Udall bill in the House of Representatives carries a $500 million price tag over the next six years. The Jackson bill in the Senate calls for $800 million expended over eight years, while the Interior bill, now in proposal form, is "the economy model," with $450 million to be spent over eight years, he said.

Deal denied the assertion of some observers that the strategic time to enact federal land use legislation has come and gone. He rejected the argument that because the U.S. has passed through the "environmental euphoria" and is now saddled with runaway inflation and economic woes, there is a lessened need for land use planning, and a weakened resolve to spend money on such a program.

Study Of Public Radio Network Funded

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Educational Television Commission Monday authorized the NETV Network to accept a $25,000 federal grant to study the feasibility of a statewide public radio network.

With just enough votes for a quorum, five of the nine commissioners unanimously agreed that Nebraska Broadcasters Association (NBA) and commercial broadcasting representatives should participate in conducting the study and contribute to the final report.

The NBA is on record vigorously opposing even a study to determine if public radio is needed or wanted in Nebraska, and has lobbied actively against the commission action last November to seek the Corporation for Public Broadcasting funds.

CPB notified NETV officials over the weekend the grant application had been approved.

Rooney Named Director

Boyd Rooney, NETV assistant general manager for operations and engineering director, was named feasibility study project director. He said work will begin in late March.

The commission unanimously decided to hire Jansky and Bailey, a broadcast-TV consulting engineering firm in Alexandria, Va., to conduct the technical study, for $4,700. A subsidiary of Atlantic Research Corp., Jansky and Bailey was the consulting firm in the study on establishing the NETV Network.

Commissioners also authorized NETV to hire James Robertson of Robertson Associates in Alexandria as chief consultant for the study, at $14,000. Robertson is former director of National Educational Radio.

The remainder of the CPB grant, $6,300, will pay for statewide hearings and conferences, staff travel expenses, and materials and other related costs.

NBA representatives, including President Gordon (Bud) Pentz of Beatrice, met Monday morning with the NETV Commission executive committee, and Vice Chairman John Prasch said they indicated the network should withdraw its application for the study grant.

NBA Assumption

NBA spokesmen "assume the results of the study are foregone, and that we will move into public radio," said Prasch, also Lincoln Public Schools superintendent.

"No decision has been made," Prasch said, because it requires "a decision of the Legislature," but that "does not convince them (NBA) very effectively."

Commissioner Steven B. Sample, NU executive vice president for academic affairs, said it's "offensive to me for someone to presume" commissioners, as public officials, would decide the issue before the study is complete.

Prasch said the NBA has "some legitimate concerns" about the prospect of establishing public radio in Nebraska and about the commission's procedures for pursuing the study.

Can't Alienate NBA

And the NBA "is an important group we can't afford to alienate," Prasch said, because NETV values its past support.

Prasch underscored his desire for a cooperative effort with NBA, saying he agrees with their members that "I don't think there's any question that this study will show we need" public radio.

Sample said, "It's been difficult for me to see what the objections are" to the study, and he called for a "fair and open and rational" approach to include broadcasters' participation, rather than their comments or rebuttal of the study once it's finished.

The NBA will have no part in voting on any of the recommendations.

In other business, Paul Few, NETV assistant manager for administration, reported that the network production and engineering staffs have filed a petition in the State Court of Industrial Relations, seeking an election for union representation by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The commission referred the union matter to its personnel committee, to work with the state attorney general.

Network program manager Ron Hull reported that the NETV-produced "Anyone for Tennyson?" 26 programs of poetry readings costing $250,000, now stands 24th among 136 shows offered for national sale in the cooperative. Sixty-six public TV stations, 41% of those in the U.S., have bid for the Nebraska program.

Mascot Doe Dies Of 'Fame'

By The Associated Press

Bambi, the little doe that won the hearts of many St. Edward residents and statewide attention through the Associated Press, is dead, the apparent victim of her fame and the woes of bureacracy.

The animal wandered into St. Edward about seven months ago, and was adopted by the community — or was it the other way around.

When the animal started making regular rounds for food, her story won statewide play in the news media, both printed and electronic.

However, there were some complaints about Bambi's extra-curricular activities, like eating flowers, and the State Game and Parks Commission decided that Bambi should be moved to more suitable quarters.

Carl Gettmann, chief of the commission's Law Enforcement Division in Lincoln, said it was feared a snowballing effect might occur with many other communities adopting animals as mascots. Commission also cited possible hazards to both the deer and humans.

The commission decided Bambi should live in the Norfolk area, so last Wednesday was scheduled as the moving day.

Although Bambi was having some internal problems of her own — diarrhea to be exact — game wardens shot her with a tranquilizer gun as she was going about her daily round. The chemical action reacting with the doe's own troubles contributed to the death, according to Gettmann.

Bambi died in a deer transporting cage on the back of a truck as she was being transported to Norfolk, Gettmann reported.

Many St. Edward residents are not too happy about the string of events, and have contacted their state senator, Donald Dworak of Columbus.

Several petitions were circulated before Bambi's demise, and it's a sure bet there will be more now.

More Spending Discipline Urged

Unless some discipline is exercised on demands for federal spending, the nation will continue to see annual budgets that dip deeper and deeper into the red, a federal official from Kansas City said Monday.

Elmer Smith, chairman of the Federal Regional Council, said, "Eligible programs are growing faster than the tax base.

"Unless there's some discipline in spending, no, you're not going to see a balanced federal budget."

Smith and other regional administrators for federal agencies were in Lincoln Monday to explain President Gerald Ford's $349 billion budget for next year. That budget includes a $50 billion deficit.

"That deficit's troublesome; there's no way around it," Smith told reporters after speaking with Gov. J. James Exon.

T. Whiteside, regional administrator for the Department of the Interior, said the problem is that everyone wants spending to stop as soon as their needs are cared for.

"Everyone wants to cut programs but not theirs," Whiteside said.

This year, Smith said Ford is attempting a new approach to control government spending through a 5% limit on increases in spending and a freeze on major increases in federal employment.

Former President Richard Nixon attempted to cut certain programs, and failed, Smith noted.

"All of us need to ask questions about the federal budget," Smith said. "That's why we come up here."

In his conversation with Exon, Smith said the governor's major concern was giving the states a greater voice in federal regulation decisions.

Specific areas mentioned were regulations governing pesticides, billboards and coyotes, Smith said.

Smith said he expects Nebraska will continue to have approximately a .6% share of the federal budget. That will mean slightly under $2 billion in the upcoming budget, Smith said.

Welfare Group Elects D. Knapp

The Lincoln Welfare Association elected Doris Knapp of the Lancaster Camp Fire office as president.

Other officers are John Pittman, Red Cross, first vice president; Ann Coyne, LOMAR, second vice president; Mary Casjens, Welfare Department, secretary, and Iris Minnick, Welfare, treasurer.

Mustache Symbol Of Independence

DEAR ABBY: Four months ago, when we were on vacation, my husband neglected to shave for a few days, so our daughter said: "Oh, Daddy, you'd look neat in a mustache, please grow one!"

Well, George grew a mustache. I didn't like it one bit, and I told him so, but he hasn't said anything about shaving it off. I don't hassle him about it, but he knows how I feel.

Some of our friends like George's mustache, and some don't, but George seems to hear only the compliments he gets on it.

Personally, I think he should listen to me. As his wife, I surely want what is best for him and I wouldn't steer him wrong.

Abby, why would a man insist on wearing a mustache (or a beard) when he knows his wife doesn't like it?

ONE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Facial hair on men communicates a variety of messages. Among the most obvious are: "Like it or lump it, I'm old enough to shave and have the whiskers to prove it, and I'm doing my own thing."

It's a symbol of independence, and in some cases, it's a decoration one courageously confers upon himself.

DEAR ABBY: What one thing most inspires you to write?

NOSY IN J.J.

DEAR NOSY: The Bureau of Internal Revenue.

DEAR ABBY: I prepared a huge, lovely dinner party myself. When my guests departed, they all thanked me and raved about how wonderful everything was.

The next morning, each one telephoned to tell me again how much they enjoyed the dinner, repeating the compliments about the food, etc.

Abby, I had no help, and there was plenty of cleaning up to do after that party, and I was very much annoyed with those unnecessary calls. Each one talked for 15 minutes to half an hour, and when they all finished, my morning was gone.

After having already thanked me, I felt it was totally unnecessary for them to call the next morning and take my time as they did.

On top of it all, one of the guests took a tremendous amount of meat for her second helping, and then asked for a doggie bag.

What is your opinion of both cases?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: In addition to verbal thanks on departing, a written note to reiterate one's appreciation is far more appreciated, and less intrusive than a telephone call. And as for the doggie bag number — Wow, and bow wow! Shame on her.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The bidding:

Opening lead - three of hearts.

Assume you're in three notrump and West leads a heart. East plays the A-K and another heart and West, upon taking the queen, cashes his ten, on which you have to discard.

To give yourself the best chance for the contract — which depends on winning the spade finesse as well as four diamond tricks — you discard a club from dummy and, after East also discards a club, a spade from your hand.

Let's assume West shifts to a club at this point. The best method of play is to win in dummy with the ace, play a low spade to the jack, which wins and cash the K-Q of diamonds.

West showing out, it looks as though you must go down one in this position:

North

♠ 8 7

East
♠ K 10
♦ J 9
♣ 6

South
♦ 6 5
♣ K Q

However, the fact is that you can still make the hand by cashing the K-Q of clubs and discarding the ten of diamonds from dummy.

East finds himself in a hopeless predicament when you cash the queen of clubs. If he discards the nine of diamonds you play a diamond to the ace to score the last three tricks, while if he discards the ten of spades you cash the ace of spades before entering dummy with a diamond to achieve the same result.

Mustache Symbol Of Independence

DEAR ABBY: Four months ago, when we were on vacation, my husband neglected to shave for a few days, so our daughter said: "Oh, Daddy, you'd look neat in a mustache, please grow one!"

Well, George grew a mustache. I didn't like it one bit, and I told him so, but he hasn't said anything about shaving it off. I don't hassle him about it, but he knows how I feel.

Some of our friends like George's mustache, and some don't, but George seems to hear only the compliments he gets on it.

Personally, I think he should listen to me. As his wife, I surely want what is best for him and I wouldn't steer him wrong.

Abby, why would a man insist on wearing a mustache (or a beard) when he knows his wife doesn't like it?

ONE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Facial hair on men communicates a variety of messages. Among the most obvious are: "Like it or lump it, I'm old enough to shave and have the whiskers to prove it, and I'm doing my own thing."

It's a symbol of independence, and in some cases, it's a decoration one courageously confers upon himself.

DEAR ABBY: What one thing most inspires you to write?

NOSY IN J.J.

DEAR NOSY: The Bureau of Internal Revenue.

DEAR ABBY: I prepared a huge, lovely dinner party myself. When my guests departed, they all thanked me and raved about how wonderful everything was.

The next morning, each one telephoned to tell me again how much they enjoyed the dinner, repeating the compliments about the food, etc.

Abby, I had no help, and there was plenty of cleaning up to do after that party, and I was very much annoyed with those unnecessary calls. Each one talked for 15 minutes to half an hour, and when they all finished, my morning was gone.

After having already thanked me, I felt it was totally unnecessary for them to call the next morning and take my time as they did.

On top of it all, one of the guests took a tremendous amount of meat for her second helping, and then asked for a doggie bag.

What is your opinion of both cases?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: In addition to verbal thanks on departing, a written note to reiterate one's appreciation is far more appreciated, and less intrusive than a telephone call. And as for the doggie bag number — Wow, and bow wow! Shame on her.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Flexible Hours System 'Working Well'

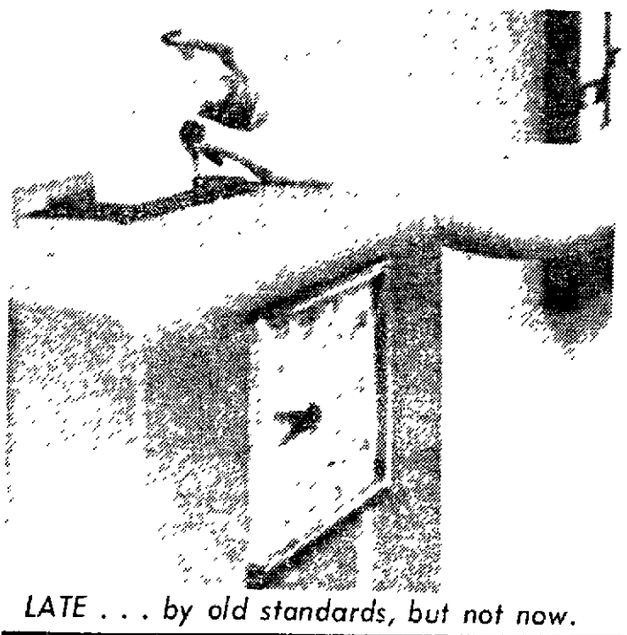

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Union Insurance Co. is burrowing out of the 8 to 4:30 rut

The firm, with offices at 14th and Q, has opted to give about 60 full-time employes a little flexibility in their working hours

After all, not everybody can bounce out of bed at the crack of dawn. For some of us, socializing with anybody before 9 a.m. can be mighty painful.

Flexible, bendable or suit-yourself work hours is catching on across the country, but Union Insurance is one of the first Lincoln firms to give it a serious try.

LATE . . . by old standards, but not now.

Employes still put in eight-hour days and they must be on the job between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Otherwise, working time is pretty much up to individuals. Optional time comes in between 7 and 9 a.m. and 4 and 5:30 p.m.

L. Dean Fletcher, vice president of operations, says the flexible hours system "seems to be working quite well."

His company had followed the progress of a sister firm, Tri-State Insurance Co. of Minnesota, which switched to elastic hours about a year ago.

"They say abseenteeism is almost a thing of the past," Fletcher notes, adding that employes can schedule doctor and dental appointments early in the morning and not take time off from work.

'Protecting' System

"Employes like the system so well they're protecting it, not abusing it," he says.

"I wouldn't want to change back," says Donna Buttke, supervisor in the word processing department. "The girls feel more responsible — after all, the company is leaving it up to them when they want to work

"One thing that's really nice to know is that you can sleep a little later in the morning. You're not late if you walk in at 8:10. You don't have to make excuses: the timeclock tells the whole story."

Jenny Mosely, a Union Insurance employe for nearly a year now, says she likes coming in early and leaving by 4.

Now she avoids rush-hour traffic, both coming and going, and she says she enjoys that extra half hour in the evening.

May Change 'Core'

If flexible time continues to work as smoothly as it has for the first month, Fletcher says, the company may change the "core" hours to 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. If it's OK with their supervisors, employes could clock in as early as 6:30 a.m. and be out in the sun by 3.

Of course, rearranging work hours does have its limitations.

In some jobs it just won't work, Fletcher points out. A receptionist, for instance, has to be there from 9 to 5. Others have to wait on mail delivery before they can start the day's processing.

Those who feel uncomfortable with the plan stay with the old times. No problems there.

Fletcher says there was initially a little reluctance from supervisors who feared loss of control over subordinates.

"We finally just left it up to the supervisor to determine if the program would work in their areas." As a result, some have accepted the plan entirely, while others decided not to be so casual.

Why did Union Insurance go in for bendable hours?

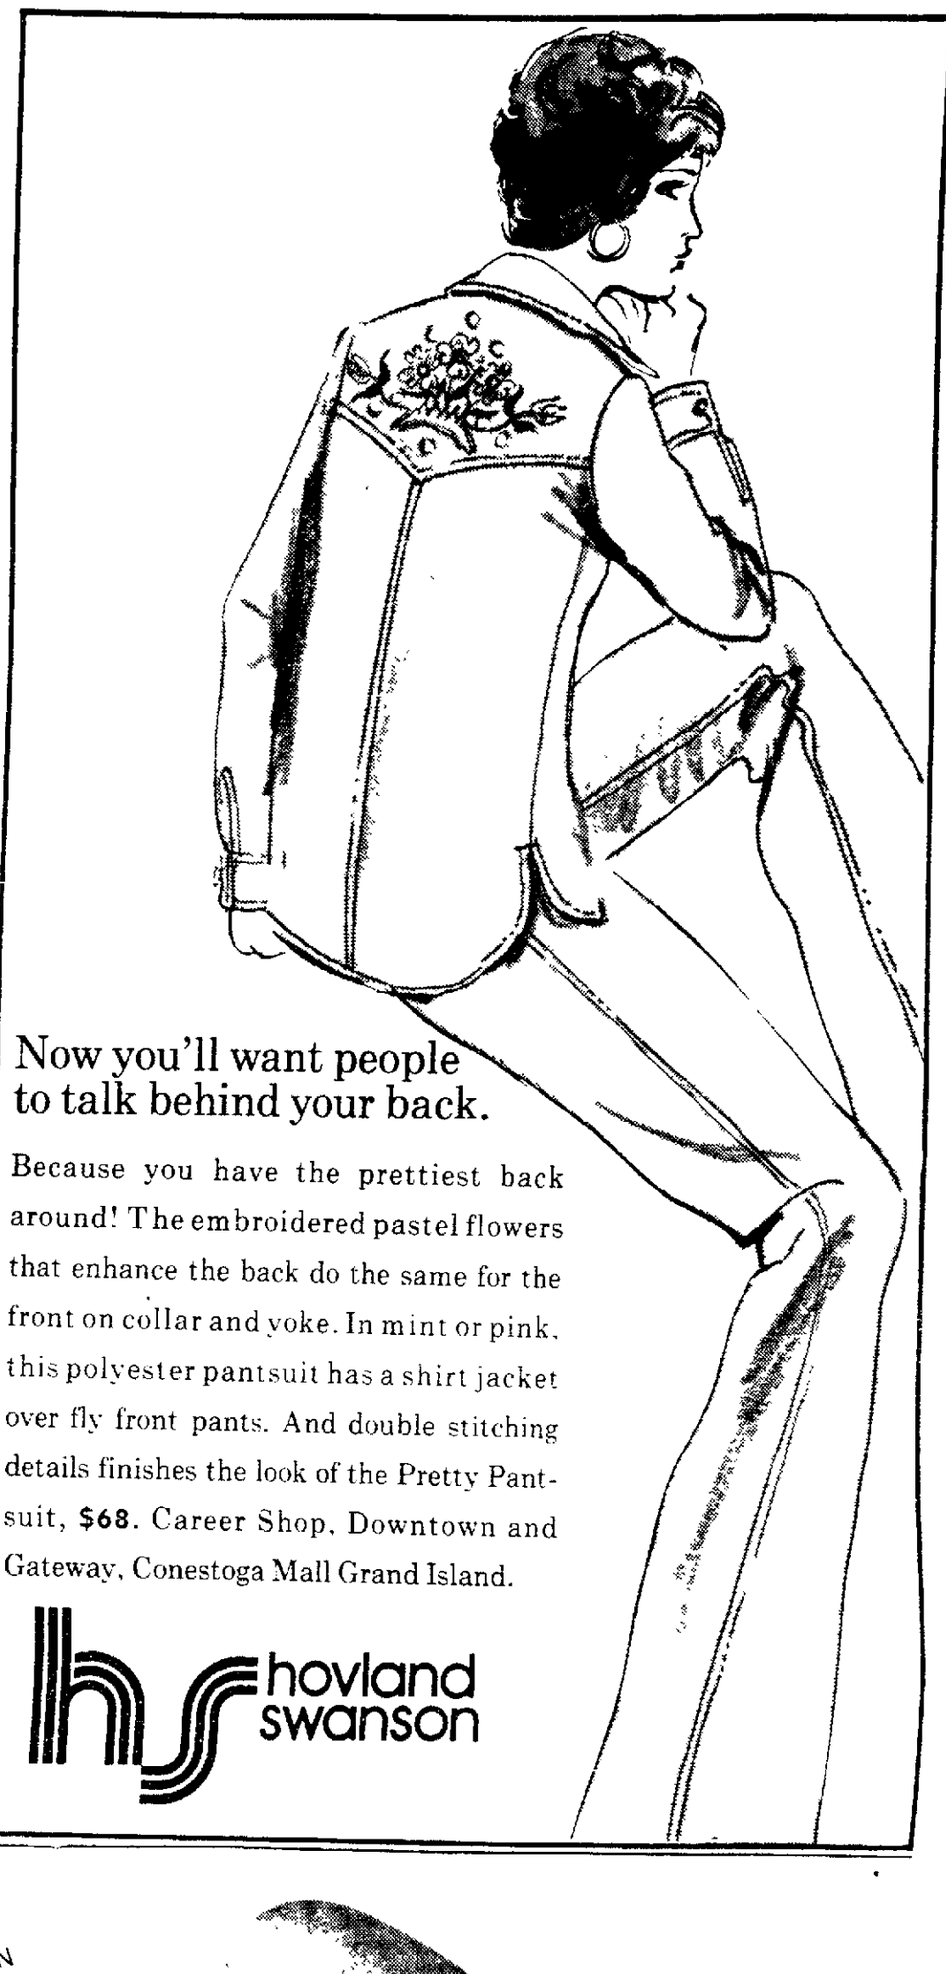

'More Productive'

"I know a lot of times it's easier to keep with what is comfortable rather than change," Fletcher admits. "But we were looking for ways to become more productive.

"In this day and age you have to be more efficient or you're in trouble . . . expecially the smaller companies

"If it makes employes happier, we figure they'll be more efficient and better workers," he states matter of factly

Besides, "it's something the company could do that, in terms of real dollars, didn't cost much." The only expense was installing a time clock

Now you'll want people to talk behind your back.

Because you have the prettiest back around! The embroidered pastel flowers that enhance the back do the same for the front on collar and yoke. In mint or pink, this polyester pantsuit has a shirt jacket over fly front pants. And double stitching details finishes the look of the Pretty Pantsuit, $68. Jaw Pains Attributed To Tension

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — Jaw muscle pain on chewing is more likely to be due to chronic tension than to an organic problem, a University of Illinois researcher says.

While many dentists seek to treat it by grinding the teeth down for a more comfortable bite the Temporamandibular Joint Research Center finds that drugs to relieve tension are more effective

The painful condition, known as myofascial pain dysfunction, affects a large number of people, said psychologoist Ronald Olson of the TMJ center.

"The muscles are so tender, many people are unable to open their mouths," he told the convention of the Chicago dental society yesterday. "Some must limit their diet to liquids.

Cause of the tension frequently can be traced to family or financial problems, trouble on the job or to interpersonal relations.

Relief is obtained with antianxiety medication in more than half the case, said Olson. Sometimes antidepressant drugs are used Hormel knows today's mothers want the facts about what they feed their families.

So we don't kid you about what's in Hormel wieners. You can read our ingredients right up front on the label. Good beef. Good pork. No cereal or other fillers. This protein is the same high quality, complete protein as you get in any good meat.

We don't kid you about nutrition, either. Protein, vitamins — all the nutrients in Hormel wieners — are also listed on our label.

But we haven't forgotten that hot dogs are really fun food for kids. So we make 'em tender, juicy and gently spiced to suit young tastes. And kids really do like Hormel hot dogs. Almost as much as their mothers do.

More Free Medical Clinics Known

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION — Will you please send me a listing of free medical clinics? I understand there are about 400. I have some insurance but very low income and would appreciate the information very much. I live in San Benito, Tex.

ANSWER: — The National Free Clinic Council, 1304 Haight St., San Francisco, Calif. 94117, is compiling a revised list of free clinics. You can write them, and they will give you the name of the free clinic nearest you. Their phone number, in case you need the information at once, is 1-415-864-6232.

They told me that they keep hearing about new free clinics all the time. So, any reader who knows of a free clinic which the National Council may not know about can help out by sending the information to them at the above address.

QUESTION: — Not long ago I read about a new book for persons with the use of only one hand and arm, but I lost the clipping. Do you know the book I mean?

ANSWER: — It is probably "The One-Hander's Book — A Basic Guide to Activities of Daily Living," by Veronica Washam. The publisher is John Day Co., New York, N.Y., and the book costs $10.

I suggest that you ask your local library to purchase a copy so that it can be available on loan to disabled persons in the area.

If you want to, and can afford it, why not donate a copy of the book to your library? Also, you might encourage rehabilitation centers to put it in their libraries for use by their newly disabled patients.

Richard Egner of Pennsauken, N.J., wrote a splendid letter shortly before Christmas, and I'm sorry to say it got temporarily lost in the holiday shuffle. This is part of it:

". . . Man needs company and if he seeks to do something for others he has no worries as to finding or doing things by himself.

"I believe everyone has a duty to perform on this earth. If he or she does not find it, they will be like the man with one talent who hid in the ground and did nothing with it.

"So many oldsters could make life happy for someone if they would only think of the TALENT they as individuals have. A call on the telephone to a shut-in, a visit to a hospital or nursing home, a ride to church for an invalid, or just a plain company visit would stop a person from being lonely.

"I suggest man cannot live alone. He must communicate with someone other than himself."

Mr. Egner's sense of responsibility to others as well as to himself must keep him from being either lonely or bored.

Nuclear Test Held

Yucca Flat, Nev. (UPI) — The second U.S. underground nuclear test of 1975 was carried out at the Nevada Test Site.

North Korea Defaults Hit $130 Million

Seoul (AP) — North Korea's defaults to repay western creditors for its imports of goods on credit are now equal to $130 million, the NaeOe News Service reported.

The semi-government service on Communist affairs said that the debts results from imports of plant facilities from non-communist countries since 1970.

The report quoted unnamed sources as saying that the defaults were due to declining international prices on copper and other minerals, North Korea's major exports and sluggish sales of other products due to poor quality.

Japan topped the list of creditors with $41 million followed by Britain with $28 million.

Farnham: Commission Wants To Help Lincoln

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Harry Farnham wants to help the Lincoln races. But he doesn't want to harm the entire Nebraska horse racing season.

"We always set the dates so it will upgrade the Nebraska racing season," he said. "We've always started Ak-Sar-Ben (the state's largest meeting) around May 1 so the stables racing at Oaklawn (in Hot Springs, Ark.) or the Fair Grounds (in New Orleans) can come to Omaha.

"We can't start Omaha later because those stables won't want to lay up one or two months," he added. "It's to the benefit of Nebraska racing to get the better horses."

That seemed to indicate the commission would not approve Lincoln holding its 1976 horse racing meet so as to conflict with Ak-Sar-Ben

That was just one proposal that was discussed at a commission meeting Monday in Omaha when State Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt received permission from the commission to hold the Lincoln races at another Nebraska track in 1976. That would occur if construction on the new grandstand would not be completed by July — the usual opening of the Lincoln races.

"It's particularly important we help Lincoln in whatever way we (commission) can next year," Farnham said. "I don't think anyone can even begin to realize the good the new plant will be for Lincoln. In fact, I really believe the new grandstand will be too small in a few years. But we don't want to break up a winning program.

In other matters Monday, the commission refused to lift the suspension of jockey Don Stauffer of Central City.

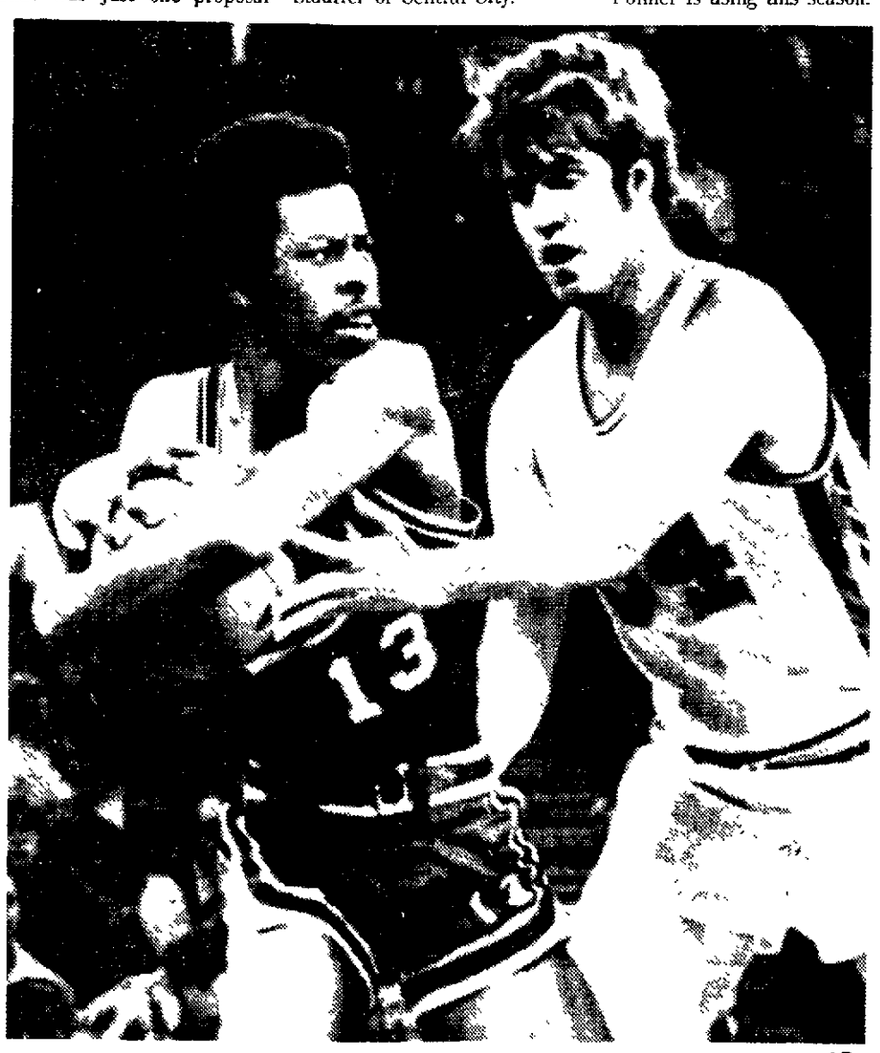

The commission suspended him last April 30 for the rest of the 1974 season and the entire 1975 season for possessing an electrical device during a horse race at Fonner.

"He'll be able to apply for a license again in 1976," Farnham said "We felt at the time that since Stauffer cooperated with us that a two-year suspension was sufficient.

The commission revoked the Fonner mutuel supervisor license of Jack Andersen of Lincoln for incorrectly filling out his mutuel application.

Andersen will be permitted to continue working in publicity areas at Fonner and Ak-Sar-Ben, Farnham said.

Ak-Sar-Ben received permission to hold another exacta race this season. Exactas will be held on the fourth, sixth and ninth races — the same procedure Fonner is using this season.

Big 8 Team Includes Fort

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Oklahoma's Alvan Adams and four guards were named Monday to UPI's 1974-75 All-Big Eight Conference basketball team.

Adams, only a junior, made the team for the third straight year in balloting by a panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Also repeating was Nebraska junior Jerry Fort, one of four backcourt wizards to make the first team. Adams and Fort were joined by Hercle Ivy of Iowa State, Willie Smith of Missouri and Chuckie Williams of Kansas State.

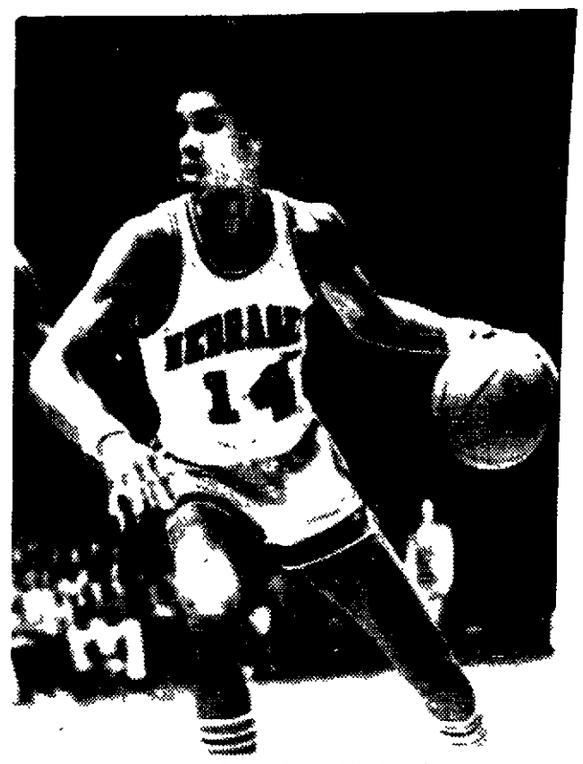

Kansas was shut out from the first team for the second straight year, although the Jayhawks won the championship. Rick Suttle and Roger Morningstar made the second unit, along with Andy Hopson of Oklahoma State, Art Johnson of Iowa State and freshman Mike Evans of Kansas State.

All five first-teamers are juniors and averaged more than 20 points a game through the 26-game regular season schedule. Ivy was the leader with 28.3, followed by Adams 26.5, Smith 22.0, Williams 21.3 and Fort 20.2.

Adams, the Sooners' 6-9 center, also was the conference's leading rebounder with 13.3 per game.

Smith, a junior college transfer from Seminole (Okla.), and Williams, who couldn't crack Kansas State's starting lineup a year ago, were primary factors in leading their teams to post-season tournaments.

Smith paced Missouri to an 18-8 record and third-place finish, which landed the Tigers in the National Commissioner's Invitational Tournament in Louisville. Williams — along with his backcourt running mate, Evans, led Kansas State to an 18-8 mark and a spot in the NCAA East Regional as the Big Eight's second team.

Fairmont Downs Kearney State

Special To Star

Kansas City, Mo. — Fairmont State College of W. Va. stood off a gallant Kearney St. College winning 94-86 in the first round play of the NAIA Tournament of Champions.

Kearney led several times throughout the contest, the last lead stood at 76-75 when, with 6 27 remaining in the contest, Fairmont's all-American Bill Lindsey connected on a short jumper from the baseline and was fouled.

Lindsey hit the free throw, giving the Falcons the lead, 78-76.

Two Kearney turnovers plus a blocked shot resulted in three quick baskets put the Falcons into a 84-76 lead with less than three minutes to play.

In the first half, the Antelopes led as much as eight as Kearney rattled off 12 unanswered points and the margin read 20-12 with 12.26 left. Fairmont closed the gap, outscoring the Antelopes 15-2 during a three minute span.

Kearney managed to close the spread to four points as Fairmont led 50-46 at the intermission.

Kearney's sterling performer, all-stater, Tom Kropp, dazzled the crowd of nearly 9,000 with his long range jumpers and brilliant passing. As he has done all season, he paced the Antelopes' attack with 26 points, 18 rebounds six assists and four steals.

Lindsey was held far below his 25-point average, hitting on 7 of 18 attempts plus two free throws for a game total of 18, but his three point play was considered the turning point.

Kearney State closes out its season with 21-7 record. Fairmont, who entered the tournament second ranked in the national and second seeded, advances into the second round with an impressive 29-4 season mark.

Clubs Bring Stature To Bass

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

In the past several years, largemouth bass have leaped into a runaway lead as the most sought after game fish in America with a following from the upper reaches of Canada to Mexico and Central America.

"I think it's becoming the kind of class fish it's been all along," Dick Kotis said. "Clubs like the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society (BASS) and other bass fishing clubs have brought stature to the fish. It's like the field trial guy or bird dog guy. The fishermen have added prestige to bass fishing."

Dick Kotis

Kotis, one of the nation's foremost authorities on fishing baits and lures, was in Lincoln Monday for the sixth class of the Lincoln Park and Recreation Department/Surplus Center fishing series. He is president of the world's largest lure making, Fred Arbogast Co., and is a board member of the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Assn.

Kotis has fished from one end of the continent to the other, catching bass most of the way. The tackle maker feels fishing clubs, like BASS, have to get most of the credit for bass fishing's bloom but draws some limits as to his support.

"I have mixed emotions about BASS and bass clubs," Kotis commented. "They have done a lot to educate people and get them to participate and get outdoors. But I'm just not sure about the tournaments — the national tournaments with the big money.

"I'd like to see tournament fishing, but at a club level," he added. "I'd hope to take the competition out of fishing and put more sport back in it. But when you're fishing for money, even at a club level, it gets kind of hard not to be competitive."

Kotis feels bass tournaments on the larger reservoirs aren't doing any damage to the bass populations but the competitive atmosphere should be deemphasized.

"There's not a great deal of difference from a successful bass tournament fisherman than from the average successful fisherman," Kotis explained. "Studies have shown they catch about the same number of fish for the amount of time fished. The tournament fisherman just spends a lot more time at it.

Of course, the smaller the reservoir or pond, the more likely it is to be hurt by tournament fishing," Kotis said. He made note of a Michigan experiment where spawning sized fish were removed from a lake The study found the removal to be disruptive of the predator-bait fish balance of the lake.

The fishing expert said the best fishing in any given man-made lake occurs several years after it has been formed The peak period varies with the lake

"I don't think Toledo Bend in Texas has peaked out yet while Sam Rayburn has already peaked," Kotis said of examples "I think this peak period has a lot to do with the amount of cover in the lake That's why Guerro (Mexico's super bass bed) is so good. You're fishing cover all the time. It's like fishing in a forest"

Kotis feels this is where a number of bass clubs and individuals have been doing their good Many groups have been building man-made cover by sinking Christmas trees or brush piles where no cover existed before The brush in turn blossoms into a hot-bed for fish.

"I find it amazing but a number of these Army Corps of Engineers impoundments are cleared before they are filled," he said. "They bulldoze out all the brush and trees. If they'd just leave those in, fishing would be great."

Bass clubs not only are creating fishing spots where none have been, they are making tremendous headway in the tackle business. Kotis said Equipment, boats motors, tackle and lures have all undergone a facelift, largely in response to bass fishing pursuits.

The South is where the bass is truly No 1 and where the fever is generated So much interest has been placed on the fish Oklahoma has hired a new man in its fisheries department His sole purpose in life is to help people catch more bass and monitor tournament catches He's likely just the first of many, according to Kotis.

Haynes Puzzles Over Tech's Class B Opponents

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

If outstate teams think they have an identity crisis concerning Omaha Tech in the State Class B Basketball Tournament, consider the plight of Tech coach Gene Haynes

He attended Sunday's Nebraska School Activities Assoc (NSAA) pairings meeting in Lincoln. When he found out his top-rated Trojans open Thursday against Ord, he began scrutinizing the Chanticleers' schedule.

Imagine his puzzlement when such Ord foes as Centura, West Holt, Burwell and St. Paul were brought to light. Haynes, whose team hasn't played outside of Metro Omaha the entire season, admits he's never heard of any of those places.

"I didn't know there was a Grand Island Northwest either," offered Haynes, a Mississippi native who moved to Tech for his first coaching and teaching job eight years ago, serving the last four years as head coach.

"I've never been any further west than Kearney," says Haynes "In fact, most anything outside of Omaha is foreign country to me. This state tourney should be quite a switch for everyone

"We're not selling anyone short in this thing," he emphasizes. "I know Ord can put the ball in the hoop. You don't win 19 games without being able to do that."

Haynes called a meeting of his players at his home Sunday night. "We started talking about Ord then. They wanted to know everything they could, but I wasn't able to tell much," he said.

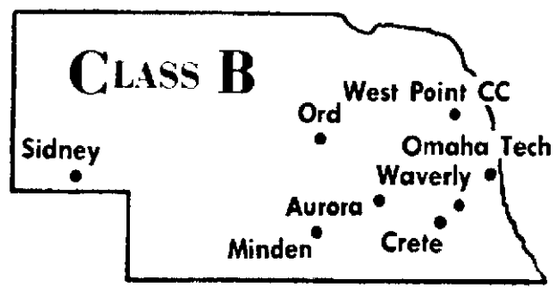

"Our players have seen Ord, Minden and West Point Central Catholic in the ratings all season. They know they're out there playing good basketball," he added.

"You had us rated No. 1 before the season even started, so I'm sure everyone's kept tabs on us, too," Haynes said of the Sunday Journal and Star ratings.

"This tourney's a guessing game. Whoever comes up with the key part is going to win the thing," according to Haynes. "Our student body is turned on. They're making reservations to stay until Saturday. I hope we can oblige them "

Ord coach Ken Trubey says "we played Omaha Holy Name in the state tourney one year and that's the only game Ord's played against a metropolitan school.

"True, Tech's competition has been better," he added. "A lot of people have extended a lot of sympathy. But I don't go along with it. You have to play the best sometime along the line anyway. You might as well get in and find out right off the bat."

West Point CC (22-2)

They are leading scorer Glenn Randel (18 5 average), 6-4 backcourt mate Warren Ortmeier (14.5) and 6-2 forward James Ridder (10.0)

Six-six center Bob Reeson, who's averaging 17.5 points and 18.6 rebounds, was a first-line substitute on last year's team. Forward Jim Meiergerd is the Bluejays' other starter.

"We shouldn't get the big city jitters like we did last year," Central Catholic coach Duane Mendlik believes. Randel, an accomplished outside marksman, has scored more than 1,100 career points.

Ord (19-2)

The Chants have beaten two state tourney entries in Aurora and Minden, the two teams paired in the same semifinal bracket with Ord and Tech.

Jeff Quinn and Bill Gogan are the scoring leaders with 16-point averages. Tom Clement, a 5-10 guard, averages 13 points a game.

Steve Wolf (6-2) averages nine points, but he's considered one of the Central 10 Conference's foremost rebounders with a 13-rebound average.

Six-three Bill Cicmanek is Ord's other regular. He averages seven points a game. Ord lost to eventual state champion Pius X, 57-55, in last year's semifinals.

Minden (16-3)

Percentage-wise, Minden ranks with the best and could give every opponent a stiff challenge

Houston is averaging 11 7 points per game. Mark Etzelmiller, a 6-2 senior all-state football player, is hitting 52 per cent and 19.1 points and junior Chuch Schnoor 56 per cent and 15 points.

Mark Nielsen (55 per cent) and Dean Schwenka (54 per cent) are Bartek's other two starters. He gives an great amount of credit to senior subs Neil Carlson and Tim DeCamp and soph Bentley Benson for their late-season efforts.

Minden's trip will be its first since 1963 although Bartek was in Lincoln with his Osceola team in 1969.

Sidney (18-4)

No other Red Raider starters average in double scoring figures. But 6-1 senior center Jeff O'Connell and 6-2 junior forward Steve Cook are close with 9-point averages

Crete (17-4)

Coach Walt Harris is guiding his fourth team in the last seven years into the state tournament. The Cardinals have fared well with one title, one runnerup finish and one semifinal appearance.

Three juniors are in the Crete starting lineup — guard Gary Lothrop (5-11) and forwards Mark Erickson (6-3) and Brad Wittstruck (5-11).

Senior front-liner Daryl Wittstruck (6-2) is the scoring leader with a 20-point average. Erickson contributes 15 5 per game.

Guard Bill Bals, an 8.1-point average scorer, is Crete's other scorer. Six-four senior Nick Bohl, who owns an 8.7 average, plays an important substitute role.

Aurora (16-4)

Senior Doug Sweeney (6-2), who plays both guard and forward, is a solid all-state candidate He averages 20.9 points and 13 1 rebounds per game, both team highs

The Huskies aren't big, but they have balanced height in Keith Erlenbusch (8 5 scoring average) and Doug Person (6 7 average), both 6-3, and Steve Cranfill (9 0) and Tom Wyatt (6.9), both 6-2

Coach Bill Holliday, Nebraska's all-time leading prep basketball scorer and a native of Wilsonville, lost a 69-61 regular season decision to opening-round foe Minden

Omaha Tech (18-5)

Richard Brown, a 6-5 senior center, is the Trojans' leading scorer and rebounder with 15-point and 10-rebound averages. He's also a standout defensive end in football

Six-three Ray Toles, an all-Metro Conference defensive tackle, is a forward starter and averages 11 points a game So does 6-0 guard Howard Cotton

Six-three Martin Williams, who became eligible a month ago after transferring from Boys Town, starts at guard and 6-2 Franklin Dulaney opens at forward. Each averages seven points a game.

Waverly (15-6)

The Vikings overcame a power outing postponement in their district semifinal encounter with Wahoo and came back to blast Arlington in the finals, 47-31, after spotting the foes an extra night's rest.

Balanced scoring has keyed coach Jim Christensen's club's attack down the stretch. Junior Myron Leibel and senior Tarryl Bockelman, at 12 and 13 points per game respectively, join season scoring leader Ed VandeHoef at 18.5 points per game.

Christensen, a graduate of the University of South Dakota in 1967, coached six years at West Point, home of the Central Catholic Bluejays, Waverly's opening round opponent.

If the Vikings play any of their state tourney foes close, they should have the edge since seven of their 15 wins this season were under pressure of a tight score, many in the last few seconds.

Farnham: Commission Wants To Help Lincoln

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Harry Farnham wants to help the Lincoln races. But he doesn't want to harm the entire Nebraska horse racing season.

"We always set the dates so it will upgrade the Nebraska racing season," he said. "We've always started Ak-Sar-Ben (the state's largest meeting) around May 1 so the stables racing at Oaklawn (in Hot Springs, Ark.) or the Fair Grounds (in New Orleans) can come to Omaha.

"We can't start Omaha later because those stables won't want to lay up one or two months," he added. "It's to the benefit of Nebraska racing to get the better horses."

That seemed to indicate the commission would not approve Lincoln holding its 1976 horse racing meet so as to conflict with Ak-Sar-Ben.

That was just one proposal that was discussed at a commission meeting Monday in Omaha when State Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt received permission from the commission to hold the Lincoln races at another Nebraska track in 1976. That would occur if construction on the new grandstand would not be completed by July — the usual opening of the Lincoln races.

The commission revoked the Fonner mutuel supervisor license of Jack Andersen of Lincoln for incorrectly filling out his mutuel application.

Andersen will be permitted to continue working in publicity areas at Fonner and Ak-Sar-Ben, Farnham said.

Ak-Sar-Ben received permission to hold another exacta race this season. Exactas will be held on the fourth, sixth and ninth races — the same procedure Fonner is using this season.

He is president of the world's largest lure making, Fred Arbogast Co., and is a board member of the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Assn.

Kotis has fished from one end of the continent to the other, catching bass most of the way. The tackle maker feels fishing clubs, like BASS, have to get most of the credit for bass fishing's bloom but draws some limits as to his support.

"I have mixed emotions about BASS and bass clubs," Kotis commented. "They have done a lot to educate people and get them to participate and get outdoors. But I'm just not sure about the tournaments — the national tournaments with the big money.

"I'd like to see tournament fishing, but at a club level," he added. "I'd hope to take the competition out of fishing and put more sport back in it. But when you're fishing for money, even at a club level, it gets kind of hard not to be competitive."

Kotis feels bass tournaments on the larger reservoirs aren't doing any damage to the bass populations but the competitive atmosphere should be deemphasized.

Dick Kotis

"There's not a great deal of difference from a successful bass tournament fisherman than from the average successful fisherman," Kotis explained. "Studies have shown they catch about the same number of fish for the amount of time fished. The tournament fisherman just spends a lot more time at it.

"Of course, the smaller the reservoir or pond, the more likely it is to be hurt by tournament fishing," Kotis said. He made note of a Michigan experiment where spawning sized fish were removed from a lake. The study found the removal to be disruptive of the predator-bait fish balance of the lake.

The fishing expert said the best fishing in any given man-made lake occurs several years after it has been formed. The peak period varies with the lake.

"I don't think Toledo Bend in Texas has peaked out yet while Sam Rayburn has already peaked," Kotis said of examples. "I think this peak period has a lot to do with the amount of cover in the lake. That's why Guerro (Mexico's super bass bed) is so good. You're fishing cover all the time. It's like fishing in a forest."

Kotis feels this is where a number of bass clubs and individuals have been doing their good. Many groups have been building man-made cover by sinking Christmas trees or brush piles where no cover existed before. The brush in turn blossoms into a hot-bed for fish.

"I find it amazing but a number of these Army Corps of Engineers impoundments are cleared before they are filled," he said. "They bulldoze out all the brush and trees. If they'd just leave those in, fishing would be great."

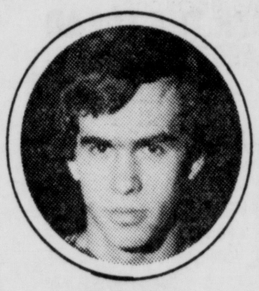

Bass clubs not only are creating fishing spots where none have been, they are making tremendous headway in the tackle business, Kotis said. Equipment, boats, motors, tackle and lures have all undergone a facelift, largely in response to bass fishing pursuits.

The South is where the bass is truly No. 1 and where the fever is generated. So much interest has been placed on the fish Oklahoma has hired a new man in its fisheries department. His sole purpose in life is to help people catch more bass and monitor tournament catches. He's likely just the first of many, according to Kotis.

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Southeast of Fairbury, Neb., dropped a 69-68 elimination decision to Powell, Wyo., in the junior college regional basketball tournament at Casper Monday.

The Nebraskans held a three-point lead with seconds to play but Powell scored a basket and Chris Jones added a pair of free throws for the victory.

Haynes Puzzles Over Tech's Class B Opponents

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

If outstate teams think they have an identity crisis concerning Omaha Tech in the State Class B Basketball Tournament, consider the plight of Tech coach Gene Haynes.

He attended Sunday's Nebraska School Activities Assoc. (NSAA) pairings meeting in Lincoln. When he found out his top-rated Trojans open Thursday against Ord, he began scrutinizing the Chanticleers' schedule.

Imagine his puzzlement when such Ord foes as Centura, West Holt, Burwell and St. Paul were brought to light. Haynes, whose team hasn't played outside of Metro Omaha the entire season, admits he's never heard of any of those places.

"I didn't know there was a Grand Island Northwest either," offered Haynes, a Mississippi native who moved to Tech for his first coaching and teaching job eight years ago, serving the last four years as head coach.

"I've never been any further west than Kearney," says Haynes. "In fact, most anything outside of Omaha is foreign country to me. This state tourney should be quite a switch for everyone.

"We're not selling anyone short in this thing," he emphasizes. "I know Ord can put the ball in the hoop. You don't win 19 games without being able to do that."

Haynes called a meeting of his players at his home Sunday night. "We started talking about Ord then. They wanted to know everything they could, but I wasn't able to tell much," he said.

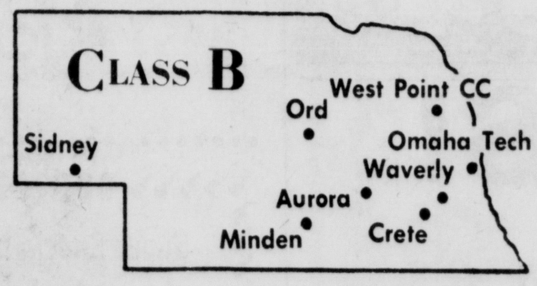

"Our players have seen Ord, Minden and West Point Central Catholic in the ratings all season. They know they're out there playing good basketball," he added.

"You had us rated No. 1 before the season even started, so I'm sure everyone's kept tabs on us, too," Haynes said of the Sunday Jouranl and Star ratings.

"This tourney's a guessing game. Whoever comes up with the key part is going to win the thing," according to Haynes. "Our student body is turned on. They're making reservations to stay until Saturday. I hope we can oblige them."

Ord coach Ken Trubey says "we played Omaha Holy Name in the state tourney one year and that's the only game Ord's played against a metropolitan school.

"True, Tech's competition has been better," he added. "A lot of people have extended a lot of sympathy. But I don't go along with it. You have to play the best sometime along the line anyway. You might as well get in and find out right off the bat."

West Point CC (22-2)

They are leading scorer Glenn Randel (18.5 average), 6-4 backcourt mate Warren Ortmeier (14.5) and 6-2 forward James Ridder (10.0)

Six-six center Bob Reeson, who's averaging 17.5 points and 18.6 rebounds, was a first-line substitute on last year's team. Forward Jim Meiergerd is the Bluejays' other starter.

"We shouldn't get the big city jitters like we did last year," Central Catholic coach Duane Mendlik believes. Randel, an accomplished outside marksman, has scored more than 1,100 career points.

Ord (19-2)

The Chants have beaten two state tourney entries in Aurora and Minden, the two teams paired in the same semifinal bracket with Ord and Tech.

Jeff Quinn and Bill Gogan are the scoring leaders with 16-point averages. Tom Clement, a 5-10 guard, averages 13 points a game.

Steve Wolf (6-2) averages nine points, but he's considered one of the Central 10 Conference's foremost rebounders with a 13-rebound average.

Six-three Bill Cicmanek is Ord's other regular. He averages seven points a game. Ord lost to eventual state champion Pius X, 57-55, in last year's semifinals.

Minden (16-3)

Percentage-wise, Minden ranks with the best and could give every opponent a stiff challenge.

Houston is averaging 11.7 points per game. Mark Etzelmiller, a 6-2 senior all-state football player, is hitting 52 per cent and 19.1 points and junior Chuch Schnoor 56 per cent and 15 points.

Mark Nielsen (55 per cent) and Dean Schwenka (54 per cent) are Bartek's other two starters. He gives an great amount of credit to senior subs Neil Carlson and Tim DeCamp and soph Bentley Benson for their late-season efforts.

Minden's trip will be its first since 1963 although Bartek was in Lincoln with his Osceola team in 1969.

Sidney (18-4)

No other Red Raider starters average in double scoring figures. But 6-1 senior center Jeff O'Connell and 6-2 junior forward Steve Cook are close with 9-point averages.

Junior guard Mark Rogers (5-9) and senior forward Jerry Hadden (6-2) combine for 13 more points per game.

Crete (17-4)

Coach Walt Harris is guiding his fourth team in the last seven years into the state tournament. The Cardinals have fared well with one title, one runnerup finish and one semifinal appearance.

Three juniors are in the Crete starting lineup — guard Gary Lothrop (5-11) and forwards Mark Erickson (6-3) and Brad Wittstruck (5-11).

Senior front-liner Daryl Wittstruck (6-2) is the scoring leader with a 20-point average. Erickson contributes 15.5 per game.

Guard Bill Bals, an 8.1-point average scorer, is Crete's other scorer. Six-four senior Nick Bohl, who owns an 8.7 average, plays an important substitute role.

Aurora (16-4)

Senior Doug Sweeney (6-2), who plays both guard and forward, is a solid all-state candidate. He averages 20.9 points and 13.1 rebounds per game, both team highs.

The Huskies aren't big, but they have balanced height in Keith Erlenbusch (8.5 scoring average) and Doug Person (6.7 average), both 6-3, and Steve Cranfill (9.0) and Tom Wyatt (6.9), both 6-2.

Coach Bill Holliday, Nebraska's all-time leading prep basketball scorer and a native of Wilsonville, lost a 69-61 regular season decision to opening-round foe Minden.

Aurora last qualified for the state tourney in 1971, losing to Fairbury in the semifinals.

Omaha Tech (18-5)

Richard Brown, a 6-5 senior center, is the Trojans' leading scorer and rebounder with 15-point and 10-rebound averages. He's also a standout defensive end in football.

Six-three Ray Toles, an all-Metro Conference defensive tackle, is a forward starter and averages 11 points a game. So does 6-0 guard Howard Cotton.

Six-three Martin Williams, who became eligible a month ago after transferring from Boys Town, starts at guard and 6-2 Franklin Dulaney opens at forward. Each averages seven points a game.

Waverly (15-6)

The Vikings overcame a power outing postponement in their district semifinal encounter with Wahoo and came back to blast Arlington in the finals, 47-31, after spotting the foes an extra night's rest.

Balanced scoring has keyed coach Jim Christensen's club's attack down the stretch. Junior Myron Leibel and senior Tarryl Bockelman, at 12 and 13 points per game respectively, join season scoring leader Ed VandeHoef at 18.5 points per game.

Christensen, a graduate of the University of South Dakota in 1967, coached six years at West Point, home of the Central Catholic Bluejays, Waverly's opening round opponent.

If the Vikings play any of their state tourney foes close, they should have the edge since seven of their 15 wins this season were under pressure of a tight score, many in the last few seconds.

Rich Athletic Tradition Follows Grant To State Tourney

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Success doesn t necessarily breed more prosperity, but try telling Grant that

Through the years, Grant has built perhaps the richest athletic tradition in the state Class C prep ranks

This year is no exception The Perkins County school enters this week s 65th annual State High School Basketball Tourna ment as Nebraska s only unbeaten team with a 23-0 record

Grant coach Tom Lawson credits two factors for the Plainsmen success (1) tradition in all sports and its corresponding winning attitude, (2) a spirited enthusiastic following

I m convinced our backing has played a definite role in accomplishing the first undefeated regular season in our school s history maintains Lawson, a 1967 Kearney State College graduate

We have the most involved fans in Nebraska — second to none he insists When we fell behind North Platte St Pat s in the fourth quarter of our district finals they helped us rise to the occasion and meet the challenge (in a 59-50 win) They got behind us and we pushed out '

Lawson points out that Grant has experienced one of its greatest overall athletic years

' Our varsity football, varsity basketball and reserve basketball record to date is 48 wins and 1 loss,' notes Lawson "Our girls volleyball team also qualified for the state tourney and finished 15-4

Lawson s team is making a second straight state tournament appearance having lost a 58-51 decision to Raymond Central in the opening round last year

Lawson has compiled an 84-35 career coaching record

Grant (23-0)

Overall quickness could be the greatest asset for the Plainsmen, who start five seniors

Six-three Randy Beckler has drawn strong all-state support with his 20 point and 13 5-rebound averages Rod Young a 5 10 guard contributes a 17 7 scoring average

Rod Gaston (5-11), Ron Salsman (6-0) and Duane Reynolds (6-1) aren't prolific scorers but they re accomplished individuals dedicated to team goals

Louisville (22-2)

Coach Fred Applegate, a 1955 Peru State College graduate, has guided his teams to three Galaxy Conference Tournament championships in the last five years

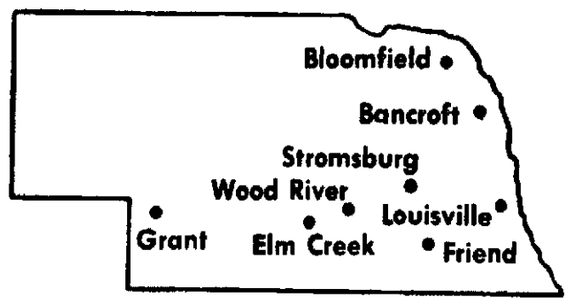

He s compiled a 109-40 record at Louisville and piloted the Lions 1972 team into the state tourney Balance has been the key to this year s superlative effort

John Beck 6-4 senior center, is the scoring leader with a 14 8 average Applegate s son, 6-5 senior Stacy, averages 13 4 points and is the team s leading rebounder with an 11 8 average

Six three Rob Meisinger lends more height to the lineup and a 13 1 scoring average Juniors Mark Hrabik and Kirk Bender combine for 19 5 points a game while handling the backcourt duties

Friend (22-3)

The Bulldogs are a tournament-tested team, having won the rugged Nebraska

Wesleyan Holiday title with wins over Raymond Central, Shickley and Louisville, the Pioneer Conference championship and of course, the district title

Rohrig Stokes and Jochim also average double figures in rebounds Randy Miller and Mark Kinsman are quick, competent guards

Stromsburg (18-4)

The Vikings gained momentum in a late-season stretch which saw them defeat Friend (64-59), Milford (65-56) and Raymond Central (59-40), among others

Senior forward Jeff Johnson averages 18 points a game His 15-foot jump shot with four seconds remaining gave the Vikings a 49-48 win over Madison in the regional playoff last week

Senior Ken Schutt and Junior Steve Peterson, both 6-2, average 14 and 10 points a game, respectively Jay Petersen and Jason Moore are the other starters

Coach Kurth Deland, a 1966 Black Hills (S D) State College graduate, has a 56-45 career record

Elm Creek (17-4)

The Buffaloes' 6-2 Bill Ourada could be the best player in the history of the proud and competitive Fort Kearney Conference, according to many league coaches

"Many Class B coaches in this area say the same thing," says Elm Creek coach Emmit Bosshamer "He has tremendous quickness and spring He can easily put his elbows on the rim to explain his spring "

Ourada, a 6-2 senior forward, averages almost 24 points and 13 rebound a game He helped Elm Creek emerge out of a tough district, which included Alma and Bertrand

Other starters and scoring averages include Bill's cousin, Jim (6 7), John Hahn (8 4), Rod Hazzard (13 1) and Bill Stauffer (7 0)

Bosshamer, a 1966 Kearney State College graduate, has an 83 32 career record

Bancroft (16-6)

The Bulldogs played only three games on their home court this season because of inadequate facilities "Our volleyball court is the restraining line on our basketball floor," acknowledges Bancroft coach Gordon Fliehe

Bancroft, making its first state tourney appearance in 14 years, is led by 5-10 guard Doak Wegner He averages 23 points a game

Other starters and scoring averages include Mick Samuelson (18) Randy Tietz (9), Murk Plambeck (6) and Jeff Konicek (5)

Fliehe is a 1972 graduate of Northern (S D) State College He has a 41-23 coaching record

Wood River (15-6)

Coach Dale Smidt emphasizes defense His Eagles have held opponents to 45 or less points in 11 of their last 16 games

Mike Thomsen, a 6-3½ senior center leads the team in both scoring and rebounding with 15 5 and 10 2 averages

Six-five Kent Luebs 6-1 Marty Wissing and 5-6 Matt Moyer own approximate 10-point averages Gary Mazour and Sam Moyer share the other guard spot in the starting lineup

Smidt a 1961 Kearney State graduate owns a 150-116 record in 14 years of coaching

Bloomfield (10-15)

The Bees have the worst record in the state tournament, but they ve won their last five games after winning only five of their first 20

Mike Goeden, a 6-4 senior center and Doug Ketelsen a 5-9 senior guard have sparked the surge They own 15 and 12-point scoring averages respectively

Guard Bruce Hagge and forwards Steve Willats and Vernie Broders complete the starting lineup for coach Tom Mastalir a 1970 South Dakota-Springfield graduate with a 12-32 career record

Three York Picks Alive

Just how accurate are the long-range pre-season predictions on high school basketball by the Journal and Star prep picker Randy York?

Since this is my first trip through a Nebraska high school cage season I decided to sneak a look at the Dec 1 issues of the Sunday Journal and Star to find the answer and it is good

Three of the four No 1 picks still are in the running for class championships starting Thursday here in the Capital City Only Geneva rated No 1 in Class C at the outset is missing

Omaha Central and Creighton Prep were rated 1-2 in Class A and both along with Lincoln Southeast (which was sixth) and North Platte (which was eighth) still are alive

In Class B Randy named Omaha Tech No 1 and the Trojans will be here bidding for their first-ever Class B title after dropping down from Class A for the first time because of declining enrollment

The only other Class B pre season pick for the top ten still competing is Minden

Shickley was accorded the No 1 Class D rating and the veteran Longhorns still are hopeful of completing a double this season having won the Class D No 1 rating in football

Class D as a group comes into the NSAA tournament with the best overall record The eight teams have posted a 151 26 mark Class B is 141 30 Class C 143-40 and Class A 123-41 Looks like an interesting weekend of basketball

Adams And Four Guards

When trying to figure out how to vote on the All Big Eight basketball squad it was tough not to vote for Alvan Adams of Oklahoma a center and then for four guards

Jerry Fort of Nebraska, of course, is one of them Then you have to go with Chuckie Williams of Kansas State, Willie Smith of Missouri and perhaps Iowa State's Hercle Ivy I imagine Kansas will land somebody, most likely Rick Suttle, but 1975 wasn't a year for forwards in the conference

Coach of the year? You have to go with a tie between Kansas State s Jack Hartman and Missouri s Norm Stewart Both turned in fine records despite starting the year with very little in the way of experienced hands returning

The league s three tournament representatives don t figure to do very well Kansas faces Notre Dame Kansas State plays Ivy League champion Pennsylvania and Missouri goes against Purdue The season could end quickly for all three teams

New NCAA Champ Assured

North Carolina State will be on the sidelines as the nation s major college basketball teams begin NCAA tournament play Saturday The Wolfpack in fact turned down a chance to compete in the NIT in New York after losing to North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament last Saturday

Indiana, with a perfect 29-0 record, probably is the favorite in the NCAA, but not by as much as the Hoosiers might have been had they not lost forward Scott May with a broken arm three weeks ago

But don t count Indiana out of it May got into last Saturday s game against Michigan State wearing a brace acceptable to NCAA safety rules and should be ready for even more action Saturday against Texas-El Paso

UCLA s perennial champions might be the logical choice to regain the title lost in double overtime last year to NC State

The Bruins play Michigan Saturday at Pullman Wash and then host the West Regional at Pauley Pavilion where they re invincible Then the finals will be played in friendly San Diego

The annual rumor is making the rounds. John Wooden of UCLA will retire after 27 years as head coach of the Bruins. Wooden, now 64, naturally denies the report.

Wooden said the report which was initiated by Washington State coach George Raveling 'might have been made for recruiting purposes Could be true too

Bucks Bounce Kings

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareen Abdul Jabbar held to two points in the third quarter, put in 13 in the final period to lead Milwaukee to a 103-96 National Basketball Association victory Monday over Kansas City-Omaha

Abdul-Jabbar scored 34 points as the Bucks won their fourth game in five tries, closing to within one game of Detroit in the battle for third place in the Midwest Division and a possible wildcat playoff berth

The score was tied eight times in the second half before Abdul Jabbar converted a three point play fired a floor-length pass to Mickey Davis for a layup and sank a hook shot to give the Bucks a 92 84 lead with 5 14 to pay

The Kings got within 94-91, but Bob Dandridge made a three-point play, intercepted a pass fed George Thompson for a layup and tipped in a basket to put the Bucks up 101-94

Jon McGlocklin added 16 points for the Bucks including seven long-range baskets in 10 shots McGlocklin has hit 48 of his last 68 field-goal attempts

Rich Athletic Tradition Follows Grant To State Tourney

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Success doesn't necessarily breed more prosperity, but try telling Grant that.

Through the years, Grant has built perhaps the richest athletic tradition in the state Class C prep ranks.

This year is no exception. The Perkins County school enters this week's 65th annual State High School Basketball Tournament as Nebraska's only unbeaten team with a 23-0 record.

Grant coach Tom Lawson credits two factors for the Plainsmen success: (1) tradition in all sports and its corresponding winning attitude; (2) a spirited, enthusiastic following.

"I'm convinced our backing has played a definite role in accomplishing the first undefeated regular season in our school's history," maintains Lawson, a 1967 Kearney State College graduate.

"We have the most involved fans in Nebraska — second to none," he insists. "When we fell behind North Platte St. Pat's in the fourth quarter of our district finals, they helped us rise to the occasion and meet the challenge (in a 59-50 win). They got behind us and we pushed out."

Lawson points out that Grant has experienced one of its greatest overall athletic years.

"Our varsity football, varsity basketball and reserve basketball record to date is 48 wins and 1 loss," notes Lawson. "Our girls volleyball team also qualified for the state tourney and finished 15-4."

Lawson has compiled an 84-35 career coaching record.

Grant (23-0)

Overall quickness could be the greatest asset for the Plainsmen, who start five seniors.

Six-three Randy Beckler has drawn strong all-state support with his 20-point and 13.5-rebound averages. Rod Young, a 5-10 guard, contributes a 17.7 scoring average.

Rod Gaston (5-11), Ron Salsman (6-0) and Duane Reynolds (6-1) aren't prolific scorers, but they're accomplished individuals dedicated to team goals.

Louisville (22-2)

Coach Fred Applegate, a 1955 Peru State College graduate, has guided his teams to three Galaxy Conference Tournament championships in the last five years.

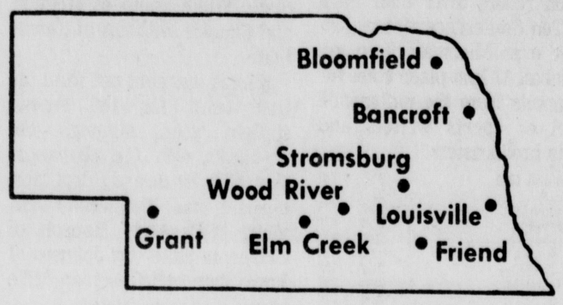

He's compiled a 109-40 record at Louisville and piloted the Lions' 1972 team into the state tourney. Balance has been the key to this year's superlative effort.

John Beck, 6-4 senior center, is the scoring leader with a 14.8 average. Applegate's son, 6-5 senior Stacy, averages 13.4 points and is the team's leading rebounder with an 11.8 average.

Six-three Rob Meisinger lends more height to the lineup and a 13.1 scoring average. Juniors Mark Hrabik and Kirk Bender combine for 19.5 points a game while handling the backcourt duties.

Friend (22-3)

The Bulldogs are a tournament-tested team, having won the rugged Nebraska

Wesleyan Holiday title with wins over Raymond Central, Shickley and Louisville, the Pioneer Conference championship and of course, the district title.

Friend emerged from the district which included No. 1-rated Wilber and No. 2-rated Geneva. Balanced scoring, rebounding and assists make coach Don Pieper's club a solid contender.

Stromsburg (18-4)

The Vikings gained momentum in a late-season stretch which saw them defeat Friend (64-59), Milford (65-56) and Raymond Central (59-40), among others.

Senior forward Jeff Johnson averages 18 points a game. His 15-foot jump shot with four seconds remaining gave the Vikings a 49-48 win over Madison in the regional playoff last week.

Senior Ken Schutt and Junior Steve Peterson, both 6-2, average 14 and 10 points a game, respectively. Jay Petersen and Jason Moore are the other starters.

Coach Kurth Deland, a 1966 Black Hills (S.D.) State College graduate, has a 56-45 career record.

Elm Creek (17-4)

The Buffaloes' 6-2 Bill Ourada could be the best player in the history of the proud and competitive Fort Kearney Conference, according to many league coaches.

"Many Class B coaches in this area say the same thing," says Elm Creek coach Emmit Bosshamer. "He has tremendous quickness and spring. He can easily put his elbows on the rim to explain his spring."

Ourada, a 6-2 senior forward, averages almost 24 points and 13 rebound a game. He helped Elm Creek emerge out of a tough district, which included Alma and Bertrand.

Other starters and scoring averages include Bill's cousin, Jim (6.7), John Hahn (8.4), Rod Hazzard (13.1) and Bill Stauffer (7.0).

Bosshamer, a 1966 Kearney State College graduate, has an 83-32 career record.

Bancroft (16-6)

The Bulldogs played only three games on their home court this season because of inadequate facilities. "Our volleyball court is the restraining line on our basketball floor," acknowledges Bancroft coach Gordon Fliehe.

Bancroft, making its first state tourney appearance in 14 years, is led by 5-10 guard Doak Wegner. He averages 23 points a game.

Other starters and scoring averages include Mick Samuelson (18), Randy Tietz (9), Murk Plambeck (6) and Jeff Konicek (5).

Fliehe is a 1972 graduate of Northern (S.D.) State College. He has a 41-23 coaching record.

Wood River (15-6)

Coach Dale Smidt emphasizes defense. His Eagles have held opponents to 45 or less points in 11 of their last 16 games.

Mike Thomsen, a 6-3½ senior center, leads the team in both scoring and rebounding with 15.5 and 10.2 averages.

Six-five Kent Luebs, 6-1 Marty Wissing and 5-6 Matt Moyer own approximate 10-point averages. Gary Mazour and Sam Moyer share the other guard spot in the starting lineup.

Smidt, a 1961 Kearney State graduate, owns a 150-116 record in 14 years of coaching.

Bloomfield (10-15)

The Bees have the worst record in the state tournament, but they've won their last five games after winning only five of their first 20.

Mike Goeden, a 6-4 senior center, and Doug Ketelsen, a 5-9 senior guard, have sparked the surge. They own 15 and 12-point scoring averages, respectively.

Guard Bruce Hagge and forwards Steve Willats and Vernie Broders complete the starting lineup for coach Tom Mastalir, a 1970 South Dakota-Springfield graduate with a 12-32 career record.

Three York Picks Alive

Just how accurate are the long-range pre-season predictions on high school basketball by the Journal and Star prep picker Randy York?

Since this is my first trip through a Nebraska high school cage season, I decided to sneak a look at the Dec. 1 issues of the Sunday Journal and Star to find the answer and it is good.

Three of the four No. 1 picks still are in the running for class championships starting Thursday here in the Capital City. Only Geneva, rated No. 1 in Class C at the outset, is missing.

Omaha Central and Creighton Prep were rated 1-2 in Class A and both, along with Lincoln Southeast (which was sixth) and North Platte (which was eighth) still are alive.

In Class B, Randy named Omaha Tech No. 1 and the Trojans will be here bidding for their first-ever Class B title after dropping down from Class A for the first time because of declining enrollment.

The only other Class B pre-season pick for the top ten still competing is Minden.

Shickley was accorded the No. 1 Class D rating and the veteran Longhorns still are hopeful of completing a double this season, having won the Class D No. 1 rating in football.

Class D as a group comes into the NSAA tournament with the best overall record. The eight teams have posted a 151-26 mark. Class B is 141-30, Class C 143-40 and Class A 123-41. Looks like an interesting weekend of basketball.

Adams And Four Guards

When trying to figure out how to vote on the All-Big Eight basketball squad, it was tough not to vote for Alvan Adams of Oklahoma, a center, and then for four guards.

Jerry Fort of Nebraska, of course, is one of them. Then you have to go with Chuckie Williams of Kansas State, Willie Smith of Missouri and perhaps Iowa State's Hercle Ivy. I imagine Kansas will land somebody, most likely Rick Suttle, but 1975 wasn't a year for forwards in the conference.

Coach of the year? You have to go with a tie between Kansas State's Jack Hartman and Missouri's Norm Stewart. Both turned in fine records despite starting the year with very little in the way of experienced hands returning.

The league's three tournament representatives don't figure to do very well. Kansas faces Notre Dame, Kansas State plays Ivy League champion Pennsylvania, and Missouri goes against Purdue. The season could end quickly for all three teams.

New NCAA Champ Assured

North Carolina State will be on the sidelines as the nation's major college basketball teams begin NCAA tournament play Saturday. The Wolfpack, in fact, turned down a chance to compete in the NIT in New York after losing to North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament last Saturday.

Indiana, with a perfect 29-0 record, probably is the favorite in the NCAA, but not by as much as the Hoosiers might have been had they not lost forward Scott May with a broken arm three weeks ago.

But don't count Indiana out of it. May got into last Saturday's game against Michigan State, wearing a brace acceptable to NCAA safety rules and should be ready for even more action Saturday against Texas-El Paso.

UCLA's perennial champions might be the logical choice to regain the title lost in double overtime last year to NC State.

The Bruins play Michigan Saturday at Pullman, Wash., and then host the West Regional at Pauley Pavillion where they're invincible. Then the finals will be played in friendly San Diego.

The annual rumor is making the rounds: John Wooden of UCLA will retire after 27 years as head coach of the Bruins. Wooden, now 64, naturally denies the report.

Wooden said the report, which was initiated by Washington State coach George Raveling, "might have been made for recruiting purposes." Could be true, too.

Bucks Bounce Kings

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareen Abdul-Jabbar, held to two points in the third quarter, put in 13 in the final period to lead Milwaukee to a 103-96 National Basketball Association victory Monday over Kansas City-Omaha.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 34 points as the Bucks won their fourth game in five tries, closing to within one game of Detroit in the battle for third place in the Midwest Division and a possible wildcat playoff berth.

The score was tied eight times in the second half before Abdul-Jabbar converted a three-point play, fired a floor-length pass to Mickey Davis for a layup, and sank a hook shot to give the Bucks a 92-84 lead with 5:14 to pay.

The Kings got within 94-91, but Bob Dandridge made a three-point play, intercepted a pass, fed George Thompson for a layup and tipped in a basket to put the Bucks up 101-94.

Jon McGlocklin added 16 points for the Bucks, including seven long-range baskets in 10 shots. McGlocklin has hit 48 of his last 68 field-goal attempts.

Sooner Invite Leader OSU

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Tom Jones and Brent Goodger each fired even par 72's to lead defending champion Oklahoma State to the first round lead Monday in the Sooner Invitational golf tournament.

The Cowboys had a low score of 296, while host Oklahoma was close behind with a score of 300. Next was Oral Roberts with 303. Texas, North Texas State and Oklahoma City University all came in with 309.

Nebraska was in last place with a team total of 329.

Lincoln Tanker AAU Qualifier

Barb Harris, Lincoln Swim Club member, qualified for the National AAU meet with her first place finish in the 100 freestyle at the 24th Annual Phillips 66 Meet of Champions in Bartlesville, Okla.

Harris' qualifying time was :53.2. In that same meet, she placed second in the 200 freestyle and third in both the 100 butterfly and the 200 individual medley in the girls senior division.

In the girls 10 and under class, Kathy Gustafson garnered two second finishes in the 100 breaststroke and backstroke and three third places in the 100 and 200 freestyle and the 200 individual medley.

At the 1975 Age Group Junior Olympic Swimming Championships in Ralston, Larry Summers won first place in the 10 and under division in the 100 and 200 backstroke.

Dick Conradt, in the 15-18 division, won the 1650 and the 500 freestyle.

Morning Briefing

HOCKEY

The New York Rangers of the NHL called up defenseman Marty Gateman from their Providence farm club. Gateman had five goals and 16 assists with the AHL team.

Bill Chadwick, Tommy Ivan and Donald M. Clark were awarded Lester Patrick Trophies for service to hockey in the United States. Chadwick is a retired referee, Ivan, a past coach of the Detroit Red Wings and currently general manager of the Chicago Black Hawks. Clark is the president of the U.S. Hall of Fame.

HORSE RACING

Foolish Pleasure, winner of the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah, is among 210 other 3-year-olds nominated for the 107th running of the $150,000-added Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park.

Although threatened by financial problems, the Grand National steeple-chase event in England appears safe for at least this year, according to Bill Davies, new owner of the course.

The Illinois state racing board charged Dr. Walter D. Wilkey, a veterinarian from Oak Park, with more than 100 violations of thoroughbred racing regulations on the drugging of horses. Four trainers were also charged.

The thoroughbred card at Bowie Race Course was cancelled because of forecasts of heavy snowfall in the area.

FOOTBALL

George Boutselis was named the special teams coach for the 1975 NFL season with the Baltimore Colts.

Chris Hemmeter, president of the WFL, will meet with representatives of 13 teams to discuss reorganization of the league.

Former managing general partner of the Florida Blazers, Rommie Loudd, has been charged with conspiracy and delivery of cocaine in connection with a three-state drug ring.

The Kansas City Chiefs signed 10 more free agents to bring the total to 39. All 10 recent signers are to be tried on offense.

George Koneeny, Arkansas' high school heavy-weight boxing champion, has been granted a football scholarship to Tulane University.

The University of Cincinnati added Arkansas State to its 1975 football schedule to replace Tampa, which has dropped football. Arkansas State enters its first season as a major college team.

OTHER SPORTS

Washington State basketball coach George Raveling reported in his newspaper column that UCLA coach John Wooden will be retiring after 27 years of coaching. Wooden has denied the report.

St. Louis University will continue basketball at least through 1975-76, although it is operating at an annual loss of $100,000.

Kentucky basketball coach Joe Hall received a four-year extension on his contract, through 1980.

Bob Hewitt and Dick Crealy won first-round matches in World Championship Tennis play in Germany. Top seed in the "green group" matches, Arthur Ashe, and No. 2 Bjorn Borg didn't play the first day.

The leading money-winner on the Women's Professional Tennis Tour is 18-year-old Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia with $58,050. Right behind her is Chris Evert with $57,950 and Margaret Court with $43,563. Billie Jean King and Evonne Goolagong are fourth and fifth, respectively.

Arthur Ashe of the United States has accepted an invitation to play in a tennis festival in South Africa, the Western Province Lawn Tennis Association said.

The Mexican government has forbidden its team to play South Africa in the Davis Cup tennis series, even at a neutral site.

With his win in the Florida Citrus Open, Lee Trevino broke into the top five money winning bracket of the PGA. The top five include Johnny Miller, Bob Murphy, Gene Littler, Hale Irwin and Lee Trevino, who upped his earnings to $54,483.

The Italian team, led by Fausto Radici, took four of the top five places in the men's slalom and took the team lead in the Nations' World Series of Skiing.

Thirty-two persons were injured in a stampede to excape newly-built soccer grandstands in Joao Pessoa, Brazil, after one man shouted that they were collapsing.

John Conteh, Britian's most exciting fighter, was rated the favorite to retain his World Boxing Council light heavy-weight title against American challenger Lonnie Bennett.

Both the Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur and the Bob Hope Desert Classic will be included in the PGA tour next year, after both tournaments ratified their contracts with the PGA.

Stander Free On Court Bond

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP)—Ron Stander, "the Bluffs Butcher" who unsuccessfully challenged Joe Frazier for the heavyweight championship of the world nearly three years ago, was free on bond Monday after being charged with breaking and entering a Bluffs adult bookstore over the weekend.

Stander, 30, was arrested early Sunday morning after police saw two men running from the Goodtime Bookstore.

Officers said they found Stander lying face down behind a pile of snow. The other suspect was not apprehended.

Police said they later found Stander's van parked in the vicinity, and that a woman found in the van, Diane L. Price, 19, was also charged with breaking and entering.

Preliminary hearings for Stander and Miss Price were slated May 28. They were then released on $500 bond each.

Police said nothing was apparently taken from the store, but they found two plastic bags on the floor into which several items, including adult films, and sex paraphenalia, had been placed.

Curtis' Aid Is Sought For Waiver

State Sen. Ernest Chambers Monday requested Sen. Carl Curtis to "assist me in working out details" for Chambers' proposed transfer of Fort Robinson State Park to the Sioux Indian Nation.

Chambers has sponsored a legislative bill to hand the property over to the Sioux.

"Certain restrictions relative to transfer of title and use of the land may be waived by the federal government, and that is the area I shall need your assistance in," Chambers wrote Curtis.

Chambers noted that Curtis has expressed interest in the health, education and welfare of native Americans.

Columbus Landfill Hearing Canceled By State Agency

A Columbus landfill hearing, previously scheduled for Lincoln Monday, has been canceled.

Richard Hansen, attorney with the State Environmental Control Department, said the hearing was called off after Columbus city officials entered into an agreement to comply with orders from the department.

Authorities at Columbus signed a stipulation setting a timetable to perform three measures, Hansen explained.

The attorney said the agreement's three steps are: 1) acquire a new area for solid waste disposal; 2) complete a transfer station, and 3) close the old landfill site.

If the agreement isn't kept, Hansen emphasized, court action will be taken. He said Columbus was notified two years ago the landfill operation would not be relicensed due to groundwater problems.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Dies In Crash

Randolph (UPI) — A deputy state fire marshal from Greenwood, Paul R. Thein, 59, was killed Monday evening in the collision of the state car he was driving and a semi-trailer truck loaded with cattle at the intersection of Highways 20 and 81, about four miles west of here.

The State Patrol said the car driven by Thein was attempting a turn from Highway 20 onto Highway 81 when the collision occurred about 5:45 p.m.

Head-On Crash Injures Children

Two 7-year-old children were listed in fair condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Monday after a two-car head-on collision on Hwy. 2 at 17th St.

Police said the children were injured when a car driven by their mother, Neithola O. Turner, 29, collided with a car driven by Rose Marie Ripa, 32, of 3110 Pioneers Blvd.

Bill Would Result In Release Of 175 Convicts

By United Press International

State corrections officials said Monday a bill designed to straighten out Nebraska's "good time" laws would result in the release of some 175 state prison inmates over a 120-day period.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, in introducing LB567, said he had been told the measure would bring about the immediate release of some 400 to 500 inmates.

However, Charles Cunningham, an assistant to Corrections Director Joseph Vitake, said that was in error. He said only 175 inmates, or about 20% of the prison population, would be involved and he added the inmates have agreed to the rate of one or two a day over 120 days.

Cooperative Effort

The bill was introduced on the basis of work done by corrections officials, the inmates themselves and state sneators — DeCamp and Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell.

But at the same time, Cunningham did agree with DeCamp's statement that those released would not be subject to any corrections control.

The problem facing the committee is a law enacted in 1969 which witnesses said few if any people understand. Even within the system, there are many questions, the committee was told.

"I don't understand it at all," Prison Warden Robert Parratt said "I don't know that anybody really does."

In other words, Parratt and other corrections officials said, no inmate ever knows exactly when he'll be released because of the complex formula for figuring good time off the sentence and there are few who could tell them.

Financial Help

Also heard and, like LB567, held for later action by the committee, was a bill designed to give inmates who are discharged some financial help until they get on their feet.

Inmates who are discharged from an institution now get $30 cash and a suit of clothing.

Witnesses referred to some objections raised outside the hearing to the bill. One of them was the fact that juvenile offenders would also be covered under the 24-week financial aid program.

Anderson, however, said that was not the intent. He said adults constitute the "first problem we've got to solve."

Vitek also questioned the structure of the bill saying its flat payment provisions may not be a good idea. He suggested rules and regulations that would allow for flexibilty.

The bill as introduced would provide $92 a week for four weeks, then $72, $49 $45 and $39 for subsequent four-week periods. However, the amount in each case would be cut in half as soon as the inmate got a job.

Maresh Seeks To Hike Food Sales Tax Credit

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan said Monday he would attempt to amend a bill to ease the tax burden on food by increasing a tax credit instead of eliminating the sales tax on food.

Maresh said he would attempt to place his amendment on Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' bill to eliminate food sales tax.

Maresh would leave the sales tax on food, but increase the credit allowed against state income taxes from $13 per person to $15.

A floor vote forced the bill, LB430, out of the Revenue Committee. It is now awaiting first round floor debate.

Maresh was the sponsor of a food tax credit increase measure which was killed in committee along with Chambers' bill.

Gov. J. J. Exon has said he might veto a repeal of the sales tax on food.

State Would Pay Examination Tab If Bill Is Signed

The Legislature passed a bill Monday designed to encourage courts to order medical and psychological examinations of juvenile offenders.

The bill commits the state to paying for the examinations, an expense that was previously borne by the counties.

The bill, LB294, was given final approval and sent to the governor on a 43-2 vote.

The Legislature also gave final approval to a bill transferring some of the duties of the secretary of state to an employe of the Nebraska Brand Committee.

Under the provisions of LB136, the secretary of state would remain chairman of the Brand Committee.

A Sports Roundup

HOCKEY

The New York Rangers of the NHL called up defenseman Marty Gateman from their Providence farm club. Gateman had five goals and 16 assists with the AHL team.

Bill Chadwick, Tommy Ivan and Donald M. Clark were awarded Lester Patrick Trophies for service to hockey in the United States. Chadwick is a retired referee, Ivan, a past coach of the Detroit Red Wings and currently general manager of the Chicago Black Hawks. Clark is the president of the U.S. Hall of Fame.

HORSE RACING

Foolish Pleasure, winner of the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah, is among 210 other 3-year-olds nominated for the 107th running of the $150,000-added Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park.

Although threatened by financial problems, the Grand National steeple-chase event in England appears safe for at least this year, according to Bill Davies, new owner of the course.

The Illinois state racing board charged Dr. Walter D. Wilkey, a veterinarian from Oak Park, with more than 100 violations of thoroughbred racing regulations on the drugging of horses. Four trainers were also charged.

The thoroughbred card at Bowie Race Course was cancelled because of forecasts of heavy snowfall in the area.

FOOTBALL

George Boutselis was named the special teams coach for the 1975 NFL season with the Baltimore Colts.

Chris Hemmeter, president of the WFL, will meet with representatives of 13 teams to discuss reorganization of the league.

Former managing general partner of the Florida Blazers, Rommie Loudd, has been charged with conspiracy and delivery of cocaine in connection with a three-state drug ring.

The Kansas City Chiefs signed 10 more free agents to bring the total to 39. All 10 recent signers are to be tried on offense.

George Konecny, Arkansas' high school heavy-weight boxing champion, has been granted a football scholarship to Tulane University.

The University of Cincinnati added Arkansas State to its 1975 football schedule to replace Tampa, which has dropped football. Arkansas State enters its first season as a major college team.

OTHER SPORTS

Washington State basketball coach George Raveling reported in his newspaper column that UCLA coach John Wooden will be retiring after 27 years of coaching. Wooden has denied the report.

St. Louis University will continue basketball at least through 1975-76, although it is operating at an annual loss of $100,000.

Kentucky basketball coach Joe Hall received a four-year extension on his contract, through 1980.

Bob Hewitt and Dick Crealy won first-round matches in World Championship Tennis play in Germany. Top seed in the "green group" matches, Arthur Ashe, and No. 2 Bjorn Borg didn't play the first day.

The leading money-winner on the Women's Professional Tennis Tour is 18-year-old Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia with $58,050. Right behind her is Chris Evert with $57,950 and Margaret Court with $43,563. Billie Jean King and Evonne Goolagong are fourth and fifth, respectively.

Arthur Ashe of the United States has accepted an invitation to play in a tennis festival in South Africa, the Western Province Lawn Tennis Association said.

The Mexican government has forbidden its team to play South Africa in the Davis Cup tennis series, even at a neutral site.

With his win in the Florida Citrus Open, Lee Trevino broke into the top five money winning bracket of the PGA. The top five include Johnny Miller, Bob Murphy, Gene Littler, Hale Irwin and Lee Trevino, who upped his earnings to $54,483.

The Italian team, led by Fausto Radici, took four of the top five places in the men's slalom and took the team lead in the Nations' World Series of Skiing.

Thirty-two persons were injured in a stampede to excape newly-built soccer grandstands in Joao Pessoa, Brazil, after one man shouted that they were collapsing.

John Conteh, Britian's most exciting fighter, was rated the favorite to retain his World Boxing Council light heavy-weight title against American challenger Lonnie Bennett.

Both the Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur and the Bob Hope Desert Classic will be included in the PGA tour next year, after both tournaments ratified their contracts with the PGA.

Stander Free On Court Bond

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP)—Ron Stander, "the Bluffs Butcher" who unsuccessfully challenged Joe Frazier for the heavyweight championship of the world nearly three years ago, was free on bond Monday after being charged with breaking and entering a Bluffs adult bookstore over the weekend.

Stander, 30, was arrested early Sunday morning after police saw two men running from the Goodtime Bookstore.

Officers said they found Stander lying face down behind a pile of snow. The other suspect was not apprehended.

Police said they later found Stander's van parked in the vicinity, and that a woman found in the van, Diane L. Price, 19, was also charged with breaking and entering.

Preliminary hearings for Stander and Miss Price were slated May 28. They were then released on $500 bond each.

Police said nothing was apparently taken from the store, but they found two plastic bags on the floor into which several items, including adult films, and sex paraphenalia, had been placed.

Curtis' Aid Is Sought For Waiver

State Sen. Ernest Chambers Monday requested Sen. Carl Curtis to "assist me in working out details" for Chambers' proposed transfer of Fort Robinson State Park to the Sioux Indian Nation.

Chambers has sponsored a legislative bill to hand the property over to the Sioux.

"Certain restrictions relative to transfer of title and use of the land may be waived by the federal government, and that is the area I shall need your assistance in," Chambers wrote Curtis.

Chambers noted that Curtis has expressed interest in the health, education and welfare of native Americans.

Columbus Landfill Hearing Canceled By State Agency

A Columbus landfill hearing, previously scheduled for Lincoln Monday, has been canceled.

Richard Hansen, attorney with the State Environmental Control Department, said the hearing was called off after Columbus city officials entered into an agreement to comply with orders from the department.

Authorities at Columbus signed a stipulation setting a timetable to perform three measures, Hansen explained.

The attorney said the agreement's three steps are: 1) acquire a new area for solid waste disposal; 2) complete a transfer station; and 3) close the old landfill site.

If the agreement isn't kept, Hansen emphasized, court action will be taken. He said Columbus was notified two years ago the landfill operation would not be relicensed due to groundwater problems.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Dies In Crash

Randolph (UPI) — A deputy state fire marshal from Greenwood, Paul R. Thein, 59, was killed Monday evening in the collision of the state car he was driving and a semi-trailer truck loaded with cattle at the intersection of Highways 20 and 81, about four miles west of here.

The State Patrol said the car driven by Thein was attempting a turn from Highway 20 onto Highway 81 when the collision occurred about 5:45 p.m.

Head-On Crash Injures Children

Two 7-year-old children were listed in fair condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Monday after a two-car head-on collision on Hwy. 2 at 17th St.

Police said the children were injured when a car driven by their mother, Neithola O. Turner, 29, collided with a car driven by Rose Marie Ripa, 32, of 3110 Pioneers Blvd.

Bill Would Result In Release Of 175 Convicts

By United Press International

State corrections officials said Monday a bill designed to straighten out Nebraska's "good time" laws would result in the release of some 175 state prison inmates over a 120-day period.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, in introducing LB567, said he had been told the measure would bring about the immediate release of some 400 to 500 inmates.

However, Charles Cunningham, an assistant to Corrections Director Joseph Vitake, said that was in error. He said only 175 inmates, or about 20% of the prison population, would be involved and he added the inmates have agreed to the rate of one or two a day over 120 days.

Cooperative Effort

The bill was introduced on the basis of work done by corrections officials, the inmates themselves and state sneators — DeCamp and Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell.

But at the same time, Cunningham did agree with DeCamp's statement that those released would not be subject to any corrections control.

The problem facing the committee is a law enacted in 1969 which witnesses said few if any people understand. Even within the system, there are many questions, the committee was told.

"I don't understand it at all," Prison Warden Robert Parratt said. "I don't know that anybody really does."

In other words, Parratt and other corrections officials said, no inmate ever knows exactly when he'll be released because of the complex formula for figuring good time off the sentence and there are few who could tell them.

Financial Help

Also heard and, like LB567, held for later action by the committee, was a bill designed to give inmates who are discharged some financial help until they get on their feet.

Inmates who are discharged from an institution now get $30 cash and a suit of clothing.

Witnesses referred to some objections reaised outside the hearing to the bill. One of them was the fact that juvenile offenders would also be covered under the 24-week financial aid program.

Anderson, however, said that was not the intent. He said adults constitute the "first problem we've got to solve."

Vitek also questioned the structure of the bill saying its flat payment provisions may not be a good idea. He suggested rules and regulations that would allow for flexibility.

The bill as introduced would provide $92 a week for four weeks, then $72, $49, $45 and $39 for subsequent four-week periods. However, the amount in each case would be cut in half as soon as the inmate got a job.

Maresh Seeks To Hike Food Sales Tax Credit

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan said Monday he would attempt to amend a bill to ease the tax burden on food by increasing a tax credit instead of eliminating the sales tax on food.

Maresh said he would attempt to place his amendment on Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' bill to eliminate food sales tax.

Maresh would leave the sales tax on food, but increase the credit allowed against state income taxes from $13 per person to $15.

A floor vote forced the bill, LB430, out of the Revenue Committee. It is now awaiting first round floor debate.

Maresh was the sponsor of a food tax credit increase measure which was killed in committee along with Chambers' bill.

Gov. J. J. Exon has said he might veto a repeal of the sales tax on food.

State Would Pay Examination Tab If Bill Is Signed

The Legislature passed a bill Monday designed to encourage courts to order medical and psychological examinations of juvenile offenders.

The bill commits the state to paying for the examinations, an expense that was previously borne by the counties.

The bill, LB294, was given final approval and sent to the governor on a 43-2 vote.

The Legislature also gave final approval to a bill transferring some of the duties of the secretary of state to an employe of the Nebraska Brand Committee.

Under the provisions of LB136, the secretary of state would remain chairman of the Brand Committee.

Exon Signs Special Ed Bill But Not Without Misgivings

By The Associated Press

Gov J James Exon expressed some "misgivings" Monday, but signed into law a bill that will shake loose $2 million to keep programs for the education of handicapped children operative

Exon signed LB555 into law after a meeting with state officials including the commissioner of education and the chairman of the Legislature's Education Committee

The bill was rushed through the Unicameral without a public hearing because many local school districts were running into cash flow problems, according to Bellevue Sen Frank Lewis, chairman of the Education Committee The problems developed when school districts put up local money to finance the special education programs after state payments were held up or were too small

'Understandings'

'My signature on the bill is not without misgivings, and I do it only with certain understandings Exon said in a letter to Dr Anne Campbell, education commissioner

Lewis said the bill was only a short-term solution and Exon agreed

Exon said he wanted the Education Department to conduct public hearings on new rules and regulations and added the new regulations "must not again attempt to validate what has been determined to be illegal and invalid" He said later that they "should bear the strong stamp of a local school district program reimbursed by the state, rather than a state program'

Administrative foulups at the Education Department and the local level caused overpayments, underpayments and in some cases no payments There were also questions concerning department issuance of funds directly to educational service units instead of to school boards

Lewis is preparing amendments to LB403 the 1973 law under which the special education program was created

Not Much Progress

'As of this date I do not see that the Department of Education has made significant progress to correct its original series of errors, and LB555 at best is a temporary solution to the cash flow situation, but is not a solution to your administrative problems," Exon said

"If it is necessary, it may well be that a certified public accounting firm should be called in to assist the Department of Education in this matter," Exon said

Exon said he wanted the department to determine what overpayments have been made under LB403, develop a plan to properly classify handicapped children, conduct public hearings on rules and regulations, and tell school boards to make certain they follow regulations carefully in the future

The bill provides up to $2 million which local school districts may apply for The law expires after payments are made in the next several weeks

The initial law was designed to have the state pay 90% of the excess costs of educating handicapped children, its sponsors said

Some programs were deteriorating, and special education employes were leaving their jobs because of the financial crunch that followed the administrative foulups, Lewis said.

John DeCamp

DeCamp's Asian Trip Broadened

By The Associated Press

U S Sen Carl Curtis has made arrangements that will allow a state senator to visit with foreign officials in Southeast Asia concerning possible development of overseas markets for Nebraska beef

A spokesman for Curtis in Washington said Monday arrangements had been made for Neligh Sen John DeCamp to meet with U S State Department officials in Tokyo, Seoul in South Korea, Hong Kong and Saigon

'The ambassadors in those embassies will set up meetings between DeCamp and the officials he needs to contact ' said Bellwood Sen Loran Schmidt, chairman of the Legislature s Agriculture Committee

John was going to Saigon on other business and we thought he could expand the trip and do some reasearch for us Schmit said

DeCamp vice chairman of the Agriculture Committee will give a written report on his trip to Curtis and Schmit

DeCamp s schedule arranged by Curtis office includes appointments in Tokyo March 21 Seoul March 24 Hong Kong March 24 and Saigon March 27

We know a lot of research has been done in this area Schmit said but we want to know firsthand if there are any new avenues to be opened There well could be

DeCamp s first report will be to Sen Curtis Schmit said The senator has long been an advocate of exporting more American beef

One of the ideas DeCamp will explore with Japanese officials will be the transport of Nebraska beef to Tokyo where a tremendous market for American steak and ground beef is developing Schmit said

Senator Curtis feels markets for American beef can be expanded in Japan and Europe ' a spokesman in his office said

The senator will be interested in whatever Senator DeCamp can learn

Electronic Money Transfer Bills Aired

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Before long, James Moore Jr of First State Bank of Fremont will have a competitor in the Fremont shopping center where his bank is located

No, another bank isn't constructing a new facility

Moore's new competitor will be a computer terminal located in a neighboring Hinky Dinky grocery store The terminal will allow people holding accounts with certain savings and loan associations to make deposits and withdrawals while shopping for groceries

The terminal will be part of The Money Service (TMS) which First Federal Savings and Loan of Lincoln began over a year ago at two Lincoln Hinky Dinky stores and is now expanding to Wahoo, Fremont and Omaha

So far, only savings and loan companies and national banks have been allowed to offer such convenience services to customers

State chartered banks cannot, and Monday a number of bankers asked the Legislature's Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee to allow them to offer electronic money transfer systems through local grocery stores

Moore told the committee "This puts three of my competitors right next door I must compete with them I want to serve my people

The committee held a hearing on two bills. Sen Loran Schmit s LB400 and Sen John Murphy s LB269 which offer different approaches to opening up electronic money transfer systems to start chartered banks No action was taken

Richard Berkheimer, representing National Bank of Commerce in Lincoln, favored LB400, as did Moore, saying it would allow "maximum flexibility" in the development of electronic money transfer systems

It would permit but not require the sharing of computer terminals in stores, he said In the end, Berkheimer said electronic money transfer systems will save consumers money

LB400 is modeled after a recent decision by the U S currency comptroller allowing national banks to offer the systems as of July, Murphy's LB269 is a 'state" version

LB269 was supported by the Nebraska Bankers Association which spent $136,000 to study electronic money transfer systems

Richard Adkins, association president, said LB269 would offer all Nebraska banks an equal opportunity to set up computer terminals in grocery stores

The system, he said, is 'simply an electronic post office which saves the time it takes to mail a deposit or withdrawal slip to a bank

William Brandt, also representing the association, said electronic money transfers "are not going to do away with checks it is not going to destroy any part of Nebraska banking law

Electronic money transfer he said, "does very little more than we're doing now by phone or by mail"

Brandt noted that eight or nine deposits are made for every withdrawal made under such systems The advantage to grocery stores, such as Hinky Dinky, is that electronic money transfers eliminate some of the bad checks they are left holding

Burnham Yates, chairman of the board of First National Bank-Lincoln, supported LB269, saying the electronic transfers would ultimately reduce banking costs by reducing the paperwork

Donn Davis, representing First Federal, favored LB269 and offered some amendments

James Moylan, representing Nebraskans for Independent Banking, opposed the bills and called for a two-year moratorium on all further development of electronic money transfer systems

Moylan noted that two moratorium bills are pending in Congress and that a national commission has been named to investigate the subject In addition, he said a number of lawsuits are now pending challenging the systems

Bill Allowing Omaha School Unit To Buy Land OKd In Committee

By United Press International

The Legislature s Education Committee Monday gave 7-0 approval to a bill LB303 which would permit the Omaha School District to expand its successful farming operation in western Douglas County

The measure sponsored by Sen George Syas of Omaha, would allow the district to purchase approximately a quarter section of land adjacent to another quarter the district already owns

Permission is required by statute because the land is outside the district s boundaries The first tract was obtained in the mid-1960 s through the federal government s General Services Administration

Under current law an election would have to be held to get voter approval of the acquisition but a special election would cost $60 000 the committee was told

There were estimates the land could cost approximately $100 - 000

The president farm is used for laboratory and instructional purposes with seven of the eight Omaha public high schools participating in the program

The farm is also widely utilized for instruction in outdoor recreation and for camping by children of elementary school age

Dr Craig Fullerton, an official with the Omaha school system, said the availability of the farm also gives small city children an opportunity to visit a farm

The committee heard and held LB364 It would have the state pay the costs of food and lodging for handicapped children who are forced to live away from home in order to get educated

The residential facility in which they lived would have to be operated or managed by a school district or educational service unit under terms of the bill

The sponsor of the measure, Sen Herb Duis of Gothenburg, estimated its implementation would require about $25 000 in state expenditures

He said the saving in transportation costs now paid parents for getting their handicapped children to and from schools would help offset the new state funding

Demo Official Opposes Governor's Delegate Bill

Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede of Guide Rock Monday said she opposes Democratic Gov J James Exon s proposal to do away with the direct election of delegates to national political conventions

I don t believe we should ever take from the people the right to make those decisions for themselves Mrs Ohmstede said

The Exon proposal designed to mesh Nebraska law with the Democratic Party s newly devised national charter would provide for delegate selection after the primary election

Delegates would be chosen in caucuses to provide each presidential primary candidate with representation proportionate to his percentage of the vote in the Nebraska primary election

Such changes are not required to conform to the new Democratic charter Mrs Ohmstede declared

Three minor changes are all that are needed she said

One would eliminate the filing fee for delegate candidates Another would give a presidential candidate the right to approve which delegate candidates could gain a spot on the primary ballot officially pledged to support that presidential prospect

As for removing the electorate s right to directly choose the delegates Mrs Ohmstede said I as one Democrat, won t do it

Small Cities Finance Report Bill Advances

By The Associated Press

The Legislature voted preliminary approval Monday for a bill to require cities with less than 40 000 people to publish an itemized list of municipal expenditures

The bill, LB193 was advanced on a vote of 28-5

Sen Frank Lewis of Bellevue, sponsor of the bill said it was in keeping with "the public s right to know'

Sen Relph Kelly of Grand Island opposed the bill, saying It s welfare for the newspaper publishing industry'

Counties and school boards are already required to pay for published lists of their expenditures

A committee amendment to the bill allows the cities to publish their payroll only once a year

The Nebraska Press Association requested the bill, Lewis said

Sen William Nichol of Scottsbluff who said the bill would cost his city $5 000 a year, attempted to amend the bill to allow cities to post notices in public places instead of publishing the expenditures in newspapers

His amendment was defeated on a vote of 15-23

Sen Richard Maresh of Milligan attempted to amend the bill to include Omaha and Lincoln in the publication requirement His attempt was rejected on a vote of 17-25

Exon Signs Special Ed Bill But Not Without Misgivings

By The Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon expressed some "misgivings" Monday, but signed into law a bill that will shake loose $2 million to keep programs for the education of handicapped children operative.

Exon signed LB555 into law after a meeting with state officials including the commissioner of education and the chairman of the Legislature's Education Committee.

The bill was rushed through the Unicameral without a public hearing because many local school districts were running into cash flow problems, according to Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis, chairman of the Education Committee. The problems developed when school districts put up local money to finance the special education programs after state payments were held up, or were too small.

'Understandings'

"My signature on the bill is not without misgivings, and I do it only with certain understandings," Exon said in a letter to Dr. Anne Campbell, education commissioner.

Lewis said the bill was only a short-term solution and Exon agreed.

Exon said he wanted the Education Department to conduct public hearings on new rules and regulations and added the new regulations "must not again attempt to validate what has been determined to be illegal and invalid." He said later that they "should bear the strong stamp of a local school district program reimbursed by the state, rather than a state program."

Administrative foulups at the Education Department and the local level caused overpayments, underpayments and in some cases no payments. There were also questions concerning department issuance of funds directly to educational service units instead of to school boards.

Lewis is preparing amendments to LB403, the 1973 law under which the special education program was created.

Not Much Progress

"As of this date I do not see that the Department of Education has made significant progress to correct its original series of errors, and LB555 at best is a temporary solution to the cash flow situation, but is not a solution to your administrative problems," Exon said.

"If it is necessary, it may well be that a certified public accounting firm should be called in to assist the Department of Education in this matter," Exon said.

Exon said he wanted the department to determine what overpayments have been made under LB403, develop a plan to properly classify handicapped children, conduct public hearings on rules and regulations, and tell school boards to make certain they follow regulations carefully in the future.

The bill provides up to $2 million which local school districts may apply for. The law expires after payments are made in the next several weeks.

The initial law was designed to have the state pay 90% of the excess costs of educating handicapped children, its sponsors said.

Some programs were deteriorating, and special education employes were leaving their jobs because of the financial crunch that followed the administrative foulups, Lewis said.

DeCamp's Asian Trip Broadened

By The Associated Press

U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis has made arrangements that will allow a state senator to visit with foreign officials in Southeast Asia concerning possible development of overseas markets for Nebraska beef.

A spokesman for Curtis in Washington said Monday arrangements had been made for Neligh Sen. John DeCamp to meet with U.S. State Department officials in Tokyo, Seoul in South Korea, Hong Kong and Saigon.

"The ambassadors in those embassies will set up meetings between DeCamp and the officials he needs to contact," said Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmidt, chairman of the Legislature's Agriculture Committee.

"John was going to Saigon on other business and we thought he could expand the trip and do some reasearch for us," Schmit said.

DeCamp's schedule, arranged by Curtis' office, includes appointments in Tokyo March 21, Seoul March 24, Hong Kong March 24 and Saigon March 27.

"We know a lot of research has been done in this area," Schmit said, "but we want to know firsthand if there are any new avenues to be opened. There well could be."

"DeCamp's first report will be to Sen. Curtis," Schmit said. "The senator has long been an advocate of exporting more American beef."

One of the ideas DeCamp will explore with Japanese officials will be the transport of Nebraska beef to Tokyo "where a tremendous market for American steak and ground beef is developing," Schmit said.

"Senator Curtis feels markets for American beef can be expanded in Japan and Europe," a spokesman in his office said.

Electronic Money Transfer Bills Aired

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Before long, James Moore Jr. of First State Bank of Fremont will have a competitor in the Fremont shopping center where his bank is located.

No, another bank isn't constructing a new facility.

Moore's new competitor will be a computer terminal located in a neighboring Hinky Dinky grocery store. The terminal will allow people holding accounts with certain savings and loan associations to make deposits and withdrawals while shopping for groceries.

The terminal will be part of The Money Service (TMS) which First Federal Savings and Loan of Lincoln began over a year ago at two Lincoln Hinky Dinky stores and is now expanding to Wahoo, Fremont and Omaha.

So far, only savings and loan companies and national banks have been allowed to offer such convenience services to customers.

State chartered banks cannot, and Monday a number of bankers asked the Legislature's Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee to allow them to offer electronic money transfer systems through local grocery stores.

Moore told the committee: "This puts three of my competitors right next door. I must compete with them. I want to serve my people."

The committee held a hearing on two bills, Sen. Loran Schmit's LB400 and Sen. John Murphy's LB269, which offer different approaches to opening up electronic money transfer systems to start chartered banks. No action was taken.

Richard Berkheimer, representing National Bank of Commerce in Lincoln, favored LB400, as did Moore, saying it would allow "maximum flexibility" in the development of electronic money transfer systems.

It would permit but not require the sharing of computer terminals in stores, he said. In the end, Berkheimer said electronic money transfer systems will save consumers money.

LB400 is modeled after a recent decision by the U.S. currency comptroller allowing national banks to offer the systems as of July; Murphy's LB269 is a "state" version.

Richard Adkins, association president, said LB269 would offer all Nebraska banks an equal opportunity to set up computer terminals in grocery stores.

The system, he said, is "simply an electronic post office" which saves the time it takes to mail a deposit or withdrawal slip to a bank.

William Brandt, also representing the association, said electronic money transfers "are not going to do away with checks . . . it is not going to destroy any part of Nebraska banking law."

Electronic money transfer, he said, "does very little more than we're doing now by phone or by mail."

Brandt noted that eight or nine deposits are made for every withdrawal made under such systems. The advantage to grocery stores, such as Hinky Dinky, is that electronic money transfers eliminate some of the bad checks they are left holding.

Burnham Yates, chairman of the board of First National Bank-Lincoln, supported LB269, saying the electronic transfers would ultimately reduce banking costs by reducing the paperwork.

James Moylan, representing Nebraskans for Independent Banking, opposed the bills and called for a two-year moratorium on all further development of electronic money transfer systems.

Moylan noted that two moratorium bills are pending in Congress and that a national commission has been named to investigate the subject. In addition, he said a number of lawsuits are now pending challenging the systems.

Bill Allowing Omaha School Unit To Buy Land OKd In Committee

By United Press International

The Legislature's Education Committee Monday gave 7-0 approval to a bill, LB303, which would permit the Omaha School District to expand its successful farming operation in western Douglas County.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. George Syas of Omaha, would allow the district to purchase approximately a quarter section of land adjacent to another quarter the district already owns.

Permission is required by statute because the land is outside the district's boundaries. The first tract was obtained in the mid-1960's through the federal government's General Services Administration.

Under current law, an election would have to be held to get voter approval of the acquisition, but a special election would cost $60,000, the committee was told.

There were estimates the land could cost approximately $100,000.

The president farm is used for laboratory and instructional purposes with seven of the eight Omaha public high schools participating in the program.

The farm is also widely utilized for instruction in outdoor recreation and for camping by children of elementary school age.

Dr. Craig Fullerton, an official with the Omaha school system, said the availability of the farm also gives small city children an opportunity to visit a farm.

The committee heard and held LB364. It would have the state pay the costs of food and lodging for handicapped children who are forced to live away from home in order to get educated.

The residential facility in which they lived would have to be operated or managed by a school district or educational service unit under terms of the bill.

The sponsor of the measure, Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg, estimated its implementation would require about $25,000 in state expenditures.

He said the saving in transportation costs now paid parents for getting their handicapped children to and from schools would help offset the new state funding.

Demo Official Opposes Governor's Delegate Bill

Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede of Guide Rock Monday said she opposes Democratic Gov. J. James Exon's proposal to do away with the direct election of delegates to national political conventions.

"I don't believe we should ever take from the people the right to make those decisions for themselves," Mrs. Ohmstede said.

The Exon proposal, designed to mesh Nebraska law with the Democratic Party's newly devised national charter, would provide for delegate selection after the primary election.

Three minor changes are all that are needed, she said.

One would eliminate the filing fee for delegate candidates. Another would give a presidential candidate the right to approve which delegate candidates could gain a spot on the primary ballot officially pledged to support that presidential prospect.

As for removing the electorate's right to directly choose the delegates, Mrs. Ohmstede said: "I, as one Democrat, won't do it."

Small Cities Finance Report Bill Advances

By The Associated Press

The Legislature voted preliminary approval Monday for a bill to require cities with less than 40,000 people to publish an itemized list of municipal expenditures.

The bill, LB193, was advanced on a vote of 28-5.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, sponsor of the bill, said it was in keeping with "the public's right to know."

Sen. Relph Kelly of Grand Island opposed the bill, saying "It's welfare for the newspaper publishing industry."

Counties and school boards are already required to pay for published lists of their expenditures.

The Nebraska Press Association requested the bill, Lewis said.

Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff, who said the bill would cost his city $5,000 a year, attempted to amend the bill to allow citites to post notices in public places instead of publishing the expenditures in newspapers.

His amendment was defeated on a vote of 15-23.

Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan attempted to amend the bill to include Omaha and Lincoln in the publication requirement. His attempt was rejected on a vote of 17-25.

Council Seat Sought By Pharmacist Marx

Stephen Marx

Stephen J. Marx, 36, pharmacist and owner of the Riveria Pharmacy at 33rd and A, has filed for a seat on the City Council.

Marx said he is running to allow the "same comments and complaints" he hears at work to be aired before the City Council.

Marx, who lives at 8025 Talbot Trail, said he does not agree with the current work being done on updating the Comprehensive Plan for Lincoln.

Marx said he does not believe the city can plan that far in advance.

He also disagrees with the use of the drug antabuse in the city's Alcohol Safety Action Program.

Marx said the drug should be prescribed only to a confirmed alcoholic and "the average drunk driver is not an alcoholic."

He is the fifth person to file for council. The filing deadline is March 19, the primary is April 8 and the general election is May 6. Four council seats are being contested.

Mrs. Maxey Announced School Board Candidacy

Jo Ann Maxey

Mrs. Maxey, 35, is the second person to file officially for the race, although two others, Milan Wall, 1260 S. 20th, and Mrs. Lu Pansing, 2033 S. 33rd, have indicated they plan to run for the three board seats opening up.

Incumbent Williamette Shafer, 40, 2906 Plymouth, filed last month for re-election to a four-year, unsalaried term.

Mrs. Maxey said the general issues in her candidacy will be to attain "top quality education for all students," and to continue good school-community relationships.

Mrs. Maxey's husband is Police Lt. Al Maxey. They have two boys and two girls, all school-age.

Board member John Lux, whose term expires this year, has said he will not seek re-election. Lux, 5100 Leighton, will end a 10-yar tenure on the board. Incumbent Dr. Marvin C. Steward, 3845 Prairie Road, whose term also expires this year, has not yet announced his intentions for the race.

Filing deadline is March 19.

UNL Will Host Principals Meet With Freshmen

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln's annual principal-freshman conference will bring more than 400 high school principals, counselors and department heads from 250 high schools throughout the state to UNL on March 20.

The conference is to acquaint them with the university and its programs, including recent developments in programs and procedures, so that they can better help students make the transition to a university environment.

During the day the high school representatives will also be able to meet with former students who are now university freshmen.

Duane Acker, vice chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, will speak at a luncheon at the Nebraska Union ballroom at 11:50 a.m.

Speech Teacher Award Received

Melissa Beall, English and drama teacher at Lincoln Southeast High School, has received the Outstanding Young High School Speech Teacher Award for 1975, presented by the Nebraska Speech Communication Association.

The group also selected Louise McDonald of Southeast as receipient of the John Thurber Distinguished Teacher Award, given annually to an outstanding speech teacher.

No more worming your deliveries thru congested Lincoln traffic snarls. No more trucks battling tight turns. Located on the I-80/Hwy. 34 interchange between the Kawasaki plant and the V.P. tract, the Highland offers excellent shipping facilities-

- prime access to U P. railroad trackage
- Interstate I-80 is at the front door for fast deliveries east & west
- only 4½ minutes from downtown Lincoln

Big or small, your industrial-warehouse operation belongs in the Highlands. We offer the most attractive rates per square foot in the area.

☐ BUILD ☐ LEASE ☐ BUILD TO SUIT

Council Seat Sought By Pharmacist Marx

Stephen Marx

Stephen J. Marx, 36, pharmacist and owner of the Riveria Pharmacy at 33rd and A, has filed for a seat on the City Council.

Marx said he is running to allow the "same comments and complaints" he hears at work to be aired before the City Council.

Marx, who lives at 8025 Talbot Trail, said he does not agree with the current work being done on updating the Comprehensive Plan for Lincoln.

Marx said he does not believe the city can plan that far in advance.

He also disagrees with the use of the drug antabuse in the city's Alcohol Safety Action Program.

Marx said the drug should be prescribed only to a confirmed alcoholic and "the average drunk driver is not an alcoholic."

He is the fifth person to file for council. The filing deadline is March 19, the primary is April 8 and the general election is May 6. Four council seats are being contested.

Mrs. Maxey Announced School Board Candidacy

Jo Ann Maxey

Mrs. Maxey, 35, is the second person to file officially for the race, although two others, Milan Wall, 1260 S. 20th, and Mrs. Lu Pansing, 2033 S. 33rd, have indicated they plan to run for the three board seats opening up.

Incumbent Williamette Shafer, 40, 2906 Plymouth, filed last month for re-election to a four-year, unsalaried term.

Mrs. Maxey said the general issues in her candidacy will be to attain "top quality education for all students," and to continue good school-community relationships.

Mrs. Maxey's husband is Police Lt. Al Maxey. They have two boys and two girls, all school-age.

Board member John Lux, whose term expires this year, has said he will not seek re-election. Lux, 5100 Leighton, will end a 10-yar tenure on the board. Incumbent Dr. Marvin C. Steward, 3845 Prairie Road, whose term also expires this year, has not yet announced his intentions for the race.

Filing deadline is March 19.

There is no reason your warehouse should look like a war-zone.

Not when your warehouse can be in the beautiful new Highland industrial park. At last you can build a neat, clean warehouse designed to promote a smoother, more profitable operation.

Efficiency is the key.

No more worming your deliveries thru congested Lincoln traffic snarls. No more trucks battling tight turns. Located on the I-80/Hwy. 34 interchange between the Kawasaki plant and the V.P. tract, the Highland offers excellent shipping facilities-

- prime access to U.P. railroad trackage
- Interstate I-80 is at the front door for fast deliveries east & west
- only 4½ minutes from downtown Lincoln

Big or small, your industrial-warehouse operation belongs in the Highlands. We offer the most attractive rates per square foot in the area.

☐ BUILD ☐ LEASE ☐ BUILD TO SUIT

Repossession Not End To Debt Responsibility

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — When you've struggled to pay a debt but just can't manage any more, repossession might seem almost a relief. Let the auto dealer take back the car, and the store the furniture. At least the problem will be solved.

Except that it may not be In most states, the creditor doesn't have to settle just for his merchandise back. He can charge for any expenses connected with repossession and resale. More importantly, you could remain indebted to him for merchandise you no longer own. Here's how that could happen.

Say a car dealer got you a $3,000 auto loan and you paid off $1,000 of it. Then you lost your job and couldn't keep up with the payments

Your first move would be to tell the dealer what happened and try to get the payments reduced or suspended for a while He might go along with you for two or three months. After that, if you still couldn't resume payments, he'd probably repossess the car.

You would be lucky if he could immediately resell it at retail, because he would get a good price But he may wholesale the car to another dealer at a fraction of its retail value For argument's sake, let's say he sells your car for $900

He can then sue you for the difference between the $2,000 you owe and the $900 he got, or $1,100 dollars. On top of that, you'd have to pay court costs and lawyer fees So you still have a debt (called a "deficiency judgment"), and lost the car to boot.

When furniture or appliances are repossessed, their resale value is so small that the deficiency judgment (with legal fees) may well amount to more than the original debt.

In states where it's legal to have a "confession of judgment" clause in an installment contract, the creditor doesn't even have to go to court to get his judgment By signing the contract, the borrower agreed that if he defaulted he would confess guilt and waive a trial. So he doesn't even have a chance to fight.

Before you submit to repossession, visit a Legal Aid Office to see what the possibilities are The National Consumer Law Center in Boston, Mass., which supplies Legal Aid lawyers with the technical information they need to fight consumer cases, suggests these possible defenses against repossession (1) the lender may have violated the truth-in-lending law, (2) the car or appliance never worked properly and the dealer didn't fix it; (3) the interest rate violates local usury laws. In a few states, necessary items like basic furniture may be exempt from repossession.

It's illegal for anyone trying to repossess something in your home to break in. But if you admit him voluntarily, he can walk out with whatever he came for. A creditor also may have the right to break into your car and drive it away. But he's not allowed to use force. If he first drags you bodily from the front seat, you can sue.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Morning at Snug Harbor The moppets said. "Why are you beating your head on the table? You don't even let us SPILL things on the table."

I said "Pour those cornflakes gently They make a terrible clatter."

Last night I was the life of the party How can I feel like this in the morning?

The children said "Shall we get you an aspirin?"

I said: "Too late for aspirin. As soon as I can walk, I'm joining the French Foreign Legion"

☆ ☆ ☆

The aspirin people say you can tell how the economy is by the aspirin sales When business is good, business is not so good for the aspirin people When the Dow Jones average is down, the aspirin president buys a new car.

Right now they are selling plenty of aspirin.

I have been thinking again about making a million dollars. I started thinking about it when I was 21 I mean I wasn't in a hurry I could wait until I was 30

At 30 I put it off until I was 40 No use killing myself "The rich aren't really happy," said my grandmother

I figured to be happy awhile. Make the million later

So I just rocked along until now it is later than I thought. About time to get it all together. Sempre avanti'

☆ ☆ ☆

Plenty of problems in being a millionaire Millionaire Paul Getty gives interviews to the press "The meek shall inherit the earth but not the mineral rights"

Maybe Getty didn't say it But journalists give him credit for that nifty

When I lived in London I used to drive down to Guildford A beautiful town Getty had an estate there Fenced and guarded by watch dogs

He had lots of company who came to call. And he found they ran up expensive long distance calls

But Getty did miss it He had all his house phones changed to shilling-in-the-slot pay phones. That way he kept on being a millionaire

I said to the children "There's too many unit messages on the phone bill. Stop phoning, hear?"

If I am going to be a millionaire, I might as well start acting like one

Well, I have little to start with. I turned out my pockets and came up with a $5 bill. A handful of small change

That's not much for a millionaire. But — ! "The Journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step" A Chinese millionaire said that.)

The children said: "Can we have a dollar and a quarter to go to McDonald's?"

I said: "Eat peanut butter at home. I haven't got a weeping dime"

☆ ☆ ☆

On mornings like these I am full of sorrow and good intentions

I said: "If anyone phones, tell them to call me at the village pub." No hurry about that million. Tomorrow will do.

Stock Mart Posts Gains After Bend

New York (AP) — The stock market bent briefly under profit-taking pressures Monday, but snapped back in time to post a moderate gain as investors welcomed the latest discount rate cut by the Federal Reserve.

Trading continued at an active pace

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down nearly 5 points late in the morning, was up 6.03 at 776 13 by the close. The widely followed average, with eight gains in the last nine sessions, now stands more than 198 points above its early December closing low.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained .65 to 84.95, and the New York Stock Exchange's composite index rose .33 to 44 88

Analysts said the market might have drawn additional support from the National Association of Purchasing Management's report that industrial buyers, on tance, found raw materials prices lower in February — the first such monthly drop in 12 years

Another apparent plus was Algeria's 21-cents-a-barrel reduction of the price of its low sulphur oil a development which tended to stimulate hopes for a weakening in the world petroleum price structure

The oil news helped spark continued gains in stocks of a good many companies whose business relate directly to discretionary travel

Ryder System, the truck renting and leasing concern, rose ⅜ to 5⅞ at the top of the NYSE's most-active list, Ramada Inns gained ½ to 5½, and Sambo s Restaurants added ½ to 15½ on the American Stock Exchange

Housing and building materials issues also did well amid hopes that falling credit costs would lead to an early upturn in the depressed industry Kaufman & Broad was up 1⅛ at 9 Evans Products 1 ⅛ at 5⅝ Boise Cascade ½ to 17¾, and Louisiana Pacific ¾ to 13¾

Addressograph-Multigraph was up 1¼ at ⅞. The company said orders for two new duplicators took a sharp jump last month

On the downside Stone & Webster gave up 2½ to 44 on top of a 2½ loss Friday, when the company said it expected earnings from continuing operations to fall short of last year s levels in 1975

RCA rose 2⅜ to 15⅜ in active trading The company said profits of its Hertz Corp subsidiery rose 20 per cent last year

Carrols Development, the Amex volume leader slipped ⅛ to 1½ A 251 200-share block traded at 1 ¼

The Amex market value index was up 56 at 78 22

In the over the-counter market the NASDAQ composite index closed at 74 88, up 48

Grains Close On Weak Side

Soybeans had been down about 16 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade and wheat was 10 cents under Friday's close before both rallied minutes to the final bell. Corn futures were mixed at the close, while oats lost about 1 cent Soybean meal was $3 a ton lower, while soybean oil was down the limit of 100 points in very slow trade Iced broilers gained 1-2 cents a pound.

Grain futures opened on a very weak tone Some selling was attributed to a carryover from Friday's downturn, but demand was very thin and once it had been satisfied prices fell still lower.

Most Slaughter Classes Higher

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A strong market undertone in recent weeks, and the possibilty of light receipts Tuesday sent most slaughter classes higher on the Omaha livestock market Monday.

Heavy snows hit many areas of central Nebraska Sunday, keeping livestock raisers out of the sorting pens and making road conditions sloppy.

Repossession Not End To Debt Responsibility

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — When you've struggled to pay a debt but just can't manage any more, repossession might seem almost a relief. Let the auto dealer take back the car, and the store the furniture. At least the problem will be solved.

Except that it may not be. In most states, the creditor doesn't have to settle just for his merchandise back. He can charge for any expenses connected with repossession and resale. More importantly, you could remain indebted to him for merchandise you no longer own. Here's how that could happen:

Say a car dealer got you a $3,000 auto loan and you paid off $1,000 of it. Then you lost your job and couldn't keep up with the payments.

Your first move would be to tell the dealer what happened and try to get the payments reduced or suspended for a while. He might go along with you for two or three months. After that, if you still couldn't resume payments, he'd probably repossess the car.

You would be lucky if he could immediately resell it at retail, because he would get a good price. But he may wholesale the car to another dealer at a fraction of its retail value. For argument's sake, let's say he sells your car for $900.

He can then sue you for the difference between the $2,000 you owe and the $900 he got, or $1,100 dollars. On top of that, you'd have to pay court costs and lawyer fees. So you still have a debt (called a "deficiency judgment"), and lost the car to boot.

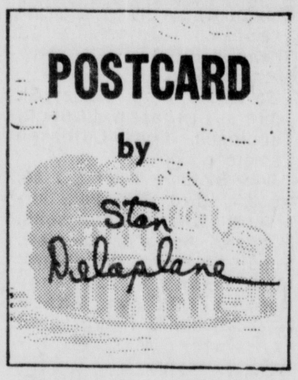

When furniture or appliances are repossessed, their resale value is so small that the deficiency judgment (with legal fees) may well amount to more than the original debt.

In states where it's legal to have a "confession of judgment" clause in an installment contract, the creditor doesn't even have to go to court to get his judgment. By signing the contract, the borrower agreed that if he defaulted he would confess guilt and waive a trial. So he doesn't even have a chance to fight.

Before you submit to repossession, visit a Legal Aid Office to see what the possibilities are. The National Consumer Law Center in Boston, Mass., which supplies Legal Aid lawyers with the technical information they need to fight consumer cases, suggests these possible defenses against repossession: (1) the lender may have violated the truth-in-lending law; (2) the car or appliance never worked properly and the dealer didn't fix it; (3) the interest rate violates local usury laws. In a few states, necessary items like basic furniture may be exempt from repossession.

It's illegal for anyone trying to repossess something in your home to break in. But if you admit him voluntarily, he can walk out with whatever he came for. A creditor also may have the right to break into your car and drive it away. But he's not allowed to use force. If he first drags you bodily from the front seat, you can sue.

(c) 1975, The Washington Post Co.

San Francisco — Morning at Snug Harbor. The moppets said: "Why are you beating your head on the table? You don't even let us SPILL things on the table."

I said: "Pour those cornflakes gently. They make a terrible clatter."

Last night I was the life of the party. How can I feel like this in the morning?

The children said: "Shall we get you an aspirin?"

☆ ☆ ☆

The aspirin people say you can tell how the economy is by the aspirin sales. When business is good, business is not so good for the aspirin people. When the Dow Jones average is down, the aspirin president buys a new car.

Right now they are selling plenty of aspirin.

I have been thinking again about making a million dollars. I started thinking about it when I was 21. I mean, I wasn't in a hurry. I could wait until I was 30.

At 30 I put it off until I was 40. No use killing myself. "The rich aren't really happy," said my grandmother.

I figured to be happy awhile. Make the million later.

So I just rocked along until now it is later than I thought. About time to get it all together. Sempre avanti!

☆ ☆ ☆

Plenty of problems in being a millionaire. Millionaire Paul Getty gives interviews to the press. "The meek shall inherit the earth but not the mineral rights."

Maybe Getty didn't say it. But journalists give him credit for that nifty.

When I lived in London I used to drive down to Guildford. A beautiful town. Getty had an estate there. Fenced and guarded by watch dogs.

He had lots of company who came to call. And he found they ran up expensive long distance calls.

"What a pal Getty is," they said. "With all his money, he'll never miss it. Get me Chicago, please."

But Getty did miss it. He had all his house phones changed to shilling-in-the-slot pay phones. That way he kept on being a millionaire.

I said to the children: "There's too many unit messages on the phone bill. Stop phoning, hear?"

If I am going to be a millionaire, I might as well start acting like one.

Well, I have little to start with. I turned out my pockets and came up with a $5 bill. A handful of small change.

That's not much for a millionaire. But — ! "The Journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step." A Chinese millionaire said that.)

The children said: "Can we have a dollar and a quarter to go to McDonald's?"

I said: "Eat peanut butter at home. I haven't got a weeping dime."

Money lent is gone forever. That is why I'm not a millionaire already.

That was some party last night. No wonder I cannot stand the rattle of cornflakes.

On mornings like these I am full of sorrow and good intentions.

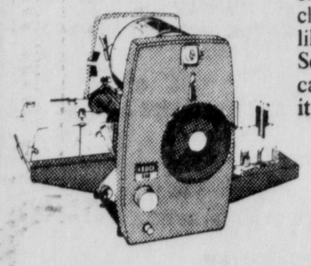

I said to the children: "Here's a dollar and a quarter each."

I said: "If anyone phones, tell them to call me at the village pub." No hurry about that million. Tomorrow will do.

Have you considered this sound approach to increased productivity and profits?
Have you evern considered the use of the psychological sound of MUZAK® to improve your productivity and your return on payroll dollars? What MUZAK calls the stimulus progression curve is specially-recorded music subtly interacting with your employees' moods hour by hour. It stimulates them to greater activity during those times when they might slump into boredom, fatique and melancholy. It helps them think and act more clearly during those times when they tend to become disorganized by stress. Documented, independent research can show you how MUZAK has reduced major problems which plague management. Ask about our trial demonstration without obligation.

Stock Mart Posts Gains After Bend

New York (AP) — The stock market bent briefly under profit-taking pressures Monday, but snapped back in time to post a moderate gain as investors welcomed the latest discount rate cut by the Federal Reserve.

Trading continued at an active pace.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down nearly 5 points late in the morning, was up 6.03 at 776.13 by the close. The widely followed average, with eight gains in the last nine sessions, now stands more than 198 points above its early December closing low.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained .65 to 84.95, and the New York Stock Exchange's composite index rose .33 to 44.88.

Gainers outweighed losers by nearly a 2-1 margin on the Big Board in turnover of 25.89 million shares, just off Friday's 25.93 million total.

Analysts said the market might have drawn additional support from the National Association of Purchasing Management's report that industrial buyers, on lance, found raw materials prices lower in February — the first such monthly drop in 12 years.

Another apparent plus was Algeria's 21-cents-a-barrel reduction of the price of its low sulphur oil, a development which tended to stimulate hopes for a weakening in the world petroleum price structure.

Ryder System, the truck renting and leasing concern, rose 3/8 to 5 7/8 at the top of the NYSE's most-active list; Ramada Inns gained 1/2 to 5 1/2, and Sambo's Restaurants added 1/2 to 15 1/2 on the American Stock Exchange.

Housing and building materials issues also did well amid hopes that falling credit costs would lead to an early upturn in the depressed industry. Kaufman & Broad was up 1 1/8 at 9; Evans Products 1 1/4 at 5 5/8; Boise Cascade 1/2 to 17 3/4, and Louisiana-Pacific 3/4 to 13 3/4.

Addressograph-Multigraph was up 1 1/4 at 7 3/4. The company said orders for two new duplicators took a sharp jump last month.

On the downside, Stone & Webster gave up 2 1/2 to 44 on top of a 2 1/8 loss Friday, when the company said it expected earnings from continuing operations to fall short of last year's levels in 1975.

RCA rose 2 3/8 to 15 3/8 in active trading. The company said profits of its Hertz Corp. subsidiary rose 20 per cent last year.

Carrols Development, the Amex volume leader, slipped 1/8 to 1 1/2. A 251,200-share block traded at 1 1/4.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index closed at 74.88, up .48.

Grains Close On Weak Side

Soybeans had been down about 16 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade and wheat was 10 cents under Friday's close before both rallied minutes to the final bell. Corn futures were mixed at the close, while oats lost about 1 cent. Soybean meal was $3 a ton lower, while soybean oil was down the limit of 100 points in very slow trade. Iced broilers gained 1-2 cents a pound.

Grain futures opened on a very weak tone. Some selling was attributed to a carryover from Friday's downturn, but demand was very thin and once it had been satisfied prices fell still lower.

Most Slaughter Classes Higher

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A strong market undertone in recent weeks, and the possibilty of light receipts Tuesday sent most slaughter classes higher on the Omaha livestock market Monday.

Heavy snows hit many areas of central Nebraska Sunday, keeping livestock raisers out of the sorting pens and making road conditions sloppy.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Tuesday

Aries with charm, enthusiasm and ability to laugh at her own foibles: Bette Davis. Aries who can take himself too seriously: Marlon Brando. Aries who combines pomposity and knowledge: George Jessel. Aries I miss: Jayne Mansfield. Aries who is the most beautiful grandmother in the world: Gloria Swanson. These are some of my Aries people. How are your Aries friends doing?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may feel slightly ahead of your time. Key now is to check with one who directs policy for organization, club, institute. Be direct, independent — and look behind the scenes. Your inventive qualities are appreciated — believe it or not.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't play games where emotions enter picture. You fend now to get inextricably involved. Know it and pace yourself. It may be necessary to be selfish, to state your case, to make clear that you do have life of your own to live. One who cares for you will cooperate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Versatile approach aids in achieving goal. You're asked to accept special responsibility. Your timing will be excellent — and you're due to succeed. Know it and accept. Sagittarius and another Gemini could figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You reach beyond current expectations. You could catch brass ring. Means sky is the limit. You're going places; barriers, restrictions are being removed. Special study will pay dividends. Get going!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your emotions, capacity to love — these are featured. You could be bruised, but if you hold back completely you will feel a loss. Means, yes, get involved personally and on professional and creative levels. Gemini and Virgo persons are apt to be in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Diplomacy is your ally. Don't force issues. Applies especially in dealing with partner, mate. Accent is on change of style, reconciliation and concession. Taurus, Libra individuals could figure in important ways. Adopt wait-and-see attitude.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study Virgo message for valid hint. Go slow. Pacing is more important than usual. Health and employment depend on "delivering the goods." See as is, not merely as you wish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Taurus message. Realize situations encountered will not be lukewarm. It is to be hot or cold, all or nothing — halfway is not in picture. Love, involvement, intensified relationship — these are spotlighted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Finish rather than begin — complete project, finalize arrangements. Build on solid base. Don't be cajoled into lull of false security. Do some checking. Find out where material came from — and its cost. Deal in quality as opposed to quantity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ideas sparkle — make use of them. Means be confident enough to trust your own capabilities. Cycle is moving up — your reception from neighbors, relatives will be enthusiastic. Money pressure eases.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money and how it got that way is a subject likely to occupy your attention. You gain some insight and there could be profit as result. Key now is to collect, evaluate and consolidate. Refuse to scatter forces. Another Aquarian figures prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar cycle is such that new projects are encouraged. Highlight humor, versatility. Deal with persons who understand publicity, advertising and distribution. Gemini individual could offer valuable clues.

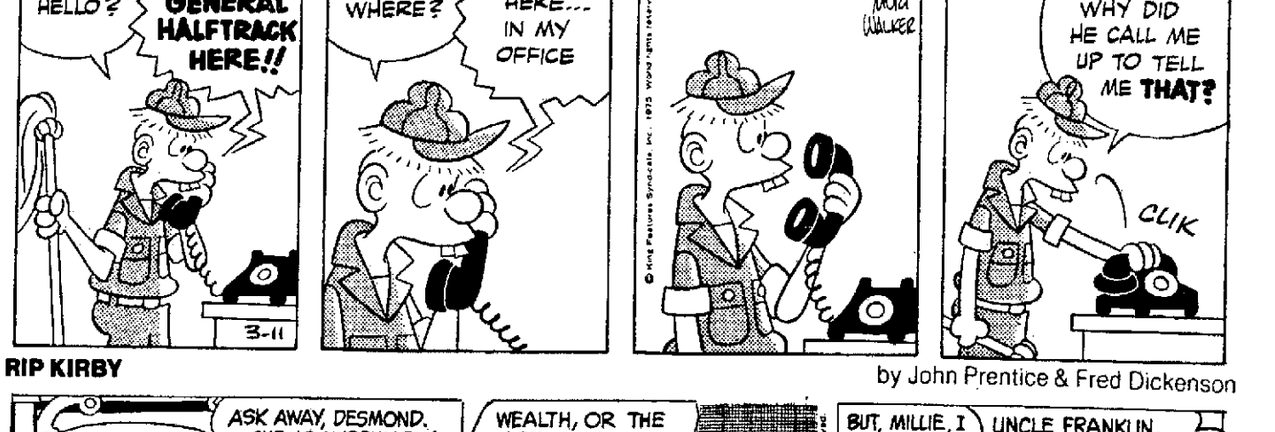

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher, one who is concerned with the underdog. You draw to you people born under Aquarius and Leo. August could be your most important month of 1975. You are due for added recognition. You are going to finish project this year and you will be repaid for past efforts.

(Discover your love and money mates! Send birthdate (for our survey) and 75 cents to Omarr Astrology Secrets, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053. You'll find answers in Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Men and Women.")

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Tuesday

Aries with charm, enthusiasm and ability to laugh at her own foibles: Bette Davis. Aries who can take himself too seriously: Marlon Brando. Aries who combines pomposity and knowledge: George Jessel. Aries I miss: Jayne Mansfield. Aries who is the most beautiful grandmother in the world: Gloria Swanson. These are some of my Aries people. How are your Aries friends doing?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may feel slightly ahead of your time. Key now is to check with one who directs policy for organization, club, institute. Be direct, independent — and look behind the scenes. Your inventive qualities are appreciated — believe it or not.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't play games where emotions enter picture. You fend now to get inextricably involved. Know it and pace yourself. It may be necessary to be selfish, to state your case, to make clear that you do have life of your own to live. One who cares for you will cooperate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Versatile approach aids in achieving goal. You're asked to accept special responsibility. Your timing will be excellent — and you're due to succeed. Know it and accept. Sagittarius and another Gemini could figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You reach beyond current expectations. You could catch brass ring. Means sky is the limit. You're going places; barriers, restrictions are being removed. Special study will pay dividends. Get going!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your emotions, capacity to love — these are featured. You could be bruised, but if you hold back completely you will feel a loss. Means, yes, get involved personally and on professional and creative levels. Gemini and Virgo persons are apt to be in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Diplomacy is your ally. Don't force issues. Applies especially in dealing with partner, mate. Accent is on change of style, reconciliation and concession. Taurus, Libra individuals could figure in important ways. Adopt wait-and-see attitude.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study Virgo message for valid hint. Go slow. Pacing is more important than usual. Health and employment depend on "delivering the goods." See as is, not merely as you wish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study Taurus message. Realize situations encountered will not be lukewarm. It is to be hot or cold, all or nothing — halfway is not in picture. Love, involvement, intensified relationship — these are spotlighted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Finish rather than begin — complete project, finalize arrangements. Build on solid base. Don't be cajoled into lull of false security. Do some checking. Find out where material came from — and its cost. Deal in quality as opposed to quantity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ideas sparkle — make use of them. Means be confident enough to trust your own capabilities. Cycle is moving up — your reception from neighbors, relatives will be enthusiastic. Money pressure eases.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money and how it got that way is a subject likely to occupy your attention. You gain some insight and there could be profit as result. Key now is to collect, evaluate and consolidate. Refuse to scatter forces. Another Aquarian figures prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar cycle is such that new projects are encouraged. Highlight humor, versatility. Deal with persons who understand publicity, advertising and distribution. Gemini individual could offer valuable clues.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher, one who is concerned with the underdog. You draw to you people born under Aquarius and Leo. August could be your most important month of 1975. You are due for added recognition. You are going to finish project this year and you will be repaid for past efforts.

Weak, Stillborn Calves Linked To Cost Cutting Tries On Feed

North Platte (UPI) — Stillborn and unhealthy calves born in western Nebraska may be the result of cattlemen attempting to cut costs on feed, says a pathologist at the University of Nebraska North Platte Station's veterinary science laboratory

Dr Clair Hibbs said some producers have tried to reduce costs because of the present economic situation in cow-calf operations by using all available forage including considerable amounts of dry pasture.

The weather in the western part of the state has made it possible for cows to remain on dry pastures and corn stalks throughout the winter until calving season, Hibbs noted.

Also, he said, there has been an attempt to lower costs by either not feeding protein supplement or limiting the amount fed.

The deficient diet creates a situation at calving time of dead, stillborn or weak calves, Hibbs noted

The North Platte Station currently has no data available on the number of calves reported suffering from the deficiency, "but we believe it is a significant problem," Hibbs said

"Some of the calves resemble a 'weak calf' syndrome described by Idaho and Montana veterinary scientists," he said. "These cases have been observed since 1964 in the Bitter Root Valley of Montana and other areas of northwestern United States"

Blood studies taken at the station's veterinary science labroatory have indicated marginal protein and glucose, he said Serum inorganic phosphorus is quite low in some instances.

Hibbs said corrective measures should be taken, but cautioned that overnight results cannot realistically be accomplished

He suggests supplying the cow with a natural protein at the recommended level with at least 30,000 units of vitamin A added; using a fee-choice mineral which has at least a one-to-one calcium-phosphorus ratio, and adding some type of available energy, probably in the form of corn

"We think this will help reduce the incidence and severity," Hibbs said "Nutritional deficiency takes time to develop, and likewise, takes time to correct"

To help saving the newcorn calf, Hibbs suggested giving the calf colostrum by stomach tube and injecting the calf with a water solubale form of vitamin A

Big Springs Man Dies From Smoke Inhalation

Chappell (AP) — The death of an elderly Big Springs man has been attributed to smoke inhalation, Deuel County Atty Robert Richards said Monday morning.

The body of William A. Baker, 74, was found Friday morning in his fire-scorched home at Big Springs.

Baker's body was found in the kitchen Some blood was found on the refrigerator and there was an abrasion on Baker's head, so Richards ordered an autopsy

Richards said the pathologist reported his findings over the weekend, saying Baker died of smoke inhalation "There is no evidence of foul play," Richards said

The fire apparently started in the bedroom, but its cause is not yet known, Richards said

Officials theorized that Baker may have been trying to escape the flames when he fell in the kitchen and injured himself.

Baker and his wife moved to Big Springs in 1965 following his retirement from the Omaha Public Power District. Baker's wife died shortly after the move.

Survivors include a son in Ft Calhoun and a daughter in Omaha

NWU Receives National Science Foundation Grant

The National Science Foundation has made a $5,340 grant to Nebraska Wesleyan University for an undergraduate research participation project.

Dr Walter R. French, NWU physics professor, reports the grant is one of six made by the NSF to predominantly undergraduate colleges in the U S

French said the grant will enable three physics majors to conduct research and independent study projects during the summer

Weak, Stillborn Calves Linked To Cost Cutting Tries On Feed

North Platte (UPI) — Stillborn and unhealthy calves born in western Nebraska may be the result of cattlemen attempting to cut costs on feed, says a pathologist at the University of Nebraska North Platte Station's veterinary science laboratory.

Dr. Clair Hibbs said some producers have tried to reduce costs because of the present economic situation in cow-calf operations by using all available forage including considerable amounts of dry pasture.

The weather in the western part of the state has made it possible for cows to remain on dry pastures and corn stalks throughout the winter until calving season, Hibbs noted.

Also, he said, there has been an attempt to lower costs by either not feeding protein supplement or limiting the amount fed.

The deficient diet creates a situation at calving time of dead, stillborn or weak calves, Hibbs noted.

The North Platte Station currently has no data available on the number of calves reported suffering from the deficiency, "but we believe it is a significant problem," Hibbs said.

"Some of the calves resemble a 'weak calf' syndrome described by Idaho and Montana veterinary scientists," he said. "These cases have been observed since 1964 in the Bitter Root Valley of Montana and other areas of northwestern United States."

Blood studies taken at the station's veterinary science labroatory have indicated marginal protein and glucose, he said. Serum inorganic phosphorus is quite low in some instances.

Hibbs said corrective measures should be taken, but cautioned that overnight results cannot realistically be accomplished.

He suggests supplying the cow with a natural protein at the recommended level with at least 30,000 units of vitamin A added; using a fee-choice mineral which has at least a one-to-one calcium-phosphorus ratio; and adding some type of available energy, probably in the form of corn.

"We think this will help reduce the incidence and severity," Hibbs said. "Nutritional deficiency takes time to develop, and likewise, takes time to correct."

To help saving the newcorn calf, Hibbs suggested giving the calf colostrum by stomach tube and injecting the calf with a water solubale form of vitamin A.

Big Springs Man Dies From Smoke Inhalation

Chappell (AP) — The death of an elderly Big Springs man has been attributed to smoke inhalation, Deuel County Atty. Robert Richards said Monday morning.

The body of William A. Baker, 74, was found Friday morning in his fire-scorched home at Big Springs.

Baker's body was found in the kitchen. Some blood was found on the refrigerator and there was an abrasion on Baker's head, so Richards ordered an autopsy.

Richards said the pathologist reported his findings over the weekend, saying Baker died of smoke inhalation. "There is no evidence of foul play," Richards said.

The fire apparently started in the bedroom, but its cause is not yet known, Richards said.

Officials theorized that Baker may have been trying to escape the flames when he fell in the kitchen and injured himself.

Baker and his wife moved to Big Springs in 1965 following his retirement from the Omaha Public Power District. Baker's wife died shortly after the move.

NWU Receives National Science Foundation Grant

The National Science Foundation has made a $5,340 grant to Nebraska Wesleyan University for an undergraduate research participation project.

Dr. Walter R. French, NWU physics professor, reports the grant is one of six made by the NSF to predominantly undergraduate colleges in the U.S.

Chapter DM, P.E.O. Leader Is Mrs. Smith

Mrs. Glenn W. Smith has been elected president of Chapter DM, P.E.O.

Other officers for 1975-76 include Mrs. Phil Etzelmiller, vice president; Mrs. James Riley, recording secretary; Mrs. W. W. Putney, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James D. Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Gerald Schleich, chaplain, and Mrs. Dennis Gutz, guard.

Gas is best for big jobs like cooking because it is a more efficient way of utilizing the nation's energy. It takes no other fuels to produce gas. It's the natural fuel.

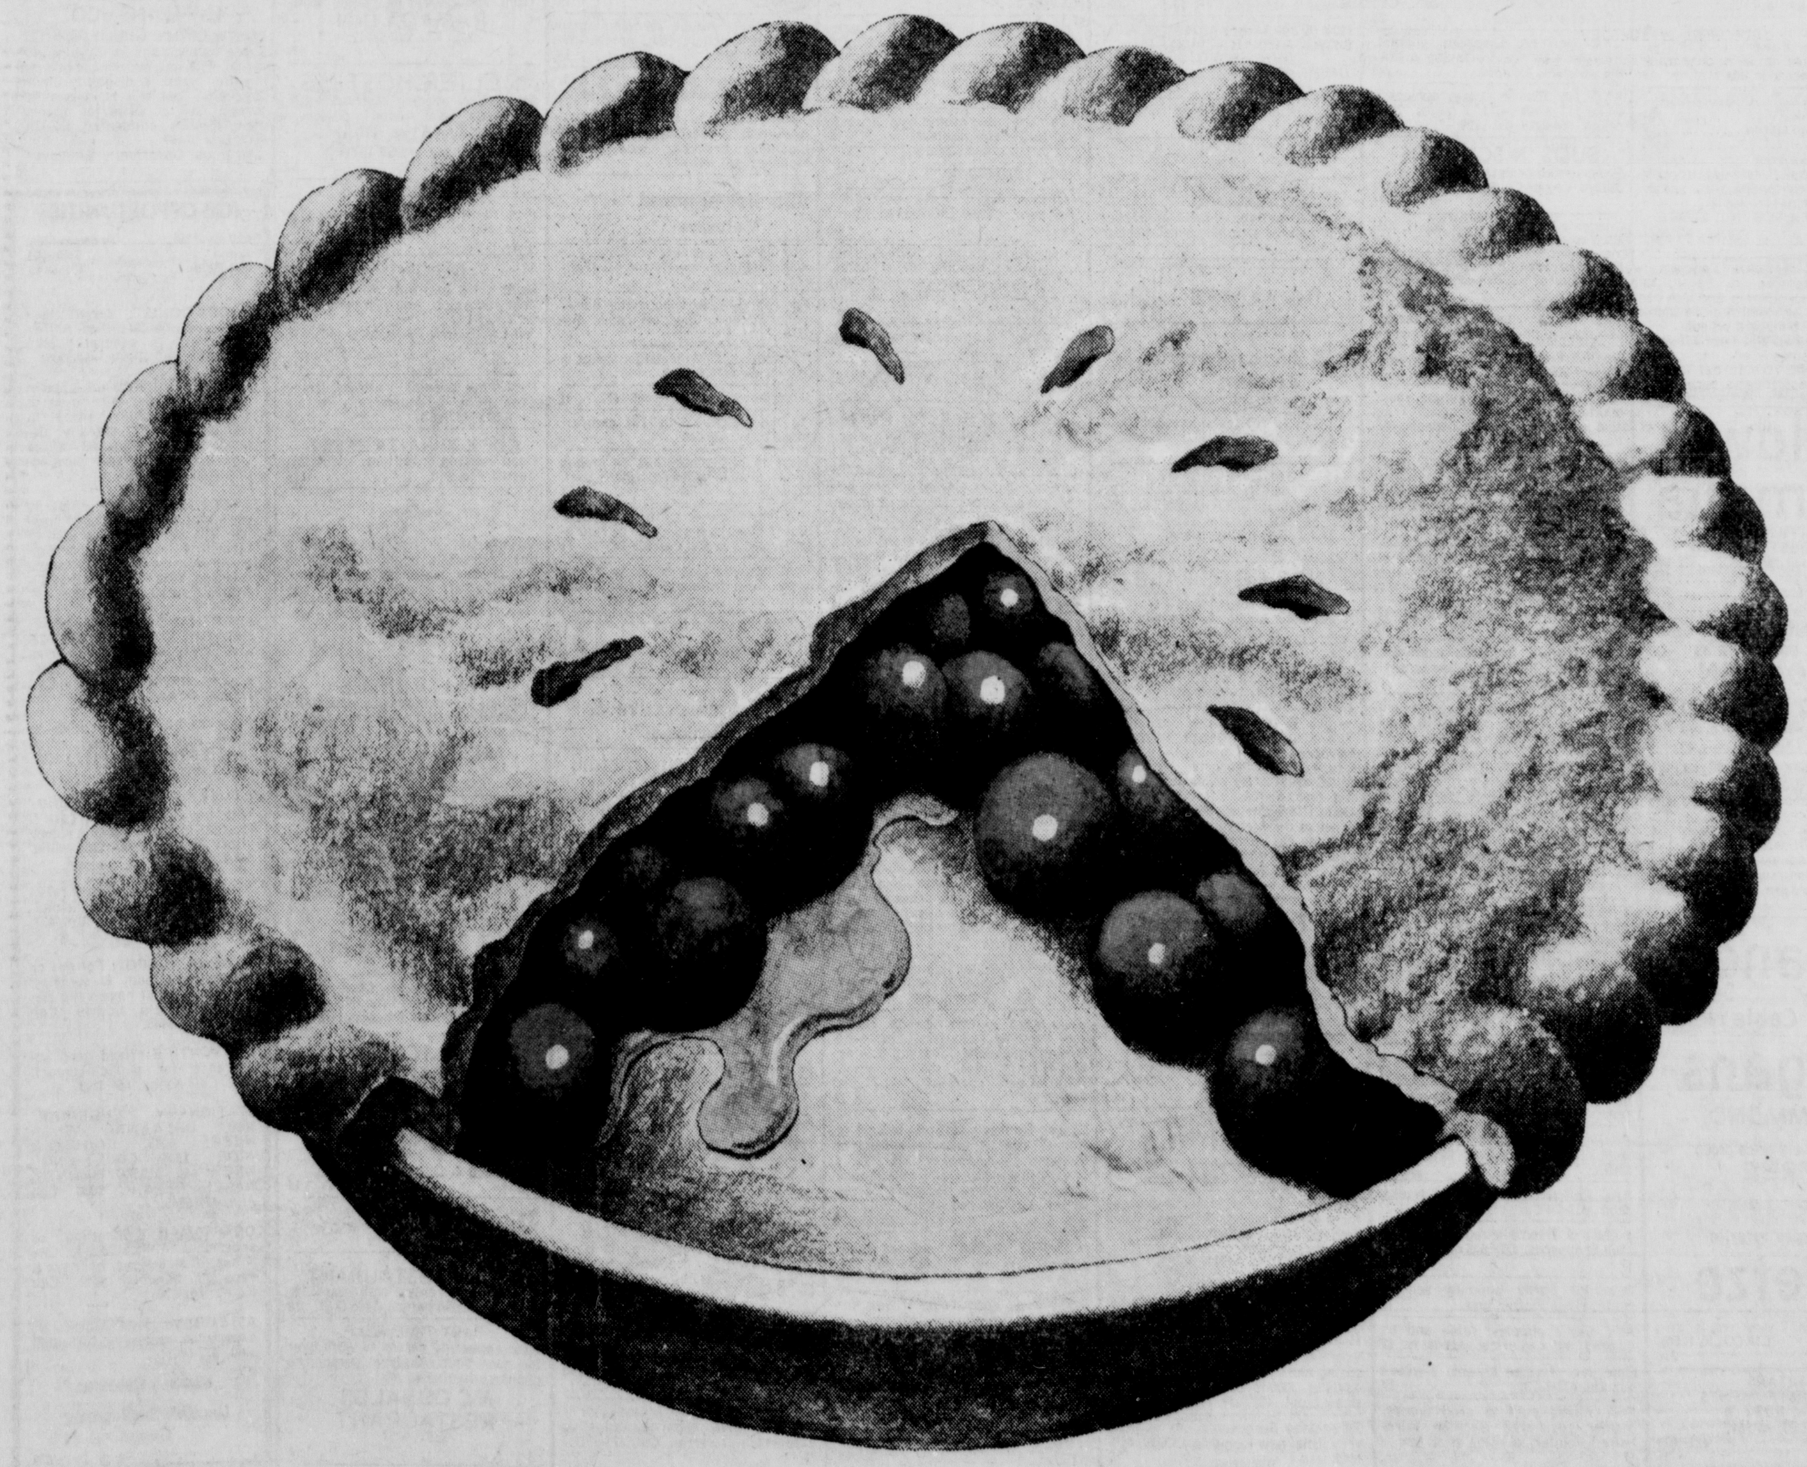

But the best energy-saver of them all is you. Our figures show that you're saving more gas than ever.

BMW Bavaria.

BMW Prices start at $5910

To people in the know, the brilliant new BMW Bavaria may well be the most prestigious car in the world today. All over Europe, for example, it has replaced another famous German make as the "in" car. But there is a whole lot more to the Bavaria than prestige. With all its great elegance and superb craftsmanship, the Bavaria will give you driving pleasure you've never experienced before. Fantastic performance and matchless roadholding make it one of the best road machines going. Come in and take a test-drive. Find out the real meaning of the word prestige.

To people in the know, the brilliant new BMW Bavaria may well be the most prestigious car in the world today. All over Europe, for example, it has replaced another famous German make as the "in" car. But there is a whole lot more to the Bavaria than prestige. With all its great elegance and superb craftsmanship, the Bavaria will give you driving pleasure you've never experienced before. Fantastic performance and matchless roadholding make it one of the best road machines going. Come in and take a test-drive. Find out the real meaning of the word prestige.
